LATIN AMERICA BLOC RESISTS MOLOTOV PLAN

Demand Argentina Be Admitted

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

San Francisco, Cal., April 29.—New complications in the organization of the international conference on the abolition of war developed tonight.

The Latin American delegations prepared to oppose the seating of the White Russian and Ukrainian soviet republics in the conference unless Argentina should be admitted also.

On the other hand, Russian Foreign Commissar Molotov served notice that unless the Russian sponsored Warsaw government of Poland is admitted he will oppose the seating of Argentina.

Rely on U. S. Help

The Latin Americans who stood with the United States and Great Britain in rejecting Moscow's Polish puppet government last Friday are relying on the American and British delegations to support them now in behalf of Argentina. Some members of the American delegation, however, indicated they would oppose hasty action on Argentina, where revolution appears again to be brewing.

The vote of the conference Friday to admit the soviet republics to the new peace league, thus giving Russia three votes, does not necessarily carry with it their seating in the conference. There is, however, an implied obligation to do so. The whole matter will come before the executive committee and steering committee tomorrow morning, preceding tomorrow afternoon's plenary session.

Veto Proviso Favored

Other developments of the day were:

1. Interchanges of views of conference leaders indicated that the proposed power of one of the big five nations to veto employment of force or economic sanctions against itself or another country accused of aggression or other breach of the peace will be retained.

2. The proposed power of one of the big five to veto pacific measures to settle an international dispute in which the big nation itself is not involved will be rejected or materially modified.

Push Vandenberg Plan

3. The American delegation will submit the Vandenberg amendments, including the one empowering the security council to recommend "revision of treaties and prior international decisions," such as the partition of Poland by the big three at Yalta.

4. The disarmament provisions of the Dumbarton Oaks peace league plan will be modified in such manner as to insure that neither the United States nor any other power shall be obligated to reduce or otherwise limit its naval or military strength without express consent in a treaty, to be ratified, in the case of America, by the senate.

The five Arabian delegations—Saudi Arabia, Lebanon, Egypt, Syria, and Iraq—held a meeting

LONDON PAPERS SAY EDEN RUNS FRISCO PARLEY

BY JAMES SLOAN
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, April 29—As far as some sections of the British press are concerned, the San Francisco conference has become a personalities popularity contest in which the papers give all the laurels to Britain's suave foreign secretary, Anthony Eden.

"Britain prevented an open split in the security plans—Eden is the strong man of the Frisco meeting," one paper emblazoned over five columns.

It credited Eden with being the "guiding influence of the American delegation as well as of the British," and claimed he was drafting the compromises, advising and aiding Secretary of State Stettinius, helping pilot the dominions, and speeding up the tempo of the conference so that he and the other foreign ministers can be back in their capitals within a month.

"He Stole the Show"

This paper also said Eden deserves all the credit for ending the disagreement over the conference presidency and his mature statesmanship has been one of the few comforting developments of a parley in which the Americans are being stiffened by the British into taking a firm stand against Russia on the Polish question.

"Eden ultimately stole the show," said another London paper in listing among the highlights of the week his "generally approved" plan for getting the conference's work done in four weeks. Another informed London source hailed the British foreign minister as becoming a "broker between the United States and Russia."

"Prestige Tremendous"

Another quarter of the London press modestly admitted that "our prestige here is tremendous. Nearly all of the nations want us to lead. We should."

It added that "the commanding position among the representatives of the 46 nations at Frisco is undoubtedly held by the British delegation. Constantly around our offices are the delegates of dozens of nations inquiring about the British point of view and seeking advice and guidance. And in the newspapers photographs and news of Eden are more numerous than of the Americans' own Stettinius."

Credited for Compromise

LONDON, April 30 [Monday]—(AP)—Don Iddon, London Sunday Dispatch correspondent, cabled from San Francisco that "Foreign Secretary Eden deserves almost all credit for ending the disagreement over the presidency of the conference. His plan to have all foreign ministers of the Big Four sponsoring nations as 'rotating' presidents, with United States Secretary of State Stettinius functioning as chairman, solved the issue holding up all business. He is showing mature statesmanship. . . . He's never been more effective. His success is one of the few comforting developments since the conference opened."

BLINDING NEONS FLASH DAY AND NIGHT IN FRISCO

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

San Francisco, Cal., April 29—This is where the lights burn all night and all day. Brilliant neon signs and electric flashers transform downtown streets into glaring canyons.

Store windows are ablaze. Whole buildings show outlines of gleaming neon tubes. Billboards, beer joints, restaurants, night clubs, cocktail lounges, and other places of merriment cry their wares in lights bright enough to make any browned-out middle westerner blink.

Nobody on this coast has seen any brown-out. An official of the Pacific Gas and Electric company explained that when the lights went off over the rest of the country, they continued to burn as brightly as ever here because electric power in this area is produced by a hydroelectric system. Since the brown-out was to save coal, there was no reason for this section to suffer.

"A nice, bright town," everybody says.

THE PICKET LINE

Reds 21% of Captives at Buchenwald

BY LARRY RUE
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, April 29—If Buchenwald gives a fair picture of other concentration camps—as distinguished from prisoner of war camps—about one-fifth of all political prisoners in Germany are Russians, with Poles and French following closely. Twenty per cent of all prisoners in Buchenwald were Jews. Most of the Jews were citizens of Poland, Russia, and France—in that order.

A compilation of percentages in Buchenwald showed that 21 per cent were Russians, 19 per cent Poles, 15 per cent French, 10 per cent Czechs, 9 per cent Germans, 6 per cent Hungarians, 4 per cent Dutch, 3 per cent each, Yugoslavs, Belgians, and Austrians, 1 per cent Italian, and 6 per cent miscellaneous, including anti-Franco Spaniards.

Red for Saboteurs

Prisoners in Buchenwald were broken down into four categories but there are no details given as to percentages in each category or exactly what crimes the victims were accused of. Some, however, admit they were active in sabotage, resistance and underground movements. Every prisoner wore a triangle patch on his back with initials indicating his nationality. The colors indicated why they were imprisoned. Red indicated a political crime, purple for conscientious objectors and black for nonworkers or those refusing jobs. Green signified the prisoner was a "habitual criminal" and their crimes varied from black marketing to murder to sexual perversions.

One of the horrors inflicted on the inmates was that in certain blocks o the camp internal administration was placed in the hands of convicted sadists. Often, witnesses say, even SS [elite guard] troops had to intervene to save the other prisoners from abuses by these habitual felons who were mixed with the others indiscriminately.

The United States congressional delegation, which visited Buchenwald, is postponing its homeward journey to investigate more camps as they are liberated. Most of the congressmen had a chance to interview military prisoners of war from their home states.

Atrocity White Paper Due

The psychological warfare department will release a 13 volume white paper on German atrocities on May 3 which is said to list the whole list of German crimes since the war started.

However, there has been no suggestion that the allies are investigating the Katyn forest, Poland, massacre where 10,000 Polish officers were murdered for which Russia has said Germany was responsible after the Germans blamed Stalin.

A pamphlet published by the Central Committee for the Struggle for Polish Independence set Polish losses in the war at 28 per cent of the entire population of the country. They estimated their dead under German occupation at 5,200,000. Under soviet Russian occupation 270,000 dead, and those deported or imprisoned at 3,000,000 by the Germans and 812,000 by Stalin.

ERROL FLYNN PEPS UP HOLLYWOOD PARTY WITH A FIST FIGHT

Hollywood, Cal., April 29 (AP)—Errol Flynn and Maj. John Huston, former film writer-director and son of veteran actor Walter Huston, hooked up in another one of those movie colony fights early today with the cause and the outcome, as usual, moot issues.

This much was known—there was an altercation. But the principals maintained the customary Hollywood reticence in discussing the affair.

Flynn refused to answer his telephone, and Huston, reached at his home, said he "was forced to categorically deny everything."

Even the locale of the unscheduled match was moot, but it was reported to have occurred at a party at the home of Producer David O. Selznick, and attended by scores of famous and near famous of the town.

Flynn, according to reports, was accompanied to the party by his wife, the former Nora Eddington.

Suicide Pilot Crashes Yank Hospital Ship

ABOARD ADM. R. K. TURNER'S FLAGSHIP OFF OKINAWA, April 29 (AP)—In one of the most dastardly actions of the war, a Japanese suicide pilot dove upon the fully-lighted and unescorted navy hospital ship Comfort, bound for rear areas with a full load of Okinawa battle casualties, last night.

At least 29 persons were killed and 33 seriously injured. The plane plunged into the ship's stern after making several runs.

There was no chance for any kind of mistake, as the attack on the unarmed vessel was in bright, full moonlight. The ship was brightly lighted and was painted a shining white, with red crosses on the sides and superstructure. These are floodlighted at night.

The raid occurred 50 miles south of Okinawa. No other American vessel was within many miles.

Full Load of Wounded

Loaded to capacity with wounded, the Comfort departed for rear areas late yesterday afternoon. She was hit less than four hours later.

She at first was reported abandoning ship, but was able to proceed under her own power despite a damaged rudder mechanism which required steering by hand.

The Comfort messaged a call for doctors and surgical instruments. It was believed here the enemy plane hit in the surgery at the rear of the ship, where doctors and nurses were busy with the most critical battlefield casualties.

Previous Attempt Foiled

On the afternoon of April 6 from this flagship a suicide plane, in clear weather and perfect visibility, was seen to dive directly at the Comfort, gleaming white amidst hundreds of drab or camouflaged warships. Anti-aircraft fire brought the burning plane down just short of the hospital ship—so close that some exploding and flaming debris touched the vessel.

The same day, before dawn, a Japanese plane dropped two bombs near another hospital ship of the same size as the Comfort. That vessel stood off, brightly lighted, far from other vessels. Both bombs narrowly missed.

By contrast, the Americans have even put up an air patrol over Japanese hospital ships to prevent other planes from bombing them mistakenly.

MUSSOLINI SHOT AND DUMPED IN PUBLIC SQUARE

Faces Firing Squad Crying No! No!

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune]

(Pictures on Pages 4 and 5)

MILAN, Italy, April 29—Benito Mussolini came back last night to the city where his fascism was born. He came back on the floor of a closed moving van, his dead body flung on top of the bodies of his mistress and 17 other men shot with him.

That is not a pretty way to begin the story of his final downfall, his flight, his capture, and his execution. But it's not a pretty story, and its epilogue in the Piazza Loreto here this morning was its ugliest part and will go down in history as a finish to a tyranny as horrible as was ever visited upon a tyrant.

Mob Fights to See Him

At 9:30 this morning the former duce's body lay on the rim of the mass of corpses, while all around surged a growing mob wild with the desire to have a last look at the man who once was a Socialist editor in this city.

The throng pushed and yelled; partisans strove to keep them back but largely in vain. Even a series of shots in the air did not dissuade them.

The crowd trampled, spat upon and kicked at the bodies during the day, and tonight they are hanging head down on exhibition at a Standard Oil booth in Milan.

Mussolini had changed in death, but not enough to be any one else but Mussolini. His close shaved head and his bull neck were unmistakable; his body seemed small and a little shrunken, but he was never a tall man.

Bullet Thru His Head

One bullet had passed thru his head. There was another small hole nearer his forehead.

Mussolini wore the uniform of a squadrist militia man, a gray brown jacket and gray trousers with red and black stripes down the sides.

Mussolini lay with his head on the breast of his mistress, Clara Petacci, who had sought to rise to movie fame thru him. The 25 year old woman had been executed with him in the suburb of the village of Como on the shore of Lake Como.

Officials Executed

Those executed yesterday were Alessandro Pavolini, secretary of the Fascist Republican party; Francesco Barraccu, deputy prime minister; Paolo Zerbino, minister of interior; Fernando Mezzasoma, minister

SWEDISH PEACE ENVOY CONTACTS HIMMLER AGAIN

STOCKHOLM, April 30, Monday (AP)—The Stockholm newspaper Dagens Nyheter said today that Count Folke Bernadotte arrived in Denmark Sunday night from Germany after "making a new contact with Heinrich Himmler."

Bernadotte, vice chairman of the Swedish Red Cross, was described as the emissary who carried the Gestapo chief's offer to surrender to the United States and Britain from Germany to Stockholm last week. He returned to Germany Saturday, ostensibly on Red Cross work.

Count Perilled by Bomb

The newspaper Aftonbladet said today the count narrowly escaped death when allied planes bombed the Danish air field from which he was about to take off with the original Himmler message.

The Swedish foreign office announced that Bernadotte transmitted an "oral message" from Himmler to the Swedish government, which then turned it over to the American and British ministers in Stockholm. It was presumed that Himmler's message was the one which offered capitulation to the western allies only.

American and British legation officials were not available for comment.

Jump Into Ditch

Aftonbladet said Bernadotte, his chauffeur, and another companion had to jump into a ditch for safety when allied planes bombed the Danish air field.

Bernadotte, whose American wife is the former Estelle Manville, is one of the few men who has negotiated with top leaders of both the allies and Germany during this war. He visited Gen. Eisenhower in France last fall. In recent weeks, he saw Himmler on several occasions in connection with a Swedish mercy mission which obtained the release of thousands of Nazi interned Danes and Norwegians.

Churchill to Speak

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, April 29—Despite official denial of reports of Germany's surrender, there is a strong feeling here tonight that the end of the European war is only a matter of days, and, perhaps, hours.

After the facts relating to Himmler's abortive effort to make peace had been reported to the British cabinet at an extraordinary meeting today, it was disclosed that Prime Minister Churchill will make a statement in the house of commons this week on the state of affairs in Germany. It was generally expected in Whitehall that the allied governments would know within 48 hours whether any acceptable surrender offer was coming from Germany.

Churchill probably will make his statement in commons Tuesday, by which time, some observers here believe, Germany's final collapse will have come. Over the week-end the prime minister was said to have been in trans-Atlantic telephone communication with President Truman several times, possibly discussing reports that the Germans are reconsidering their two-power surrender offer.

Sen. Connally Criticized

The Daily Express claimed that if the report had not leaked out at San Francisco, unconditional surrender might have been a fact by now.

The Communist Daily Worker accused Sen. Connally of also having been responsible for the premature breaking of several big news stories in the past, notably the Teheran conference. However, it was admitted that his information "usually is accurate."

CAPTURE NAZI PARTY'S BEER HALL SHRINE

British Cross Elbe; 9th Army Moves

PARIS, April 30 (Monday)—(AP)—Tanks and infantry of the United States 7th army took over Munich last night, meeting practically no opposition as they rolled into the birthplace of nazziism.

The entire city of 825,000 was not completely occupied by the American troops but front line dispatches said that lack of opposition indicated it was as good as captured. Associated Press Correspondent A. I. Goldberg said that Lt. Donal Downard, Olympia, Wash., led the 2d battalion of the 222d regiment into Germany's third largest city.

Free 27,000 Prisoners

United States 3d army tanks dashing 27 miles northeast of Munich liberated 27,000 allied prisoners of war, mostly American airmen, at Moosburg. It was one of the largest if not the largest group yet liberated on the western front.

The 14th armored division, of Lt. Gen. Patton's army which freed the prisoners, reported they had been marched there only recently from various parts of Germany.

The final battles in Europe raged on unabated as Gen. Eisenhower announced he knew nothing of an unconditional surrender offer from Germany or of any peace negotiations.

125,000 Germans Give Up

More than 125,000 German soldiers have surrendered in the last 48 hours to American, British, and French troops under Eisenhower's command, allied headquarters announced tonight.

The British 2d army crossed the Elbe and captured Lauenburg, 20 miles east of Hamburg.

The United States 9th army lashed out from its own bridgehead in another blow at what remains of Nazi Germany in the north.

The Canadian 1st army in a surprise crossing of the Ems river drove north to within seven miles of the German North sea port of Emden.

42d Races Into City

The 42d infantry division raced into Munich first from the north, using a broad military highway. Then the 12th armored division hit Munich from the southwest, and the new 20th armored division—disclosed for the first time to be in action—roared in from the west.

These outfits had traveled at least 20 miles to reach this city where in 1938 the statesmen of France and Britain came to Hitler and made a pact for "peace in our time."

American troops today stood in the very beer hall where, in 1923, Hitler plotted and launched his short-lived revolt against the German republic.

The astounding lack of opposition prompted belief that Bavarians who 3d army vanguards said Saturday had been heard calling for a revolt in Munich might have cleared out German elite troops who had vowed to stand and die there.

The 45th infantry division was closing around Dachau, site of a notorious concentration camp, a few miles northwest of Munich.

Other 7th army forces southwest of Munich fought deep into the Bavarian Alps, where they were 27 miles northwest of Innsbruck at the northern entrance of the Brenner pass leading up from Italy. The 10th armored division captured Oberammergau, scene of the famous Passion play.

Farther west, infantry against heavy opposition fought on nearly three miles beyond the Austrian border.

The United States 3d army threw its main weight northeast of Munich now that the 7th army appeared to have the situation well in hand, and gained up to 29 miles along its 80 mile front thrust into Bavaria, Austria, and Czechoslovakia.

75 Miles from Hitler Lair

Four divisions moved within a 75 mile radius of Berchtesgaden, Hitler's lair.

Fighter bombers ranging on ahead destroyed more than 900 vehicles out of long columns of German troops and equipment caught streaming south of Pilsen toward the Alpine retreat.

Lt. Gen. Dempsey's British 2d army kicked off across the Elbe at 2 a. m. after a smothering barrage of 76,000 shells.

Troops were packed into amphibious tanks and assault boats, and swarming up the north bank began pressing thru the forest and woodland toward Marshal Zhukov's 1st White Russian army, driving north of Berlin.

The commanders were trained to recognize the shape of Red army tanks, and some gun carriers flew the union jack for recognition purposes.

As the British rounded up nearly 1,000 prisoners, guns, men, ammunition and supplies swiftly piled up on the Elbe bank behind them.

9th Army Opens Push

Eisenhower gave the United States 9th army of Lt. Gen. Simpson the go-ahead signal after two weeks of idleness on the east bank of the Elbe.

After capturing Zerbst, 47 miles southwest of Berlin, the Americans drove on more than three miles south, capturing Bius and Juetrichau, the latter 11 miles northwest of last reported Russian positions at Wittenberg.

The 9th army met little opposition and at its current rate of progress should connect with Marshal Konev's 1st Ukrainian army today or tomorrow.

Fleets of allied aircraft dropped food to the starving Dutch in German-occupied western Holland. Supreme headquarters told the Dutch by radio that "the next aircraft you hear will be carrying food, not bombs." Hollanders were advised to post observers at pre-arranged points and to distribute the food fairly.

YANKS CROWN 900 MILE DRIVE IN MUNICH ENTRY

Riviera to Bavaria: 7th Army's Path

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

U. S. 7TH ARMY ADVANCED HDQ., Bavaria, April 29 — Munich was entered late today as the crowning achievement of the 7th army's campaign — a campaign which has carried more than 900 miles from the beaches of the Riviera. The army has moved thru southern and eastern France, and in a great wheeling movement across the Rhine and deep into Bavaria and toward the Nazis' last retreat in the Alps.

First to get into the 800 year old city, capital and commercial center of Bavaria, birthplace of nazism and scene of the ill-fated "peace in our time" conference in 1938, was the 42d infantry [Rainbow] division commanded by Maj. Gen. Harry J. Collins of Chicago.

The 2d battalion of the Rainbow's 222d regiment, led by Lt. Col. Donald E. Downard of Olympia, Wash., broke in from the north after most of the way along Hitler's great super-highway down from Augsburg 38 miles northwest had been cleared by the 3d infantry division. Downard's men got in shortly after 4 p. m. [9 a. m. Chicago time.]

Shortly after, the 12th armored division came in from the southwest in a swing from Landsberg.

Non-Nazis Wish to Yield

There has been evidence the last few days that non-Nazi elements in the city, having in mind what a ruin Nuernberg is because it was fanatically defended, and aware that the total defeat of Germany is imminent, wished to yield historic Munich without a struggle. Munich has been heavily bombed by the allied air force in recent years and there are reports that much of it is wrecked altho some of the Nazi shrines and party buildings still are standing.

The Munich radio was supposedly seized yesterday for 40 minutes by anti-Nazis who broadcast to the citizenry to resist the military and help save the city from annihilation. Later yesterday the Nazi gauleiter broadcast that the uprising had been quelled and that Munich would be defended to the death. But it was persistently rumored today that civilians were rebelling against the soldiers and certainly there was a display of white flags today which showed the citizens' desire to coöperate with the advancing Americans.

Four Men from Illinois in Van

The road to Munich was the scene of modern warfare at its swiftest. The 30th regiment of the 3d division was in the van most of the time, its men carried on tanks, armored cars, trucks, and in jeeps in a 60 mile an hour sprint down the super-highway Hitler had built.

Among members of the most forward company — E of the 2d battalion — were four from Illinois. They were Staff Sgt. Curtis Martin of Warren; Corp. Frank S. Pace of Collinsville; Pfc. Eugene H. Mueller of Trenton, and 2d Lt. Emeron St. Pierre of East St. Louis.

Then the Rainbow division came along, taking the two western lanes of the four lane highway while the 3d stayed on the eastern lanes. It was a racing, roaring climax to the Hitlerian dream.

Munich, located on the Isar river in the plain which spreads from the Danube south to the Bavarian Alps, is the third largest city of Germany and has a population of 825,000. It had the biggest railroad station in Europe, the Berlin-Rome and Paris-Istanbul lines routing thru there.

LINDBERGH CALLED BACK BY NAVY FOR TECHNICAL ADVICE

Washington, D. C., April 29 [Special]—The United States navy has again drafted Charles A. Lindbergh for aid in solving technical problems in a new type of aircraft now in use in the European theater, it was learned yesterday.

Lindbergh was called from his duties with the Ford Motor company where he had returned after several months in the Pacific teaching navy pilots new tricks in high altitude flying.

BRITISH CABINET MINISTER'S SON HELD IN ITALY

New York, April 29 (AP)—The Milan radio said today that Nazi-Fascist Collaborationist John Amery, son of L. S. Amery, British secretary of state for India, was among "recently arrested persons."

The broadcast gave no other details.

Amery began collaboration activities in Vichy after the Nazis occupied northern France and later worked in Berlin and Rome, fleeing from the latter city when it was occupied by the allies. He continued to broadcast over the puppet transmitter in northern Italy.

Amery left Britain in 1930 and went to France.

FRENCH WOMEN OUTNUMBER MEN IN FIRST VOTING

Local Election Brings Record Turnout

BY DAVID DARRAH
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, April 29—Women of France went to the polls for the first time in history today. It was the first election since the surrender to the Germans.

Women outnumbered men by a third in a record turnout. Election officials said probably 80 per cent of the 24,000,000 eligible electors cast ballots altho the contests were only for town councillors. No disorders were reported.

Early returns from Paris and other metropolitan centers gave Communist candidates comfortable leads, but the returns were meager from traditionally conservative country districts, where Communists are not expected to make a good showing.

Herriott Elected

Edouard Herriott, who has just reached Switzerland from a German prison camp, was elected to the municipal council of Lyon by a four to one margin. He served as mayor of Lyon for more than 20 years before being deposed by the Vichy regime.

Six members of Gen. De Gaulle's cabinet who ran for city offices were elected. De Gaulle himself did not vote as regulations bar voting by army personnel.

Last minute Communist demands for quick trial and conviction of Marshal Henri Philippe Petain as a German collaborationist were said to have drawn support to the party's candidates. Andre Mormet, procureur general, who will conduct the case against Petain was reelected handily.

Vote Thrills Women

Most women seemed thrilled by the chance to vote. Some stopped at the polls on their way to their morning's shopping. Others voted after mass.

Old timers like the Duchess de la Rochefoucauld and Irene Joliet Curie who have been pulling political strings for 25 years, had no difficulty in casting their ballots, but fledgling suffragists like Danielle Darrieux, the movie actress, and Mistinguette, the dancer who won world fame with her legs, took a long time to decide which names looked the nicest.

The countess, pamphleteer and ardent rightist who is head of the National Union of Women said:

"Ever since Jeanne d'Arc, Mme. de Stael, and the Marquise de Pompadour French women have played an important, if ingrate, role in politics. Today we are allowed to tackle public questions openly. Our women candidates have pledged themselves to back the new feminist philosophy of government, putting security of the home foremost."

Seventy-four year old Mistinguette wore slacks to the polls and looked like a young tomboy with her bright red curls falling loosely on her shoulders.

"I would like to vote for love, songs, and joy," she laughed.

GERMAN VILLAGE REVIEWS PARADE OF 161 CORPSES

BY HAL FOUST
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

NEUBURG, Germany, April 29—One hundred and sixty-one bodies, murder victims of the SS [elite guards], were paraded thru a narrow, winding street of this Bavarian town today. The ghastly spectacle was staged by the United States army as a lesson against Nazism for the German citizens.

Emaciated bodies in prison rags, with heads broken by pistol bullets or rifle butts, were displayed in open pine boxes, each carried by four townspeople. The conscripted pallbearers were old men, women, and boys and girls. There are no young men remaining in this 700 year old community.

The parade started in a wood encircling the village, where the SS elite guard a week ago had killed the sick and weak among 3,000 concentration camp prisoners who were unable to maintain the pace of retreat before the advancing American armies.

600 Slaves Also March

Also in the procession were 600 gaunt and ragged slave laborers who had escaped from a southbound column. They resembled the crumpled figures in the shallow pine boxes.

The victims and their mourners were almost all Polish Jews. All were men or grown boys. Abraham Jacobovits, 17, walked with blank, dry eyes in his bony face, shuffling slowly in broken shoes in front of his father's body, whose skull was bashed to the eyebrows.

The population of the village stood on a narrow sidewalk. All had been commanded to witness the ceremony.

Soldier Meets Neighbor

Josef Walburn, with a white band on his arm to mark him as an officiating townsman, said Neuburg like other Bavarian towns never embraced nazism but was dominated by Hitler terrorists. The town is 12 miles from the Czech border. Walburn, 66, lived in Dubuque, Ia., for 14 years until 1939 when he returned to his home town to work on super-highway construction.

In the line of march a recently freed concentration camp prisoner, a Romanian, broke ranks to speak to a United States soldier, one of a group policing the parade. They embraced. After an exchange of a few words the soldier cried unashamed.

He was Earl Seltan, who migrated to Los Angeles, Cal., with his mother in 1939. The ex-prisoner, a former neighbor in Romania, told him the SS had killed all residents of his home town who were unable to work. The victims included his father and grandmother.

In a medieval village cemetery the bodies were laid beside graves dug by the townspeople. Three army chaplains, a Jew, Catholic, and a Protestant officiated. The Catholic was Capt. B. E. McAlarney of the Catholic Youth organization in Chicago.

The villagers heard Tech. Sgt. Erich Loeb of the psychological warfare section say in German over a loudspeaker:

All Held Responsible

"You have been ordered here to look upon this gruesome evidence of German barbarity, and to be told that the civilized world holds all Germans responsible for the horrible crime."

Thirty-four other SS murder victims were found near an adjacent village. More and more reports are pouring in about the death march of slave laborers forced to flee before advancing American divisions.

WAVE OF SUICIDES SWEEPING BERLIN; DESERTIONS MOUNT

MOSCOW, April 29 (AP)—Izvestia said today that waves of suicides, including many of the elite Hitler guards were sweeping Berlin.

Another dispatch said the Nazis, in an effort to combat mounting desertion among the city's defenders, had ordered wheels removed from every private automobile.

An Izvestia correspondent said "a captured quartermaster named Krone of the 2d police battalion testified his battalion was sent out to round up deserters but the battalion itself deserted." Kront was quoted as saying that in the subway tunnels beneath the city more than 40,000 desrters were hiding out. New orders were found posted on downtown Berlin buildings threatening immediate reprisals against the families of all deserters. The orders were signed by Heinrich Himmler.

10,000 SPANIARDS BOO AT FASCIST SALUTE TO FLAG

MONTSERRAT, Spain, April 29 (AP)—Ten thousand Spaniards today angrily shouted down a few hundred others who greeted the raising of the Spanish flag with the fascist salute.

Franco police armed with riot guns stood idly by as the angry men hooted at the open palm salute which still is the official greeting in Spain.

REDS TIGHTEN BERLIN POCKET; GAIN IN NORTH

Near Last Barricades; Station Seized

LONDON, April 30 [Monday]—(AP)—Russian assault troops clambered over almost the last barricades in suicide-swept Berlin yesterday while to the north two soviet armies linked for a cleanup sweep across northern Germany, slashing out twin 20 mile advances toward Rostock and Swinemuende.

Veterans of Stalingrad converged on Berlin's devastated heart in a relentless battle that was nearing its end. In the heat set by hundreds of fires, they smashed within a half-mile of Hitler's reichs-chancellery and were massed across the northern fringe of the famous, now fortified Tiergarten.

[The Associated Press said the British Broadcasting corporation, in a report recorded at the CBS short-wave listening station in New York, asserted an unconfirmed report reached Stockholm by way of Munich and Bern that "Hitler died at noon today (Sunday) in his underground headquarters in the Tiergarten in Berlin with [Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph) Goebbels at his bedside." Another BBC broadcast, quoting a Stockholm dispatch, reported that Hitler suffered a hemorrhage of the brain and had been left an invalid, Blue network monitors said.]

Waves of suicides and desertions swept Nazi ranks as the Red army pressed the battered Nazi garrison back into an 18 square mile pocket in the city's center.

11,000 More Give Up

Another 11,000 German troops quit the struggle in the nearly conquered capital, for a three day total of 48,500 killed or captured. The Hamburg radio grimly admitted that "the situation in Berlin has again deteriorated—and tonight the city is not much more than a heap of rubble."

The entire workers' district of Moabit on the north bank of the Spree river opposite the Tiergarten was captured by street fighters of Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov's 1st White Russian army. They probably were little more than a few hundred yards from the reichstag.

Capture of the Anhalter station put Zhukov's men only a block from the Wilhelmstrasse, center of all important German ministerial buildings and three quarters of a mile from both historic Brandenburg gate and the dead center of Berlin at Unter den Linden and Friedrichstrasse.

The soviet newspaper Izvestia said the Germans were destroying all their archives, indicating that the ministries near which fighting was taking place were wiping out records of the Nazi regime.

"You can pick up Nazi decorations, swastikas, and ribbons by the handfuls," Izvestia said.

Near Himmler's Ministry

The German high command said Zhukov's tanks and tommy gunners also were forcing their way up Potsdamer strasse toward the Potsdamer bridge over the Landswehr canal, protecting one approach to Potsdamer platz.

A quarter of a mile below the Anhalter station, Russian infantrymen were prying the Nazi defenders from Belle Alliance platz with flame throwers and were in sight of Himmler's ministry of the interior.

In southwestern Berlin, Marshal Konev's 1st Ukrainians captured the southern part of the city district of Wilmersdorf up to Berliner strasse, which runs between Schoeneberg and the circular railroad stations of Hohenzollern and Halensee, which also were seized.

Southeast of Berlin, troops of two soviet armies wiped out a huge group of enemy troops encircled in the area of Wender Buchholz, taking more than 40,000 prisoners. In three days a total of 54,000 enemy troops who might have relieved the German garrison were captured.

Meanwhile, other elements of Zhukov's army linked up near Wesendorf, 22 miles north of Berlin, with Marshal Konstantin K. Rokossovsky's 2d White Russian army sweeping west of the lower Oder river.

Rokossovsky's tanks and cavalry, smashing into the Nazis' northern redoubt, invaded the north German province of Mecklenburg and, overcoming difficult lake terrain, captured the Mecklenburg cities of Anklam, Friedland, Neubrandenburg, and Lychen.

The 2d White Russians were smashing across the Mecklenburg plains on an 80 mile front and raced within 56 miles of Rostock, seizing 2,000 Nazi prisoners.

Capture of Anklam, 45 miles northeast of Stettin, sealed off one escape route from island bound Swinemuende, 22 miles to the west, and the Russians were only 13 miles south of Wolgast, whose fall would completely isolate the port of Usedom Island.

Near V-Bomb Center

The 20 mile advance to the great 13 way communications center of Anklam also imperiled the Nazi Baltic ports of Greifswald and Stralsund, 19 and 38 miles, respectively, to the northwest. The Russians at Anklam were 19 miles south of the famous Nazi V-bomb experimental station at Peenemunde, also on Usedom Island.

In a second 20 mile sweep, Rokossovsky's troops captured Neubrandenburg, cut the Stralsund-Berlin railroad and highway and smashed their closest to Rostock.

Twenty-three miles south of Neubrandenburg the capture of Lychen put Rokossovsky little more than 85 miles from Field Marshal Montgomery's British 2d army and within 14 miles southeast of the big rail hub of Neustrehlitz.

With Montgomery's army reportedly opening a new offensive across the Elbe river southeast of Hamburg, the Russians and their western allies evidently were battling for a quick cleanup of the northern half of the bisected third Reich. Rokossovsky's and Zhukov's combined armies were advancing on a continuous 100-mile front.

PETAIN TO FACE QUESTIONING AT JAIL WEDNESDAY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, April 29—Marshal Petain, leader of France under German occupation, will undergo his first interrogation in his prison quarters at Fort Montrouge Wednesday, it was announced in today's French press. The questioning will be conducted by President Bouchardon of the high court set up by the De Gaulle government to try collaborationists. After the examination defense attorneys will be appointed for Petain.

At French courts there is speculation on who will defend Petain. One Paris paper pointed out that Malsherbes, who defended the beheaded King Louis XVI., still has a boulevard named after him in Paris.

There was considerable complaint in the Paris resistance, socialist, and communist press today against Petain having such comforts as electric lights, running water, or a kitchen while he is in prison awaiting trial.

REDS SPRUCE UP FOR BIGGEST MAY DAY OF WAR

MOSCOW, April 29 (AP)—Russians prepared today for their biggest May day celebration since the start of the war.

This was a bright sunshiny day and there seemed to be more people on the streets than at any other time in the four years of the war. Moscow's black-out was ordered lifted tomorrow night. Normal lighting will be resumed in the capital's streets, buildings, and residences.

Red banners and bunting with party slogans and pictures—some of them 50 feet high—of Stalin and other soviet leaders went up all over the city. Policemen donned bright new blue uniforms. Lights were put back into the red star over the Kremlin. Red stars adorned lamp posts along the principal thorofares.

AUSTRIA FORMS NEW REPUBLIC; 3 PARTIES RULE

Name Karl Renner as Chancellor

MOSCOW, April 29 (AP)—Austria, swallowed by Germany seven years ago as the first pawn of Nazi expansion, formed a new provisional government in Vienna Saturday under Dr. Karl Renner, a Social Democrat, as chancellor and foreign minister.

Dr. Karl Renner

Renner, 75, was chancellor in 1919-'20, and was author of the constitution of the Austrian republic. He strongly opposed communism in Austria after the last war, and his policies are criticized in a soviet encyclopedia published in 1941.

The coalition government intends "to restore an independent Austrian republic," and was formed according to the agreement of the 1943 Moscow conference of tri-power foreign secretaries, a Tass dispatch from Vienna said today.

Three Party Rule

Three parties, the Social Democrat, Christian Social, and Communist, make up the coalition. Renner was the last president of the free national council of the Austrian republic before its disbandment by the Germans in 1938.

By the anschluss of March 13, 1938, Germany completely absorbed Austria, making the republic the province of Ostmark. Russian troops now have driven deep into Austria from the east, liberating Vienna, and Americans have crossed the western frontier.

The new government has a political council of coalition including three state secretaries without portfolio. They are Dr. Adolf Sherf, Social Democrat; Leopold Kunshak, Christian Social, and Johann Koplenig, Communist.

Cabinet Listed

Cabinet ministers are:

War, Lt. Col. Franz Winterer; interior, Franz Khonner, Communist; justice, Dr. Josef Gere, nonparty; finance, Dr. George S. Zimmerman, nonparty; agriculture and fuel administrator, Rudolf Bukhinger, Christian Social; crafts, trade, industry, and transportation, Edward Geinl, Christian Social; education and religion, Ernst Gisher, Communist; social security, Johann Bem, Social Democrat; public works and rehabilitation, Rudolf Raab, Christian Social.

[Moscow broadcast April 8 a soviet government declaration that Russia "is not pursuing the aim of acquiring any part of Austrian territory or changing the social system in Austria." The Moscow conference of foreign secretaries in November, 1943, pledged the liberation of Austria.]

SEN. BROOKS VISITS SCENE OF HIS HEROISM IN FIRST WORLD WAR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, April 29—Accompanied by Sen. Wherry [R., Neb.] and Maj. Gen. Ralph Smith, military attache in Paris, Sen. Brooks [R., Ill.] today made a pilgrimage to Belleau wood where 27 years ago Gen. Pershing pinned the distinguished service cross on Brooks' tunic. Brooks, a World War I. marine, also was awarded the navy cross and the French croix de guerre at the same time.

"It was a most interesting journey," said Brooks. "Altho somewhat neglected during the war, both the monument and graves now are in a good state of preservation."

Brooks explained that during the war the caretakers rushed to the farms as no farm labor was drafted for Germany.

499 CASUALTIES IN V-BOMB FIGHT AT ANTWERP

BY LARRY RUE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

SUPREME HDQ., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Paris, April 29—Anti-aircraft units of the United States 9th air force and the British attached to the channel base section suffered 499 casualties—62 killed, 437 wounded—during the 154 days the Germans launched nearly 4,000 robot bombs on Antwerp.

It was revealed here today the defense of Antwerp against the robot attacks was under Brig. Gen. Clare H. Armstrong, West Pointer, who commanded 22,000 British troops during the desperate German attempt to knock the port of Antwerp out of existence. Eighty-five per cent of all the robots launched against Antwerp were destroyed by ack-ack units before reaching their targets. In the last six days of the attack, only two of 91 flying bombs plotted as Antwerp bound reached within the vital area.

Allied anti-aircraft, overwhelmingly American, has destroyed 3,151 German aircraft since D day on the continent. American 90 millimeter guns fired 463,130 rounds of ammunition. The lighter British guns—3.7 inchers—threw another 70,000 rounds at robot bombs.

War Writer Badly Hurt as Truck Crushes Jeep

LONDON, April 29 (AP)—William Frye, Associated Press war correspondent, was severely injured today when a jeep in which he was returning from the British 2d army front in Germany was crushed between a truck and a tree. Doon Campbell, Reuters correspondent, who was riding in the same jeep, said Frye suffered leg and back injuries, possibly including a fractured pelvis.

of propaganda; Romano Ruggero, minister of public works; Augusto Liverani, minister of communications; Paolo Porta, inspector of a party for Lombardy; Ernesto Daquanno, director of the Stefani News agency; Goffredo Comppola, president of the Institute for Fascist Culture; Mario Nudi, president of the fascist agricultural federation; Vito Casalnuovo, colonel of the fascist national guard; Pietro Salustri, personal pilot of the duce; Nicola Bombacci, described simply as a traitor; Marcello Petacci, Luigi Gatti, identified only as a prefect; and a writer by the name of Hintermayer.

Spotted by Partisan

Gen. Achille Starace, former secretary of the party, was shot this morning.

Miss Petacci, who shared Mussolini's "exile" in northern Italy, was a Roman girl whom the dictator was said to have met on the bathing beach at Ostia. Mussolini gave her a villa outside Rome. Her pet name for Mussolini was said to have been "Bibi."

Mussolini arrived at Como Wednesday and made efforts to arrange for passage across the Swiss frontier. Thursday morning, in a caravan of 30 cars, Mussolini headed north. Near Dongo, a sharp-eyed young Partisan named Urbano Lazari spotted him. He was made to dismount and was given temporary shelter in a cottage in the hamlet of Giulino Di Mezzegre near Dongo.

Tried by Party of Ten

From here details come from a liberation leader known only as Eduardo. When word of the arrest reached him he sent up 10 men from Milan with a colonel who handled the details of the trial and sentence.

When Mussolini first saw the group coming up from Milan he sought to embrace them, thinking they were Fascists and his friends. Disavowed, he was shocked, and later, after the trial and death sentence, he said within the hearing of one partisan: "Let me save my life and I will give you an empire."

This incredible plea was vain and the execution was carried out. More details of the trial and the exact charges are not yet available.

Mussolini is said by Eduardo's men to have died badly. He yelled "No, no," as his last words. He wore no blindfold. The order to fire was given by Riccardo, a 40 year old veteran of the Spanish war, who led Eduardo's 10 men under the general command of the colonel.

"Do Not Hit Medal"

The others, save Clara Petacci, were shot elsewhere. Pavolini was said to have died bravely, proclaiming "Viva l'Italia." Barracu wore a high military decoration. He died saying: "Do not hit the medal." Clara Petacci's brother tried to flee, but was shot down as he ran.

All the corpses were loaded into the moving van, which started down 25 miles of the auto highway after dark. The bodies were dumped in Piazza le Loreto because recently 15 patriots were executed there — and in fact the name of the piazza has been changed to Piazza Quindici Martir [Square of the 15 Martyrs].

The bodies arrived later than scheduled because en route the van was repeatedly stopped by heavily armed partisans who wanted to make sure that the driver was not a Fascist trying to take the bodies to an honorable burial. This doubt grew so serious at one point that the driver and the men with him were actually lined up for execution themselves. It took an hour's argument to convince the partisans to let the truck proceed.

Dumped in Square

The bodies were dumped without ceremony and the truck rolled away. Word that they were there did not get around generally till this morning. The effect on the city was obvious.

The first American soldier to see the bodies was Pvt. Kenneth Koplin of Huron, S. D., who drove the correspondent's jeep.

Hailed by a hysterical crowd as an American colonel on an official mission to see the bodies, Koplin found himself pushed into the dreadful circle just as we correspondents were.

"All I know is that I wanted to get out of there," he said.

There is no way of telling how long the gruesome show will go on. But if many more misguided young men aim their boots at what is left of the duce, there will hardly be enough left for burial.

REJOICING IN COMO

BY P. E. BRIQUET
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

CHIASSO, Switzerland, April 29—The city of Como, where the life of the once powerful Italian duce, Benito Mussolini, was snapped short by an anti-fascist bullet in his back, rejoiced as Italian girls pelted bashful American armored doughboys with flowers. No one mentioned Mussolini's name. That would be an ill omen. Instead he was called "that man."

Conscious of Fate

Mussolini was aware of the fate that awaited him. At the moment of his capture, as his German guards threw up their hands, he cried out in horror: "What now! Is no one going to defend me," His last hours were spent in dejection. Yet he still believed in himself as another Napoleon. His last words, quoting from a famous Italian poem, were: "From death to the altar and from the altar to death," adding, "No tree reaches the sky."

Mussolini, when captured, was carrying a large sum in British pounds sterling and Swiss francs, which he had hoped to use if he succeeded in crossing the Swiss frontier.

His final comment was on the future of Europe: "Stalin is a great man—the greatest man indeed—but Roosevelt is really lucky. Europe may still be saved if the Anglo-Americans erect a barrier against the onrushing Russian hordes."

Seized by Laughing Youths

Meanwhile, the hunt for other fascist officials continued thruout the Como countryside. I saw the former fascist police commissioner, Saletta, pale with fear and manacled, in a convoy of 10 cars bristling with guns and laughing and shouting partisan youths. This was at 4:30 p. m. Fifteen minutes later he was court martialed and executed. Another fascist police official named Tamborini was captured near Chiasso, Switzerland, and nearly lynched. He was rushed to Como where he was put to death within a half hour.

Donna Rachelle, Mussolini's wife, was reported to be still hiding in Como.

Mussolini's body was not exhibited in Como as was announced early today but rushed to Milan where it was placed in public view.

YANKS CAPTURE GRAZIANI

BY STEPHEN G. BARBER

MILAN, April 29 (AP)—Rodolfo Graziani, Mussolini's war minister, is the prisoner of an American special force.

Graziani, who is being held prisoner by an American captain with a strong guard of partisans in a hotel, told me the story of how Mussolini and his cabinet decided to escape.

The butcher of Libyans, huddled in an armchair beside two aides and an Abyssinian servant, said Mussolini and his cabinet left Milan April 25 for Como. Mussolini headed the party.

"When we arrived at Como, Graziani said wearily, "we received word from him to proceed on to Menaggio. We arrived there on the 26th.

Graziani Stays Behind

"Mussolini, who arrived first, had retired to his room, leaving word he was not to be disturbed on any account.

"In his absence the cabinet held a meeting and decided to head for Switzerland, with Mussolini as head of the party.

"I said I could not go. I had a soldier's responsibility toward the Ligurian army group, which was composed of six divisions — three Italian and three German — which was still in combat. The whole cabinet left the following day."

The partisans filled in the story here. Mussolini and his group moved off toward the Swiss border the morning of April 27. Mussolini himself was spotted in a column of 30 German trucks by Brig. Scapini of the Guardia Finanza at the lakeside town of Dongo.

The remaining fascist big shots were picked up a little farther on. They were found to have large sums of gold and sterling in their possession.

While Il Duce and his cabinet went northward to their deaths, Graziani made tracks for Como.

"I went back to Cernbobio," continued Graziani, "where I lodged with the German SS chief, Col. Fettarn.

"From there several times I tried to contact Milan's partisan chief, Gen. Cardona, to offer my surrender. Despite the Germans constantly interfering with these attempts, I eventually made contact with Cardona thru the bishop of Milan. Cardona told me I must surrender to the Como partisans, but I was not able to contact these.

"Finally I was able to give myself up to the American liaison captain who brought me back to custody in Milan."

Pictorial Highlights in the Career of Benito Mussolini

DIES LIKE A BUFFOON

Benito Mussolini whose execution by Italian patriots was confirmed yesterday, was born on July 29, 1883, in the hamlet of Dovia, commune of Predappio, near Forli.

This 61 year old former peasant and one time country schoolmaster, who knew what it was to beg in the streets for his daily bread, reached heights of glory, but died a traitor's death—an international buffoon despised and hated. He had brought ruin to the Italy he had dreamed of building to a chief world power.

His father, Alessandro Mussolini, was the village blacksmith and innkeeper, a revolutionary and internationalist.

His mother was Rosa Maltoni, a quiet and somewhat delicate woman who taught the village school.

Severely Disciplined by Father

The boy aided his father in the smithy. Alessandro's discipline was severe and young Benito got many strappings.

Mussolini's restlessness and desire for a wider field for his activities, however, could not allow him to be content in this small town. After six months, during his first summer vacation, he determined to go to Switzerland.

From 1902 to 1905 he remained in Switzerland, wandering about from place to place and often suffering hunger.

After he had been expelled from Zurich on account of his radical views Mussolini spent some time in Germany, working as a stone mason. In Switzerland he had known the inside of many jails, being a prisoner seven times.

Serves in Italian Army

Expelled from Switzerland in 1905, he returned to Italy and did his military service in a bersaglieri regiment stationed in the citadel of Peschiera.

In 1910, when he was 27 years old, he started his first experiment in founding newspapers. The first one was a weekly sheet called Lotta di Classe, or Class Struggle.

As editor and manager of this small weekly paper he soon became a power in socialism and his influence was felt beyond the confines of his native province. Soon the pieces he wrote became quoted in the big Socialist daily, Avanti.

In December, 1912, Mussolini was called to be editor of Avanti.

Wounded in World War

Expelled from the Socialist party on Nov. 15, 1914, he abandoned Avanti and founded the Popolo d'Italia, devoted to Italian participation in the war. He ceaselessly urged intervention and when Italy finally declared war in May, 1915, Mussolini immediately took arms as a private in a bersaglieri regiment.

He was made a corporal and on Feb. 23, 1917, he was severely wounded by an exploding mortar in the trenches. This kept him in a hospital many weeks, and when he was relieved of further military duty in May, 1917, he resumed the editing of the Popolo d'Italia until he turned that task over to his brother Arnaldo.

Wins Seat in Parliament

Late in 1919 Mussolini was elected deputy and from this beginning he started to organize the Fascist party. It competed with the Popular party.

From 1919 to 1922, during three years of stress and storm that marked a dark period for Italy, Mussolini as a deputy and as editor of the Popolo d'Italia, organized his party and prepared for the Fascist revolution to oust those he considered incompetent and bothersome politicians from power.

This came about in October, 1922. Mussolini had summoned a convention at Naples on Oct. 24. On Oct. 27 he ordered mobilization of all the Fascist and Black Shirt forces. His forces took over all public offices, lines of communication and services of supply thruout Italy and concentrated on Rome, which they entered on the morning of Oct. 28, in the event which is known as the march on Rome.

Overthrows Facta Government

Mussolini called on the Facta government to resign and he telegraphed the king that he was disposed to form a government himself. The king refused to sign a decree of martial law presented to him by Premier Facta or to call out the army to put down Mussolini's movement. Instead he invited Mussolini to come to Rome to form a government.

Mussolini went to Rome from Milan on Oct. 30. He immediately dissolved parliament and then demobilized his Black Shirt forces. Installed in the Chigi palace, he formed a new government. For two years there was opposition in parliament and elsewhere.

Il Duce's dictatorial position was a precarious one in his own land. Numerous plots against him were uncovered and no less than six attempts were made on his life.

In 1929, after four years of negotiations, the so-called Roman question was solved between the Vatican and Italy thru the treaty of the Lateran, and at the same time a concordat was signed between Italy and the Vatican. This remains as one of the outstanding events and accomplishments of the Mussolini régime.

Begins Friendship with Hitler

During 1934 Mussolini started moving toward greater friendship with the new dictator of Germany, Adolf Hitler. The German Fuehrer and Il Duce met June 15 at Venice.

Italian troops clashed with an Ethiopian border patrol on Jan. 29, 1935, opening a new adventure in Mussolini's career. He started shipping troops to his African colonies.

Great Britain moved naval forces to the Mediterranean, but Mussolini was not cowed. His troops attacked Ethiopia in October, using planes, tanks, and infantry. The league of

DEATH OF MUSSOLINI AND HIS MISTRESS PLEASES ROMANS

ROME, April 29 (AP) — Rome received word of the execution of Benito Mussolini with grim satisfaction tonight.

A typical reaction was the comment by a taxi driver: "That's the only thing to do with murderers of thousands. They don't want any 45 day trials up there in the north."

Generally there appeared to be greater interest over the Milan radio report of the execution of Claretta Petacci — mistress of the former dictator in his last years.

Claretta was remembered here as a commoner who became overbearing when Mussolini's favors brought her into prominence.

"She was a symbol of fascist corruption," remarked an actress who had known her.

nations invoked economic sanctions against Italy, without serious effect on the war.

The conquest of Ethiopia was completed in the spring of 1936, just in time for a new enterprise by Mussolini. Riots in Spain signaled the beginning of a Fascist revolt in that country. Meanwhile Il Duce's friend, Hitler, had reoccupied the Rhineland. After active rebellion started in Spain in July, Mussolini and Hitler collaborated in supplying aid to the insurgents, while soviet Russia helped out the Loyalists.

Hitler seized Austria in March, 1938, while Mussolini looked on placidly.

The momentous year 1939 opened with diplomatic maneuvers. Prime Minister Chamberlain went to Rome, carrying his appeasement policy to the Mediterranean. He and Mussolini toasted each other in the Palazzo Venezia and discussed the problems of European peace, especially the use of Italian troops in the Spanish civil war. The talks came to nothing.

Hitler's armies seized Czech Bohemia and Moravia in March. Britain and France protested, but Mussolini gave the coup his blessing. He had a coup of his own in preparation. This was the seizure of Albania, which the Italian troops and planes carried out in April.

Strikes Into France

In the critical days of August, 1939, Mussolini was represented by the Italian press as making intensive efforts to save peace. Germany invaded Poland on Sept. 1.

When the German armies were streaming thru northern France and the nation's collapse was certain, Mussolini took Italy into the war on the side of Germany on June 10, 1940, striking into France.

On June 11 King Victor Emanuel proclaimed Mussolini supreme commander of all the Italian forces on land, sea, and in the air. After only four days of battle, in which Italian troops fought one skirmish on French soil just over the border, France asked for an armistice, which was signed by Il Duce on June 24, after another conference with Hitler at Brenner pass.

On Oct. 28 the Italian armies which had been massing in Albania struck suddenly at Greece. In the first surprise thrusts the Italians drove into Greece, but soon the tide turned and the Greeks were driving the Italians back into Albania with heavy losses.

On the African front, too, the Italians had initial successes, such as the drive into Egypt to Sidi Barrani and the occupation of all British Somaliland in August, 1940.

In December began a series of Italian reverses. British forces began pushing in from the sides of Italian East Africa. Starting from Sidi Barrani, other British forces pushed into Libya along the sea coast.

Mussolini shook up his Albanian command three times, and the Italian hero, Marshal Pietro Badoglio was among those to fall. Germany had remained on the sidelines of his Grecian adventure, but when the Greeks had all but conquered Albania the Germans sent a vast army into Greece which soon drove the British and Greeks from the country, to take refuge on the island of Crete.

On Feb. 23 the premier felt called upon to explain to his people the reason for the Italian defeats in Libya, and in another speech from his palace balcony he spoke of the "gray days" in Africa, saying "but that happens in every war," and scoffed at United States fears of an axis invasion.

Declares War on United States

Following the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor on Dec. 7, Mussolini declared war on the United States in a speech from his balcony, in which he said: "It is a privilege to fight with the Japanese."

These were long months in which heavy blows were dealt to Mussolini and Fascist Italy. In never ending succession came the defeat at El Alamein, the heavy bombings of Italian industrial cities, and the allied landings in North Africa, followed by the complete loss of the Italian empire in Africa.

His Last Appearance

Mussolini made his last public appearance on May 5, 1943, when the fate of Italian troops in Tunisia already was apparent. Then he told 100,000 Fascists that "Italy must and will return to Africa," and that traitors "of no matter what rank and race" would be shot. This, presumably, was a reference to the rumored desire of the royal house and Marshal Pietro Badoglio to overthrow him.

But no speech of the Duce could save him from the political end that fast was approaching as allied arms pushed their way thru Italy's outposts of Pantelleria, Lampedusa, and finally Sicily itself, after a sudden, three pronged invasion begun July 10.

On July 25, 1943, Mussolini was forced to resign, ending the Fascist era.

Tells of Escape

A voice purporting to be that of Mussolini went on the radio Sept. 19, 1943, to call upon Italians to take up arms again by the side of Germany and Japan. The Germans announced Mussolini now was heading a "Republican Fascist party."

In the same broadcast, "Mussolini" said he had been taken in custody after his fall to Gran Sasso in the Appenine mountains 80 miles east of Rome. There, he said, he was rescued by German paratroopers.

During his career as duce, Mussolini was reputed to have had numerous amorous affairs with women of high and low degree, some of whom later wrote books and magazine articles telling how he delighted to strut and pose before them in his sumptuous Roman palace, then abused and mistreated them and finally threw them aside for new charmers.

At the last, when Mussolini fled for his life before an uprising of patriots against his new government, he was reported to have lamented that "even Hitler" had bereft him and that he had no friends.

The life of Mussolini: 1910, as a school teacher; 1916, as a wounded World War I. soldier in a hospital; 1922, as new head of the Italian Fascist party government.

His later career: 1927, as premier and the modern Caesar; 1936, as he addressed troops at Aprilia, Italy, shortly before the fall of Ethiopian capital of Addis Ababa to his invading army; 1944, as an aging man, a fugitive from Italy, pictured at Hitler's headquarters in Germany.

FEW SCARS OF WAR FOUND BY AMERICANS IN CAPTURED GENOA

GENOA, April 29 (AP)—This great Mediterranean seaport is one of the few Italian cities on which the war has left only a comparatively superficial mark.

Freed by Italian partisans in a dramatic two-day uprising which resulted in the capture of a large part of the German garrison, the city of 600,000 was doing business as usual yesterday when doughboys drove in.

Because of the job done by the partisans in preventing the Germans from carrying out demolitions, the Americans found street cars running, electric, gas and water utilities in operation and even the regular telephone service.

The final garrison of 168 men surrendered to Capt. Donald Stevens, Urbana, Ill.

GEN. ALEXANDER CONGRATULATED BY CHURCHILL

LONDON, April 29 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill today congratulated Field Marshal Alexander on the "magnificently planned and executed operations of the 15th group of armies which are resulting in the complete destruction or capture of all enemy forces south of the Alps."

"That you and Gen. Clark are able to accomplish these tremendous and decisive results against a superior number of enemy divisions after you have made great sacrifices of whole armies for the western front is indeed another proof of your genius for war and the intimate brotherhood in arms between the British commonwealth and imperial forces and those of the United States," the prime minister said.

British, Americans, New Zealanders, South Africans, British Indians, Poles, Jews, Brazilians and strong forces of liberated Italians were all named by Churchill as participating.

ALLIES CAPTURE VENICE, MILAN; RACE TO PIAVE

ROME, April 29 (AP)—Allied troops took Venice, Milan, and Genoa today as German resistance in northern Italy disintegrated.

British 8th army troops captured romantic Venice, the city of canals, and sent New Zealanders streaking on 17 miles northeastward to the Piave river, the mouth of which is only 70 miles from the Yugoslav border.

The dash to the Piave put the 8th army in position to round the head of the Adriatic along a 74 mile highway to Trieste. Marshal Tito's Yugoslav troops recently were reported to have entered Fiume and at latest accounts were driving the last 43 miles north toward Trieste.

Led by Queen's Brigade

The 56th London division, led by the 169 Queen's brigade, made the initial entry into Venice.

The Piave, along which Italian troops beat back the Austrians and Germans in 1917 after the disastrous rout of Caporetto, was reached by the 2d New Zealand division, tough veterans of Egypt, Libya, Tunisia, and Sicily.

The United States 5th army entered Milan, where the bodies of Benito Mussolini and 17 fascist comrades were reported lying after being executed by a Partisan firing squad.

Other American forces dashed to the important port of Genoa which had been liberated two days before by Italian patriots.

Prisoner Bag Swells

The bag of prisoners taken by the allies swelled beyond the 100,000 mark, and resistance was feeble or nonexistent all along the fluid front.

The German 148th infantry division, including 6,000 officers and men, 1,000 vehicles, and 4,000 horses, surrendered to Brazilian troops, and it was announced that negotiations were in progress for the surrender of the Fascist Ligurian army of Marshal Rodolfo Graziani, whose capture was revealed yesterday by allied headquarters.

It was not immediately known to what stage the negotiations for the surrender of Graziani's fascist army had reached, but presumably he was negotiating directly with allied military leaders. He was captured by the Partisans and turned over to allied military authorities.

The impending surrender of the fascist troops together with the capitulation of the German infantry division clearly indicated that the enemy leaders have abandoned all hope of halting the allied surge in northern Italy.

Yanks Deep in Alps

United States 10th mountain division men were reported operating north of Lake Garda deep in the Alps. Both 5th and 8th army troops were across the Brenta river in Italy in force after sweeping thru the enemy's Adige river defenses.

The entrance of the 5th army units into Milan, Italy's largest city with a population of 1,115,000, followed announcements by the Partisans that they had taken over the great industrial and commercial center from the Germans.

[Celebrations on the liberation of northern Italy held in Rome's Piazza Santi Apostoli developed into a popular demonstration for the immediate abolition of the monarchy and the recontrol of Italy by the allies, said a Reuters dispatch from Rome. Communist and Action party speakers called for the establishment of a republic.]

The Germans' last two escape routes into Austria were sealed off yesterday with the fall of Brescia and Bergamo at the foot of the Alps.

Genoa Taken Over by 5th

Sweeping forward against disorganized resistance, the British 8th army captured Padna, 25 miles west of Venice, today, while the American 5th army seized Vicenza, 20 miles northwest of Padna.

Fifth army troops completed the occupation of Genoa and cleared the peninsula of Porta Fino.

FIRE RAZES BELLEVILLE PLANT

Belleville, Ill., April 29 (AP)—Fire destroyed the Twentieth Century Ceramic company plant today just 24 hours before production was to be resumed following a fire last December 24. Damage was estimated at $30,000.

POPE PIUS HOPES FOR A CHRISTIAN PEACE FOR ITALY

VATICAN CITY, April 29 (AP)—Pope Pius said today he hoped for a "just and serene peace which will take into consideration the Christian aspirations of Italy."

The pontiff spoke at a general audience for 5,000 members of the Italian Catholic Action organization.

The pope declared that the church supported the desires of the working class within limits which respect the rights of other classes.

AMERICAN VILLA TAKEN OVER FOR GESTAPO HORROR

Nazis Live in Comfort Near Torture Hole

BY P. E. BRIQUET
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

CHIASSO, Switzerland, April 29—An American owned villa on Lake Como, now in the hands of Italian Partisans, had been turned by the Gestapo into a chamber of horrors, I discovered today.

It is the Villa Cernobbio, belonging to Mr. and Mrs. Locatelli of 582 Park av., New York City. The villa was full of Partisans, bedecked with red or tricolor ribbons. Some looked fierce, others smiled, but all greeted this correspondent joyfully.

The buildings surround a lovely courtyard about 30 yards square, with a few palm trees and other plants. An inscription in German identifies it as Gestapo headquarters for western Italy.

A lower floor was divided into four cells, each about three by five yards, with a skylight in the top only about four by six inches, leaving the cells practically dark. A few boards served as beds.

30 Crowded Into Cell.

"As many as 30 prisoners would be thrown into this cell," my guide told me. "No one could sleep; they had to remain standing under unspeakable sanitary conditions. They were not allowed any toilet privileges, and men and women were herded together. But this isn't the worst."

I was shown a smaller, unlighted room, about a yard by a yard and a half square, in which as many as 20 people were crowded for punishment. They were always manacled, and could not lie down, sit, or even move. No fresh air entered unless the door was opened for kicks and lashes by the guards.

All the prisoners had to prepare their own meals of cabbage, carrots, possibly an occasional potato, and a little water. There was no heat. I also was shown the torture room, where prisoners were lashed, usually receiving 50 blows.

The Germans seized the American furniture in the villa and sent it to Germany, then brought in other things solen from the Italians.

Hotel Becomes Hospital

Nearby is the magnificent Villa D'Este, Swiss owned hotel which catered mostly to Americans and English before the war. Requisitioned by the Germans, it was turned into a military hospital. Everything in the hotel was stolen, then the Germans brought in hospital equipment taken from the Italians.

The German military director, a Maj. Lausch, showed me about. He was a former pilot, terribly burned about the face when he was brought down in his plane in Greece in 1942. The German wounded were attended by beautiful Italian girls, brought from Milan, some of them daughters of socially prominent families.

Outside, about 15 car loads of German prisoners were piling into white automobiles marked with red crosses. Very few of the Germans were wounded, and most seemed perfectly well. They all rushed to the Villa D'Este, which is the best place in town. It is guarded now by a few American soldiers and Italian Partisans.

Boy Soldiers Crippled

Farther up the road I encountered a number of German boys 13 and 14 years of age, wandering along, some of them one legged, swinging on crutches. These young soldiers also were prisoners. When I called to them, some answered in Hamburg accents, but in voices yet unchanged.

"How old are you?" I asked.

"Nineteen twenty-five," they shouted back mockingly in girlish voices.

Sniping is heard here and there—neo-Fascists fighting to the finish wherever they are caught.

Outside the town, the roads were full of joyous people. I met about 10 American armored cars between Como and Chiasso. The Americans are greeted like saviours. I watched girls throwing them flowers. Nearby stood a nice looking blond chap.

"Where from, Buddy?" I queried.

U.S. SHIPS SHELL DAVAO AS YANKS DRIVE UPON CITY

MANILA, April 30 [Monday]—(AP)—Light United States naval units, appearing for the first time in Davao Gulf, shelled Japanese shore installations at Davao Saturday as two infantry divisions drove toward the big Mindanao Island port by road.

An air field on the western shore of Davao Gulf at Padada, just south of Digos, was seized by Yanks of the 24th division and quickly put into operation.

United States infantrymen were within 25 road miles of Davao city by highway after a sweep across southern Mindanao Island from their Moro Gulf beachhead.

Gen. MacArthur made the announcement today in a bulletin reporting an additional 8,561 Japanese dead had been counted and 218 prisoners taken in the Philippines in the past week.

American casualties for the week were 517 killed and 1,365 wounded.

Illinoisans Take Baguio

On northern Luzon, where two Illinois infantry regiments, the 129th and 130th, captured the bitterly defended city of Baguio on Friday, American planes dropped a terrific load of 520 tons of bombs on the Cagayan valley, where the bulk of the enemy's Luzon garrison is believed concentrated.

Baguio, mile high summer capital of the commonwealth, fell to the 33d and 37th infantry divisions Friday. Most of the defense garrison of 20,000 troops had been annihilated. Remnants were being pursued into remote mountain positions.

Dash Up Mindanao

The newly landed 31st [Dixie] division which fought at Morotai in the East Indies, sped northward 17 miles up the center of Mindanao from the Kabacan road junction.

On southern Luzon, Camarines Norte province was reported cleared of Japanese. This area includes the important Paracale gold and iron mining district. Fleeing Japanese set the provincial capital of Daet afire.

Nearing Rangoon

CALCUTTA, India, April 29 (AP)—British armored spearheads driving toward Rangoon clashed today with Japanese at Pegu, at the head of the last rail escape route to the east, and 60 miles north of the Burma capital.

After a 56 mile dash yesterday, the column wheeled and struck toward the 12 mile eastward gap left between them and the sea at the Sittang river estuary, protected by reënforced Japanese.

Allied infantry was moving down the main Burma trunk road to catch up with the armor and seal off a large Japanese column isolated to the west. To the east units of the 15th and 33d Japanese armies already were fleeing toward the Thailand border pursued by British detachments.

TRIBUNE MAN IN AIR FORCE CITED FOR SILVER STAR

First Lt. Albert J. Goossens, 26, a Chicago Tribune printer on military leave, has been recommended for the silver star by the commanding officer of the 5th air force on Leyte, the army reported yesterday. He was cited for one of the army's three top awards for gallantry in action on a recent night mission over Formosa.

Already holder of the air medal and one cluster, Lt. Goossens flew his ship thru intense anti-aircraft fire, the recommendation said, to land his bombs dead on the target. He fought off seven attacking night fighters, and saw his engine No. 4 blaze until the propellor grew white hot and melted and spun clear of the ship. He brought his battered plane to a safe emergency landing altho the hydraulic system had been shot away and a landing wheel destroyed, the recommendation added.

His co-pilot, Lt. Charles D. Phippen of Elgin, Ore., and crew members have been recommended for the distinguished flying cross. Lt. Goossens' father, John Goossens, 1624 North Shore av., has been employed in The Tribune's composing room for 30 years. Lt. Goossens' wife, Lorraine, and young daughter live at 1361 Greenleaf av.

SULTAN OF SULU WANTS TO STAY UNDER U. S. RULE

Says He Can't Get Along with Filipinos

BY WALTER SIMMONS
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

JOLO CITY, Jolo Island, P. I., April 25 [Delayed]—The sultan of Sulu, in his first interview with an American newspaper correspondent since the war began, told the TRIBUNE today that "Philippine independence is the worst possible thing that can befall us."

Sultan Mohammed Jainal Abirin.

The aged spiritual ruler of the Sulu archipelago, the 30th in a line descended from Arabian born Sultan Sharif Hashim, pointed out that the Mohammedan Moros and Christian Filipinos had never been able to get along together.

"It will be no different after the war," he said. "The Filipinos do not understand us. They are religiously intolerant and want to deprive us of our old customs. There are 80,000 Moros here and only 10,000 Filipinos, yet their government appoints Filipinos exclusively to rule over us.

Calls Americans Friends

"We had a few little misunderstandings with you people," the old sultan said with a smile as he referred to the years of warfare waged by Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood early in the century. "But for the past 30 years we have understood and respected each other as good fighting men do. We have been friends. We would like to be independent of the Filipinos. But if we cannot be free we would like our friends, the Americans, to stay."

The sultan, whose name is Mohammed Jainal Abirin, spoke thru a Moro interpreter in his extensive bamboo built home near the sea shore at Bob-bon, Patikul, 14 miles east of Jolo City. The sultan does not know his age, but estimated it as "more than 65." He is thin, withered, and cannot weigh over 75 pounds.

He wore a white shirt and skin tight, sequinned trousers, rather reminiscent of long underwear. He was barefoot, and his head was shaved.

Beds in His Office

The interview was held in the sultan's combination bedroom and office. The walls were of brilliantly colored, woven rattan, and the ceiling of bright patterned silk. In one corner was a double iron bed, and elsewhere in the large room were three single iron beds and a pallet on the floor which would accommodate two. The sultan now has five wives; he has had as many as 10.

The number of his children also was given as "more than ten," of which five, including a three weeks' old son, are living.

"God gave you all to me to save me from the Japs," the old man suddenly cried. He also could have added that the Americans delivered him from the clutches of his bitter rival, Sultan Mohammed Amiral Ombra, who, altho not of the royal blood line, had asserted his claim to the office with good success.

Rival Aids Japs

Ombra was an obscure island datu [leader] before his marriage to Princess Dayang Dayang, 20 years his senior and the niece of the late Sultan Jamalul Kiram, who died childless. Dayang Dayang pushed her husband forward as the leading contender for the sultanate after old Kiram's death. He was widely recognized as sultan in Sululand, which includes North Borneo. Sultan Abirin had a smaller following, while the situation was further complicated by another claimant who was recognized in Borneo.

Young and progressive Sultan Ombra was the hope of his people in contentions with the Filipinos. But during the Japanese occupation he coöperated with the enemy by serving as governor. When the Americans came he was arrested by Moro guerrillas at Tawi Tawi to answer charges of being a collaborationist.

Sultan Abirin revealed that the Japanese had burned his palace.

"We met the Japs on the beaches with kris [Moro dagger] and barong [Moro knife] in January, 1942," he said. "Thirty-seven of my men were killed. We could not fight with knives against machine guns, but we waged a bloody war of attrition for three years."

DAY by DAY on the FARM by GAIL COMPTON

April 29, 1945

ICE rimmed ponds, watering troughs, and puddles last week as the temperature dropped to 27 degrees. This marked the third frost of the spring. It came well after the average date for the last killing frost, which is April 15. Little damage was done except to some of the flowers.

The cool weather of the preceding weeks had gone far toward hardening the trees, shrubs, and flowers. Consequently, they were able to stand the cold. On the coldest morning last week, however, everything was shriveled. The leaves on the trees were folded tightly together as if in an effort to get warm.

Lilacs Not Harmed

Fortunately the lilacs, which now are in full bloom, were not harmed. The bushes on the farm show the need of severe cutting. In past years, before the war, they always were cut heavily to provide blooms for city hospitals and other institutions on Lilac day. This cutting helped the shrubs to put out bigger and better flowers each year.

The nippy weather had an effect on the Angus steers. It made them so frisky they broke out of their pasture and went cavorting over the farm. It took several hours to round them up again.

Wild Mustard Wins

The men have about given up hope of getting rid of the wild mustard on the farm. Pulling by hand is the only practical method of destroying the weed, as it is particularly luxuriant in the hay fields where it cannot be grazed or cut in time to prevent it from going to seed. There are some chemicals which will kill the mustard, but the expense of applying them wholesale on a farm field makes it impractical to follow this method. The men have decided they might as well look on the mustard as a pretty wild flower and stop worrying about it.

The crows are becoming bold around the chicken farm but will soon change their ways. The flockmaster is getting a shotgun. The black robbers have been dropping down into the chicken runs and picking up grain. A few blasts of the shotgun will make them mend their manners quickly.

A reading of the thermometer inside the oak tree showed 38 degrees while the outside air registered 44 degrees.

The GARDEN by Ben Markland

THOUSANDS of gardeners have become educated in the last two years to the use of seed inoculating materials for treating snap bean, pea, and lima bean seeds before planting. For many years farmers have used bacterial inoculations on alfalfa and clover seed to increase yields, but few home gardeners have followed the practice.

The inoculation dust can be bought in many seed stores. The most common method of application consists of soaking the bean or pea seeds in a pan of water for about five minutes, then draining the water and sprinkling the dust over the moist seeds.

One veteran gardener who inoculated seeds of snap beans last year reports that the treated seeds produced a first picking seven days before untreated seeds from the same packet. He harvested three-fourths of a bushel of beans from a 30 foot row in a first picking of the treated row and only 1¼ bushels from 130 feet of an untreated row.

Evacuates Casualties

Medical Corps Capt. Harold M. Kaus, 5501 Congress st., Chicago, is busy aiding in the evacuation of casualties. During the first part of the campaign 1,400 were rushed to hospitals in the Marianas for treatment.

Pvt. Pete Russell, 386th infantry, 96th division, 4814 Crystal st., Chicago, is not partial to enemy mortar shells. He earned a rest after some of the hardest fighting on Okinawa after ducking them successfully.

Pvt. Sidney R. Straus, 1021 W. 61st st., Chicago, was fighting on Sawtooth ridge. One Japanese mortar hit five yards behind him. A second struck a bank three feet in front; a third hit a comrade in the leg. Straus came thru uninjured.

Staff Sgt. Lester J. Skeen, 297 W. Court st., Kankakee, has a disdain for Japanese knee mortars and says he can outrun them, altho one did put a hole in his pants.

Finds His Oilman

Pvt. Hugh Ross, 1326 S. Michigan av., Chicago, and Peter Skora, 3615 S. Wolcott av., were comrades thru the toughest part of the campaign. They were both surprised to learn that Skora used to deliver oil to the building where Ross had his office.

Pvt. James Puccini, Carlos City, Ind., and Pvt. Peter R. Koschnitzky, Sturgis, Mich., both were subject to near Japanese misses, but suffered no injury. Corp. David Pacini, 1903 Ohio st., Chicago, is pleased to announce that he dispatched three Japanese.

PLANE ARSENAL NEAR TOKYO HIT BY SUPER FORTS

Kyushu Air Fields Are Blasted Fifth Day

GUAM, April 30 [Monday]—(AP)—More than 100 Super Fortresses today attacked the Tachikawa army air arsenal, 24 miles west of Tokyo, while six small fleets of B-29s showered bombs on air fields at Kyushu, southernmost of the Japanese home islands.

Tachikawa arsenal, actually an air depot, borders Tachikawa air field and covers about 460 acres. It is near the Hitachi aircraft plant, which was blasted by B-29s last Tuesday in the last previous flight to Honshu Island.

The raids on Kyushu put that island under Super Fortress bomb sights for the fifth consecutive day. Air fields on Kyushu have been used by the enemy for mounting air strikes against the American invasion forces at Okinawa, 325 miles to the south.

[Twelve Jap aircraft and one Super Fortress were lost in Saturday's raids on six major enemy air bases on Kyushu, a 20th air force bulletin released in Washington said.]

11,413 Okinawa Casualties

Adm. Nimitz reported that ground action on Okinawa has cost 11,413 American casualties, including 1,847 killed, thru Friday's fighting. Japanese casualties until dawn Wednesday were 21,269 killed and 399 taken prisoner.

About 200 enemy aircraft made a series of attacks on United States forces off Okinawa thruout Saturday afternoon and night. Turned back in daylight hours, they succeeded in inflicting damage on some small vessels at night. Ships and planes destroyed 104 attackers.

Half of Air Field Taken

Doughboys of the 27th army division captured the northern half of Machinato air field, on the west coast of Okinawa. Seventh division infantry seized high ground near Kochi village on the east coast and continued southward.

General advances were reported along the southern front, where marine and carrier planes bombed and strafed ahead of advancing doughboys, adding to the destruction wrought by heavy ships' bombardment.

JAPS REPORTED 70 MILES FROM U. S. CHINA BASE

CHUNGKING China, April 29 (AP)—Heavy fighting continued today on the Hunan front, where the Chinese are attempting to check the Japanese drive on the American air base at Chihkiang, 250 miles southeast of Chungking. One enemy force was reported within 70 miles of the base.

The high command claimed tonight that Chinese troops encircled an enemy column 25 miles northwest of Paoching, principal springboard of the Japanese drive, and killed or wounded more than 300 of the invaders. Ten prisoners were reported captured.

AIR FLEET DROPS 600 TONS FOOD INTO HOLLAND

Germans Specify Routes After Ike's Warning

LONDON, April 29 (AP)—Their safety guaranteed and their routes specified by the Germans, R. A. F. Lancaster bombers today dropped more than 600 tons of food to Dutch civilians caught behind the German lines in the Netherlands.

The Germans insisted at first that they would shoot at the food carrying planes but Gen. Eisenhower warned that any one firing on the planes or stealing the food would be classed as a war criminal and would be punished accordingly.

After several days of negotiations—presumably thru the International Red Cross — the Germans agreed to safe passage, and specified routes and dropping places.

All Planes Return Safely

The planes were not molested, and all returned safely to their bases.

The supreme commander announced several days ago the allied intention to use airplanes to feed the 4,500,000 Dutch said to be starving behind German lines. The Germans refused to agree not to attack the mercy planes, insisting that the supplies should be sent only by ship, or overland.

Eisenhower, however, warned the Germans that "whoever attacks these low flying [supply] planes is committing a crime against humanity."

Dropped on Marked Fields

Balanced rations were dropped from the planes onto marked fields at The Hague, near-by Leiden, and at Rotterdam.

A returning pilot said "the Germans did not interfere with us."

The Dutch had been advised in advance to post observers at the dropping points and to plan a fair distribution of the food. Pilots said the Dutch waved and cheered as the planes dipped low and let go their mercy cargo.

Each bomber—the size of the fleet was not given but the air ministry said it flew over the area for 90 minutes—was equipped with special slings in which were 71 sacks containing meat, flour, yeast, cheese, margarine, sugar, peas, dried milk, powdered eggs, potato mash powder, chocolate, and tea.

Some craft carried as much as 6,280 pounds—enough for more than 3,000 persons a day.

Nazis Lampoon British and Reds on Fake Stamps

LISBON, Portugal, April 29 (AP)—A Portuguese postage stamp collector has purchased in Spain a collection of 20 German-printed postage stamps lampooning the British and Russians and bearing faked London postmarks, which the Nazis used for propaganda and revenue raising purposes. Some of the stamps, caricaturing British royal wedding commemorative issues, show King George and Premier Stalin as wedded at Teheran.

NAZIS SWALLOW RATION BAIT OF CHICAGOLANDER

3 Flyers Drop Like Manna on Captors

BY JAMES SLOAN
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, April 29—A Chicagoland aerial gunner who parachuted from a blazing Fortress into northern Germany helped take prisoner the German troops to whom he had been turned over by painting for them a graphic word picture of the succulent American rations, it was disclosed today.

After bailing out, Staff Sgt. Richard P. Charles, 19, of Matherville, Ill.; 2d Lt. George Lopez, 20, San Leandro, Cal., and Staff Sgt. John P. Lowe, 19, of Lincoln, Neb., were seized by Nazi civilian police. The police handed them over to German soldiers, who herded the airmen, together with 61 British prisoners, into trucks going west.

Go to Work on Guards

Soon the prisoners were forced to walk, resting only at night in the woods. On the second day, knowing the American lines could not be far away, the Yanks thru a British interpreter went to work on the guards. They drew for the Germans an appealing picture of American food, candy, and cigaret rations in contrast to the hard bread and thin potato soup prisoners and guards alike had been eating.

Finally the guards agreed to be taken prisoner by their prisoners. But they insisted they be allowed to keep their weapons until the allied lines were reached, in case they should encounter any SS [elite guard] men, in which event the "captors" were to pretend they were members of a work party.

See Officers Fleeing

No SS men were seen, but the flyers did observe several German officers fleeing from a battle near-by.

After the strange column had been swelled by several escaped French, Serbian, and Polish slave workers, the group reached an American armored unit, where the guards surrendered their guns.

Before Charles, Lopez, and Lowe left to return to their 8th air force base in England, they saw their former captors eating a meal of the promised American rations.

Two Illinoisans Among Freed Canadian Troops

OTTAWA, Ont., April 29 (AP)—Defense headquarters yesterday issued two lists naming officers and men of the Canadian army who have been liberated from German prison camps in the sweep of the allied armies thru the reich. Wallis, whose father, Rupert Wallis, lives at 5530 Lake Park av., Chicago.

VETERANS SEEK IDEAS ON DODGE SENIORITY PLAN

Members of the United Veterans of World War II., a group made up principally of veterans employed at the Dodge Chicago plant of the Chrysler corporation, agreed yesterday in a meeting at 6908 S. Western av. to let any veteran in the plant present his ideas on a proposed job seniority plan for veterans to a committee Wednesday afternoon in the organization's new headquarters at 934 W. 63d st.

The committee has been appointed by the veterans to study seniority plans proposed by the company and the United Automobile Workers union [CIO], which represents the bulk of the plant's employes, and to formulate one of its own incorporating the best features of each. The basic difference in the plans concerns whether the veteran should receive seniority for his time in service when hired, as the company wishes, or after a six month probation period advocated by the union.

R. J. Zelter, president of the veterans groups, said it is now accepting veterans for membership who are not workers at the Dodge plant and who are not members of the union. He said the organization will also stress a rehabilitation program for veterans.

Goethe, Schiller Remains Found in Nazi Storage

PARIS, April 29—Emil Ludwig, author, reported to allied officials today that he had found the remains of Goethe and Schiller which were taken by German police three months ago from their century old resting place in a Saxon prince's chapel in Weimar. The biographer of Goethe, who had been visiting conquered territory, said that he had discovered the two coffins of the venerated German writers among storage boxes in a warehouse at Jena.

U.S. PEACE TIME MIGHT URGED AT LAUNCHING OF AIR CARRIER F. D. R.

New York, April 29 (AP)—Navy Secretary Forrestal today called for peace time upkeep of the nation's military power as he added the super-carrier Franklin D. Roosevelt to the world's mightiest fleet.

Mrs. John H. Towers

Contrasting the navy's present might with its size in midwinter of 1942, Forrestal reported this growth in the fleet lineup: From 16 battleships to 23, from 38 cruisers to 67, from 173 destroyers to 386, from no destroyer escorts to 368, and from 112 submarines to 240. He said the carrier strength is 26 carriers and 65 escort carriers.

Forrestal said he wished to remind the nation the navy developed its tremendous power because it was free to build after its own experience and traditions. Mrs. Roosevelt attended the launching of the 45,000 ton carrier in the New York navy yard.

Mrs. John H. Towers, wife of Vice Adm. Towers, deputy commander-in-chief of the Pacific fleet, christened the new carrier.

11 Nazi Generals March in London—as Captives

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, April 29—Travelers at London's famous Euston railway station saw a strange sight today—11 German generals en route to a prisoner of war camp. Nine wore the uniform of a major general, and two were in civilian clothes. With an armed escort of grenadier guards they marched stiffly and erectly, with hard faces, taking little interest in their surroundings, from the closed bus which carried them to their compartments on a northbound train.

LATIN AMERICA BLOC RESISTS MOLOTOV PLAN

Demands Argentina Get Conference Seat

this afternoon at which it was decided to make a fight for increasing the membership of the security council from 11 to 14 members.

Revelations of what actually took place in the closed meeting of the steering committee of the heads of the 46 delegations on Friday portray an exciting drama revolving around the issue of good faith in international relations. It was the drama of a struggle between the United States, supported by the Latin-American countries and by Great Britain and the British dominions, on the one hand, as champions of the good faith that must animate the nations in the peace league, if it is to succeed, and on the other hand Russia and its satellites attempting to breach international engagements by trickery. In this struggle Russian Commissar Molotov went down in disastrous defeat. In the end not a single nation supported him. He was deserted by even the Russian satellites.

Stettinius Stiffens

The meeting began with the election of the four co-presidents of the conference representing the Big Four powers which was a compromise between the Americans and the Russians.

Then came the big controversial issues—the three votes for Russia and the Polish question. State Secretary Stettinius, who was presiding, had taken the precaution to bring with him Sen. Vandenberg [R., Mich.] and Sen. Connally [D., Tex.] of the American delegation to lend him moral support. It was noted at once that with the senators behind him the attitude of Stettinius was perceptibly stiffened. He stood up to Molotov thruout the session with devastating effect.

First came Molotov's motion to admit the two soviet republics to the league. He argued that they are autonomous, with their own presidents, foreign ministers, and foreign envoys, and that they make treaties independently of Moscow, just as the British dominions do independently of London. He did not mention the fact that these republics have diplomatic relations with none but adjoining countries such as Turkey.

No One Is Influenced

But nobody was influenced by these arguments. The sole consideration in the view of the American, British, Latin-American, and other delegations was that the three votes for Russia was a deal made by the Big Three at Yalta which must be carried out if good faith is to prevail in international relations.

The deal was distasteful to Vandenberg and some other members of the American delegation. Vandenberg had denounced it, when it leaked out, as a repudiation of the principle of "sovereign equality" of nations proclaimed by Dumbarton Oaks as the foundation stone of the proposed peace league. He regarded it a repudiation because the two soviet republics are not actually independent nations and their acceptance as such was merely a subterfuge for giving Russia three votes.

Likewise, Vandenberg objected to Mr. Roosevelt's reservation that if Russia got three votes the United States should have three. There would be no color of just claim for more than one vote for the indivisible United States. Three votes for America, Vandenberg held, would place America in the position of being purchased to support a steal. It would only compound a felony.

Mr. Roosevelt immediately dropped his reservation in order to still the clamor in the American delegation, heightened by apprehensions that Vandenberg, who is relied upon to put the new league thru the senate, might withdraw from the delegation. Thereupon Vandenberg consented to go along on the ground that the delegation was in good faith bound to honor the late President's engagement at Yalta to support three votes for Russia.

The Latin-American countries and some other small nations had come to San Francisco prepared to fight plural votes for Russia and they knew that they were numerous enough to defeat the proposition. At first the Washington administration had hoped that it would be delivered from the dilemma in which it had been placed by Mr. Roosevelt's deal at Yalta either by a withdrawal of the three vote proposal by Russia or by its defeat.

The American delegation decided, however, it would be a mistake to start off with the repudiation of the Yalta agreement by the conference.

So, making a virtue of a deal which they regretted had been made, the Americans set out to get it approved as a sacred pledge by the late President, not without an eye to using this demonstration of good faith to turn the tables on Molotov in the Polish dispute. They soon got pledges of unanimous support from the Latin-American nations whereupon the potential opposition of the small countries melted away.

Polish Issue Raised

To provide a record in writing that support was being given three votes for Russia solely because it was a deal made by Mr. Roosevelt, which must be carried out in good faith, President Truman was persuaded to send a letter to Mr. Stettinius, reminding the American delegates of the promise the late President made at Yalta and specifically directing the American delegation to support it.

Stettinius read Mr. Truman's letter to the steering committe and the three votes for Russia were unanimously approved.

The question of admitting the puppet Polish government set up by Moscow then came up apparently in an informal sort of way as if unpremeditated, tho few doubted it had been rehearsed in advance. Foreign Minister Masaryk of Czechoslovakia, a Russian satellite state, made a little speech in which he expressed regret that Poland was not represented in San Francisco. He wondered if something ought not to be done about it.

When Masaryk sat down, up jumped Molotov, saying that inasmuch as the matter had been brought up he would move the admission of the Warsaw government. Stettinius took vigorous issue with Molotov, asserting there was an agreement at Yalta to reorganize the Russian sponsored Warsaw government by the inclusion of noncommunist Polish Democrats. He charged Moscow with evading the letter and spirit of that agreement altho it was no less sacred than the agreement on the three votes for Russia which had just been honored because it was a sacred pledge made at Yalta. He pounded home the issue of good faith with a vigor that surprised the delegates and won support on every side outside of the Russian and satellite delegations. He was supported in the same vein by British Foreign Secretary Eden.

Russia Rebuked

One of the Latin-Americans sought to have Molotov's motion referred to the executive committee and Molotov, who perceived he was faced with defeat, was on his feet to withdraw his motion. But Stettinius, intent on visiting an unmistakable condemnation upon Russia for duplicity in the Polish negotiations and of emphasizing the necessity of good faith in the formation of the peace league, would not allow Molotov this avenue of retreat.

Stettinius gaveled Molotov's motion to seat the Warsaw government to a vote. Molotov's was the only hand raised in support of the motion.

EPIC OF HOUSTON BATTLE PRAISED IN WASHINGTON

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., April 29.—THE TRIBUNE'S exclusive story of last week on the gallant end of the U. S. S. Houston, which had been one of the great mysteries of the sea, was read with enthusiasm in the navy department and with deep interest in congress.

Walter Simmons, Tribune foreign correspondent, told in detail the last hours of the cruiser, which fought 100 Jap ships in company with a British cruiser and a Dutch destroyer and sank 22 of the enemy craft to balk invasion of Australia.

Navy men, from admirals to seamen, were delighted that Simmons had lifted the veil of secrecy which had shrouded the sinking of the vessel on Feb. 28, 1942, and hailed his story as one of the reportorial coupes of the war.

"THE TRIBUNE'S story should be reprinted by every paper in America," said Sen. Wheeler [D., Mont.]. "It is an epic of the American fighting spirit."

"The annals of war do not contain a more thrilling chapter than the last hours of the Houston," said Rep. Shafer [R., Mich.]. "THE TRIBUNE has done a great service."

AMERICAN SERBS ASK PARLEY FOR YUGOSLAV POLL

Petition Stettinius as Conference Official

BY FRANK HUGHES
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

San Francisco, Cal., April 29 — Three groups of American Serbs today petitioned State Secretary Stettinius, as chairman of the powerful security conference steering committee, to send an inter-allied commission to Yugoslavia, establish an interim government and temporary parliament, and conduct a free election.

Ivan Subasic [top] and Gen. Mihailovich

Yugoslavia is represented at the conference here by a three man delegation headed by Ivan Subasic, foreign minister of the partisan-communist government of Marshal Tito established by the Russians after soviet armies conquered Belgrade and "liberated" large areas of Yugoslavia.

The Serbs contend the communist-partisan government was imposed on Yugoslavia against the will of the people in a "power politics" deal thru which Great Britain and the United States deserted and betrayed the Serbian general, Draja Mihailovich, who has armies still holding out against both Partisans and Nazis deep in the mountains of Bosnia.

Signed by Gary Man

The petition was signed by Louis C. Christopher of Gary, Ind., as general chairman representing the Serbian Eastern Orthodox diocese for the United States and Canada, the Serb national federation, and the American-Serbian Cultural Association of America.

"The present affairs in Yugoslavia are tyrannically administered by agencies of Marshal Josef [Tito] Bros, not in conformity with democratic principles nor with the will of the democratic Serbian people," the petition said.

"The present administration is partisan—one party rule. If it is permitted to continue to function in its present state only those in the good graces of Marshal Tito will be allowed to enter into the mock democratic government."

Assails "Terror" Court

The petition said Marshal Tito's "terroristic government" has set up a court for the extermination of all political enemies and "intellectuals" of the Serbian nation. Tito is a Croat and the differences between the approximately 8 million Serbs and 3 million Croats in Yugoslavia stem from a historic series of disputes both nationalistic and religious. The Serbs charge the Croats, led by the fascist Ustachi, exterminated between 800,000 and 1 million defenseless Serb women, children, and old men as a side issue to the German occupation of Yugoslavia.

The petition called upon Stettinius and the conference to invoke the guarantees of freedom in the Atlantic charter and make good on "sincerely spoken and given pledges that their freedom will be restored."

Molotov, Balkan Envoys Greeted at Stanford U.

Palo Alto, Cal., April 29 (AP)—Soviet Foreign Commissar Molotov and other Russian, Yugoslavian, and Czechoslovakian delegates to the security conference made a visit to Stanford university today. The "Internationale" was being played on the Carillon of the Hoover war memorial when the party drove onto the campus.

Harry Size, 5, admiring the lilac display yesterday in Lombard.

An estimated 12,500 persons yesterday took advantage of mild weather and sunshine to view the 400 varieties in bloom in Lilacia park in Lombard. L. W. Hagerman, superintendent, said that the display, the second largest varietal collection in the world, has been retarded by cool weather and should be attractive for several more days.

The park, covering six and a half acres, also is landscaped with 70,000 tulips. The tract, donated decades ago by the late Col. William R. Plum, a pioneer Lombard resident, is operated by the village of Lombard, and was landscaped in 1929. Plum's old homestead, into which he moved in 1867, now is a library within the Lilacia park acreage.

Crabapple and thornapple trees are in profuse blossom in the forest preserves. Both types are found thruout the 36,600 acres of wooded land. They will remain in bloom another week.

SLAV CONGRESS URGES UNITY OF FACTIONS IN U. S.

Unity of all Slavic groups within the United States in support of a permanent peace was urged yesterday at the midwest meeting of the American Slav congress at 333 S. Ashland blvd., by George Pirinsky of New York, national executive secretary of the congress. The congress adopted a resolution in support of the San Francisco peace conference.

Mayor Kelly told the group that after the war "this country will be the top country of the world and when it is we will have charity." He predicted success for the peace conference and said that "selfishness is the cause of all war and many aching hearts."

The 400 delegates from Illinois, Missouri, Wisconsin, and Indiana who attended the congress held a memorial service for the late President Roosevelt last night.

URGE DELEGATES BE ALLOWED TO SIGN DOCUMENTS

BY EUGENE GRIFFIN
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

San Francisco, Cal., April 29 — The credentials committee of the security conference has discovered that only 26 of the 46 nations represented here have given their delegations power to sign documents, one of its members said today, and it will recommend to the conference that all nations give their representatives this authority so that the global parley will have some "meaning."

The Russian delegation headed by Foreign Commissar Molotov is among those which does not have power to sign any agreements. The United States, Britain, China, and a number of Latin American nations have delegated signatory power to their representatives.

U. S. Senate Must Ratify

In the case of the United States any treaty would have to be ratified by the senate.

The credentials committee has completed its work, the member said, and is waiting a signal from the plenary session to present its report.

The report was scheduled on the order of the day yesterday, but apparently a switch was made at the last minute and it was not called for. It may be given at the plenary session tomorrow afternoon.

The committee has been examining two sets of credentials, one accrediting the presence of the powers at the conference, and the other accrediting delegations with the right to sign conference documents.

Step Is Overlooked

The committee member said some nations apparently overlooked this latter step. The conference did not submit any "set form" to the nations for this type of accreditation, he said.

The question of accrediting the Ukrainian and White Russian delegations, which the conference voted to seat last Friday, did not come up before the credentials committee, the member said, because these nations first will have to be invited to appear before the plenary session, after which their credentials and the credentials of their delegations will be examined.

BRITISH CREDIT LEND-LEASE FOR THEIR SUCCESS

BY JAMES SLOAN
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, April 29—Britain today revealed that American lend-lease equipment not only has made possible the swift British drive in northern Germany but also has saved thousand of lives during the Rhine crossings.

The British 21st army group used at least 1,400 American made amphibious craft—buffaloes, weasels and ducks—to cross the Rhine. Four hundred buffaloes, capable of transporting a Bren gun carrier, spearheaded the crossing. Four regiments were equipped with them. It was this equipment, the British said, which prevented a major battle along the river since it made possible a speedy build up of forces on the east bank.

Aided in Holland, Too

Buffaloes also have done yeoman service in the flooded Reichswald, in Holland where they often fought "naval battles" again isolated Nazi machine gun posts, and along the Scheldt estuary in the fight to open the port of Antwerp. They also facilitated the British crossing of every stream and canal between the Rhine and the Elbe.

The British also employed 500 ducks. This vehicle, which played a major role in the Normandy campaign, is a six wheeled craft shaped like a row boat and equipped with a propeller.

Trucks Carry Big Load

The British credited another piece of American equipment, the Diamond T transporter, with being the largest single factor in the swift deployment of armored vehicles over the plains of northern Germany, hundreds of these vehicles swiftly bringing reserve tanks and other armored equipment to advance columns.

During eight days preceding the Rhine crossing on March 24, Diamond T transporters moved all the heavy material an average distance of 100 miles to the jump-off positions.

The British also disclosed that two-thirds of the armored divisions of the 21st army group, plus several independent armored brigades, were equipped with lend-leased Sherman tanks, which were called "the mainstay of all allied armor."

IT WAS on May 1, 1908, that my health club first opened its doors. With each year, as that anniversary date rolls around, I take increasing pleasure in reviewing the longer time that we—my staff and I—have served an ever-increasing number of our fellow Chicagoans.

There has been hard work and worry—yes, lots of it—but there has been fun and grand companionship to more than compensate. The development of a dream into a solid and successful institution that has conditioned some 50,000 Chicagoans is, of itself, a full and satisfying reward.

Our work goes on. Each new year brings us reborn enthusiasm, new friends, the constant improvement of old and the development of new technique and equipment the better to serve our patrons.

SALARIES AND INCENTIVES

Thomas Furlong, THE TRIBUNE's financial editor, in one of his articles on taxation and national financing, considered the situation of the high salaried man under the present tax rates. When the administration undertook to limit salaries to $25,000 it was estimated that the person affected would have to earn $64,500 in order to keep the amount he was allowed. Nearly two-thirds of his time he was working for Mr. Morgenthau. The estimate was not excessive.

The highest paid man in one of the great railroad systems was paid $110,500 and took home $21,700. That still would be a lot of money to a lot of people, but it does not represent what the executive's employer, the corporation, thinks he is worth. And, as Mr. Furlong pointed out, it isn't a very good thing for the man so employed. He might be better off if he took less money and earned a form of future security.

That outstanding ability should not be begrudged exceptional rewards has been accepted as rational in our society. Men do not uniformly respond to just one incentive, that of money, but it is as nearly universal as any incentive could be. Rewards have been regarded as desirable in all forms of society. In Plato's the brave were to get the long chines of beef. In Stalin's the best worker will get the better living quarters and probably the long chines. The exceptional man is not supposed to be given something he didn't earn, but to receive a share of the profits he created.

Our theories of drastic taxation which are a part of the new conception of the state knock the money incentive on the head. Taxation is now regarded as a means to social ends. It is not merely to provide revenue for the administrative purposes of government, as we used to understand them, but is to enable the state to guarantee employment, housing, food, medical care, recreation, and security, in addition to education and public order.

Because it is assumed that the new order will make such guaranties to all citizens it is in consequence assumed that taxation will never be lowered to its pre-war level and that a large public debt will be used as an instrument of public benefit. The improvisors of the new order are sufficiently wise politically to know that the wider they spread the costs of the planned society the more they endanger themselves, so long as people can vote. Their natural course is thus indicated. Their taxes will hit the larger sums and the larger accumulations with which competitive society operates. The incentive and the means for free enterprise will tend to diminish, the need for government expenditure and control to increase.

Do we need to be reminded that the power to tax is the power to destroy?

TAXES AND RENTS

Ald. Lindell the other day issued an interesting statement about housing in Chicago. The poorest people in the city, he said, those witb incomes of $1,200 a year or less, can't afford to pay more than $6.85 a room per month and for them the solution must be subsidized housing. As incomes rise, less and less subsidy is needed. The subsidies Mr. Lindell is thinking of are provided both by the local and the national governments, chiefly in the form of tax exemptions. The federal government makes it easy to borrow money at low interest for a public housing project by exempting from federal income tax the interest paid on the mortgage. The local governments' subsidy takes the form of waiving 90 or 95 per cent of general taxes on public housing projects. These exemptions are reflected in lowered rents to those few who are fortunate enough to be accepted as tenants.

What all this means is that some people will pay not only their own rent but part of somebody else's rent as well; and many of those who will contribute to the subsidies will be no better off than those who benefit from them.

Mr. Lindell assumes that there is no way other than by subsidies to reduce the costs of housing for people of small and moderate means. Obviously that isn't so. Another way would be to reduce building costs and building operating costs. Very large savings could be effected if the building code merely specified standards of strength, sanitation, fire resistance, etc., and left it to the ingenuity of architects, builders, and building supply firms to meet the specifications. Costs could be very considerably lowered if certain materials were not required to be used and other materials, just as strong, as safe, and as sanitary but cheaper, were not blacklisted.

The large item of labor cost in building could also be reduced. This need not be done, and in our opinion, should not be done by lowering the rates of pay so much as by persuading the unions to relax their restrictions on the individual workman's output. Everybody in the building business knows that bricklayers, for example, could accomplish far more in a day than they now do, without suffering from overstrain. It is said that if union rules permitted assembly of plumbing and heating units in the shop instead of on the job, other large savings could be effected. Quite probably this is true. At any rate, there is no sense in talking about subsidies as the only means of getting rents down as long as everything else which might be done to reduce costs has not been attempted.

It is hardly necessary to add that greater economy in government would reduce taxes and rents. It is easier to vote a subsidy, apparently, than to disturb vested interests in inefficiency.

THEY LEARN NOTHING

The French delegates to San Francisco have received ironclad instructions to oppose any suggestion of a changed status for colonies. French opposition to the suggestion, the Associated Press reports from Paris, is largely occasioned by the present status of French Indo-China.

The De Gaulle government has made it clear that it will insist upon restoration of French sovereignty and resumption of French exploitation of the native population in that area. The Vichy government opened the door to Japanese attacks on the western nations' possessions in the Pacific three months before Pearl Harbor, when it permitted the Japs to enter Indo-China and make it a base for their later attacks on Malaya and the Netherlands Indies.

The Japanese later extinguished French sovereignty by incorporating the country in their so-called co-prosperity sphere. This was done without the French, who at the time were a nominally sovereign power, raising a hand in defense of their colonies. Indo-China thus, technically, was enemy territory at the outbreak of the Pacific war, differing in this respect from British and Dutch territories, which were taken by force of Japanese arms.

The French behavior is profoundly shocking to America. The French homeland has just been rescued from foreign rule by American armies. It is questionable whether France can remain free without outside assistance. Far from having learned any lessons of freedom from this experience, the De Gaulle government announces its intention of picking up the imperialist pattern as if nothing had happened since 1939, and of imposing rule by force on another people. Certainly France should not expect any assistance from the United States in this reimposition of tyranny.

THE AMERICAN TEAM.

The grant at San Francisco of three votes to soviet Russia tho the United States gets only one can be justified on grounds of expediency but not on principle. The ready acceptance of this arrangement by our delegation is, therefore, ominous, but it is hardly unexpected. These delegates were chosen with a view to just such behavior.

At the head of the delegation is Mr. Stettinius, the son of the J. P. Morgan partner who actively defended his bank's interest in international finance during and after the last war. The younger Stettinius moved from the University of Virginia to General Motors to United States Steel where, at 38, he became chairman of the board. Mr. Stettinius thus was born to high finance and has spent most of his mature life in it. It would be remarkable, indeed, if these influences did not now control his thought and if he did not view the problems of the conference from the viewpoint of high finance and what it can hope to get out of the deliberations.

Among Mr. Stettinius' colleagues is Rep. Eaton of New Jersey, aged 78. He was born and educated in Nova Scotia, and came to this country to pursue his theological studies. He served for eight years as pastor of the elder Rockefeller's church in Cleveland. There isn't much in that record to suggest that he will cause Mr. Stettinius any inconvenience.

Comdr. Stassen, another of our delegates, is the son of immigrant parents, Czech and German, but unlike the vast majority of second generation Americans, he lacks faith in America's ability to guard her independence, and not even his recent experience in the navy has changed his thinking in this particular. He may even question the desirability of independence. There is little reason to expect him to take the lead in protecting America from those who would use it for their own selfish purposes.

Then there is Dean Virginia Gildersleeve of Barnard college who may look forward to closing her distinguished career in one of the welfare departments to be established in the proposed new league of nations. If she doesn't have these ambitions for herself, she undoubtedly represents the viewpoint of many younger women who do look forward to such careers.

Rep. Bloom of New York, at 78, is a delegate by virtue of his chairmanship of the house foreign relations committee. The people of the nation have pinned their hopes on Sen. Connally of Texas and Sen. Vandenberg of Michigan. Sen. Connally has committed himself to the preservation of American naval, air, and army power. Sen. Vandenberg doubtless will support him. Americans hope they will be able to sway at least two more of the delegation to insist upon American security.

All in all, it looks as if America is going to take a thoro trimming at San Francisco.

THE ATROCITY INQUIRY.

At last reports, the congressional delegations which went abroad to make a first hand investigation of the German prisor and concentration camps were about to return to this country. It remains to be seen what good, if any, has been served by this trip. It is clear, however, that the tourists saw not a 10th part of the horrors in Germany that had already been seen and reported in detail to the American people by competent newspaper men.

There is a field in Europe into which the American reporters have not been allowed to penetrate, which does, therefore, need investigation. If the senators made any effort to undertake this work they were unsuccessful. Muffled cries of distress have arisen from countries occupied by Russia—the Baltic states, Poland, Hungary, Romania, Yugoslavia—but nobody outside these areas knows what has been going on there. Here was a great opportunity for the congressmen to enlighten the world, but either they didn't see it or they muffed it.

HISTORIC BACKGROUND

The torrent of words for print that pours out of the San Francisco conference has not as yet carried a description of the scene, we think, but has merely identified it as "the opera house." Its formal title is the War Memorial Municipal Opera house, and it is a part of the impressive group of modern buildings called the Civic Center, which forms a striking architectural feature of midtown San Francisco.

* * *

We understand that this is the only municipally built and owned opera house in the United States. It is a granite structure, in modified Italian Renaissance style, seating 3,000. It was erected with its twin, the Veterans' War Memorial, in 1932. The latter, dedicated to the memory of San Franciscans killed in World War I., contains headquarters for numerous veterans' associations, a museum of war relics, and the galleries of the San Francisco Art association.

* * *

The other buildings of this Civic Center are: Federal [newest, 1936], city hall, public library, state, containing government offices and the law school of the University of California; public health, and municipal auditorium, whose main hall seats 10,000.

* * *

The climate of San Francisco makes alluring reading in weather bureau statistics: Annual mean temperature, 56; summer mean, less than 60; winter mean, 51; lowest recorded, 27. But we have heard reformed San Franciscans say that topcoats are useful all the year round because of evening fogs and chilly sea breezes, and have known one Chicagoan exiled there to call the climate "disagreeable." This evidence causes us to suspect that the Arabian delegates will feel at home in their burnooses.

WHY ASK THAT?

Weeping would have been easy, pity made me wince
And stammered, "It's been a long time since. . . ."

The stars, the ribbons on your breast were cause for us
To ask wisely, "Pacific theater?"
(O, yes, we're well acquainted with the words
Saipan, Solomons, Marshalls, Hebrides; we give
A knowing lift of eyebrows when we question.)
You nodded shortly and sat down,
Still lost, shy, still gazing about the room
With an embarrassed air.
We persisted, "The stars, they're major battles?"
Softly you answered, apologetically,
"Major battles? I don't know. Why do you
People at home always ask that?
What is a minor battle? If one man dies?
If ten men die? Or a hundred?"

Our women-faces pinkened, white petals of fingers
Closed tightly over fragile stems of glasses,
And we were silent. little girl

"Boys and Girls Together"

Well do I remember the old Orpheon theater. At the turn of the century John Kelley, then of the Record-Herald; Bill Stott of THE TRIBUNE, Charlie Carpenter of the Chronicle, and myself of the Inter Ocean, all police reporters, saw many a performance there. Jack Root, then in his prime as a fighter, used to entertain us by shooting buckshot from his mouth with a toothpick. He had accurate aim and seldom missed his target. The victim would wheel about and often start an argument that called for the attention of the ushers.

In those days Dave Lewinsohn, who was formerly a policeman at the detective bureau in the old city hall, operated a saloon on the ground floor of the theater, where the chorus girls gathered after the show, and they often indulged in some hot crap games with the police reporters. They were engaged in such a contest one night when a 4-11 fire was burning at Ward's coal docks, and none of the city editors could locate them.

Yes, them were the days. Jimmy Murphy

SPRING IN THE COULEE

The silver slant of warm spring rain
Is drenching the cock on the weather vane;
There's a fragrant smell from wet plum trees
Whose blossoms hide their pale green leaves.
Here huddled sheep all meekly wait
For the farmer's boy at the pasture gate.
Up the coulee now the pale mists creep
And the little brook runs wide and deep.
Within the house an old clock booms,
There's a stirring about in upper rooms—
Without, within, life throbs again
To the soothing rhythm of the rain;
So Spring comes gently—no loud alarms—
To the peaceful little coulee farms.

[The Friend of the Yanks answers questions of service men, veterans, and their dependents. Replies will be given by mail if stamped envelope is sent. Personal advice may be obtained from The Tribune's veterans' bureau, 1 So. Dearborn st., or by phone, Superior 0200.]

A. N. asks: "Can a man to whom the expert infantry man or combat infantry man badge has been awarded be denied the right to wear this badge and receive the extra pay after returning to the United States for hospitalization?"

Only a commander authorized to make the award may withdraw the right to wear the badge from an infantry man and then only if the man incapacitates himself for performance of his duty thru misconduct or fails to perform satisfactorily in action against the enemy. Infantry man badges and the additional pay continue so long as the holders are members of the combat ground forces and do not cease when the holder is transferred to a hospital in line of duty.

J. L. asks: "If a veteran without dependents is receiving compensation for 70 per cent disability, will his pension be cut if he enters a veterans' hospital for treatment?"

When hospital treatment is being provided to a single man without dependents, he may not receive more than $20 a month compensation.

R. O. writes: "Can a discharged veteran go to a hospital of the veterans' administration for treatment at any time?"

Emergency hospitalization is granted under certain conditions, but because of the overcrowded conditions of all veterans' hospitals, every one should make application for admittance by telephone or telegraph before going to the hospital.

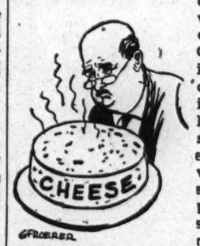
BACTERIA MAY ENJOY OUR FOOD

THE hazard of food poisoning is being controled gradually by proper sanitary precautions. Much remains to be done, for, in spite of our ever increasing knowledge, the disorder is likely to crop up when least expected. Carelessness in handling or preserving is usually responsible. With epidemics involving several hundred persons, the situation may become desperate. The army and navy are aware of this possibility and make unlimited efforts toward prevention.



In the majority of instances, the food is contaminated by some organism. The chief sources of trouble are milk, eggs, and meat. Edibles which are prepared several hours before they are to be consumed, and allowed to stand in a warm environment, issue an invitation to bacteria to grow and multiply. For this reason, outbreaks of this kind are associated with fraternity spreads, church picnics, and banquets.

Taste, odor, or appearance cannot be relied upon as the judge of spoilage. Some of our cheeses may not look or smell too good but they are regarded as delicious and nutritious. On the other hand, canned products that show evidence of fermentation should not be used. Fruits and vegetables "put up" by the housewife are more risky than the commercial variety. This is due to imperfect sterilization and an insanitary technique at home.

A common culprit is the Salmonella germ, which favors meat especially when included in pies, sausage, hamburger, or salads. Several hours after eating the noxious substance, chills and fever develop. This is followed by signs of intestinal irritation—nausea, vomiting, cramping, and diarrhea. Weakness is marked, depending upon the amount of fluid lost. The victim feels faint and prostrated.

Emergencies such as this demand expert medical management. Absolute bed rest and warmth are essential. Vomiting is encouraged if it is not already present. This helps to eliminate the injurious material. Later, large quantities of warm fluids are administered, including weak tea or barley or albumen water. Stimulants may be necessary to forestall collapse. If diarrhea is profuse, bismuth, pectin, or kaolin often give relief. As a rule, the episode terminates within two or three days.

A more serious type is called "botulism." The offending germ finds its way into canned vegetables or meat and gives off a powerful toxin which is absorbed into the body. Dizziness, visual disturbances, muscle weakness, and inability to coördinate usually appear abruptly.

Some plants, berries, and fungi contain virulent poisons and must never be ingested. Of the 70 species of the lowly mushroom, two are considered harmful. One contains a pernicious chemical, called "muscarine," which brings on blurring of vision, violent abdominal cramps, and shock. The other [toadstool] contains a deadly amine capable of turning the skin blue and leading to unconsciousness within 24 hours.

All stomach disturbances must not be blamed on spoiled or unwholesome meals. Some are sensitive to certain articles. Unripe fruits, such as the green apple, or undercooked vegetables frequently cause upsets. Individuals with disorders of the gastric pouch, which are aggravated by eating, should not jump to the conclusion that they are poisoned.

EAR INFLAMMATION

H. V. J. writes: So many men are rejected for chronic otitis media, tho they never remember suffering from ear trouble. Does this condition usually start in infancy?

REPLY

Yes, and as a result, most sufferers do not recall the event. With rupture of the eardrum and occasional drainage, symptoms may be so slight that little if any attention is paid to the malady until a thoro examination reveals the true nature of the condition.

REDDENED HANDS

J. S. writes: Normally my hands are quite red but after extended lowering, they become even redder and puffy. Is this natural? I am 54 years old.

REPLY

This phenomenon can be normal but, when exaggerated, may indicate a disorder of the circulation.

PAST HISTORY

E. W. T. writes: I was reading in "Forever Amber" about the devastating London plague. Does this disease exist today?

REPLY

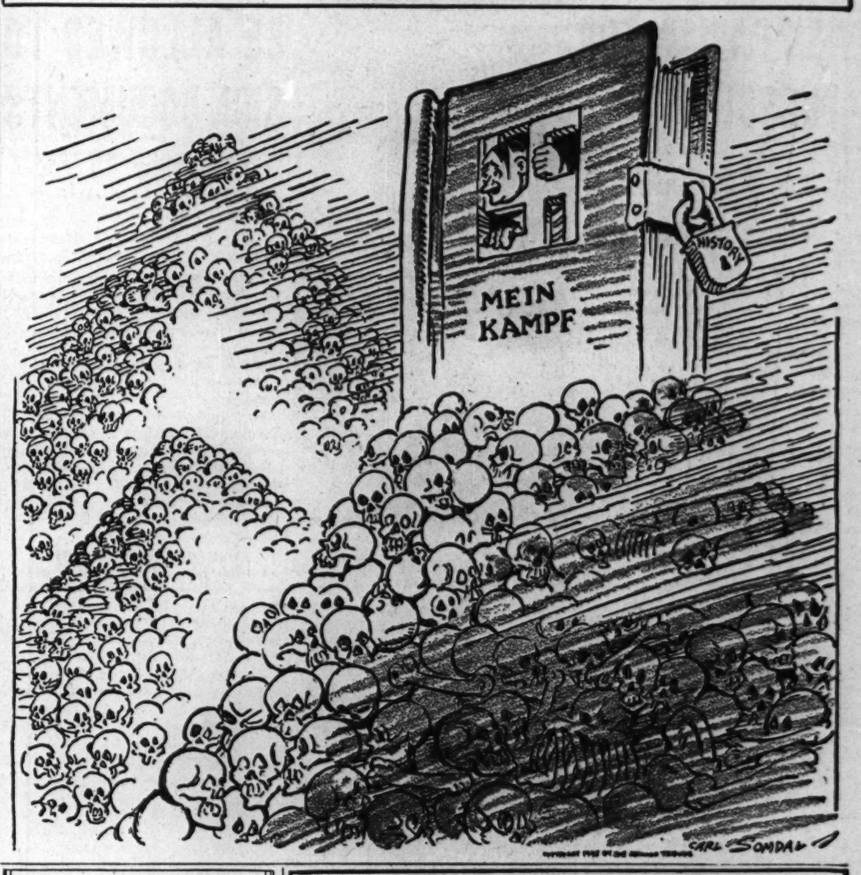
CRIME STORY



Front Views & Profiles

By MARCIA WINN

Neatest Trick of the War

News item: "Lt. Gen. Kurt Dittmar, German radio analyst and the 'voice' of the German military hierarchy, surrendered today to Sgt. Thomas Diesendorfer of Pittsfield, Ill., after crossing the Elbe river in a row boat with his 16 year old son under a silk pocket handkerchief. . . ."

Probably small for his age.

Desperation

Words of a lady who had just been tumbled out of a bus:

"What shall we do with Hitler? I don't care what we do with Hitler. That's not important. What shall we do with fat women who stand in the doors of buses? That's what is important. They should be popped off into a large vat and reduced to soap."

Of Men and Medals

Not long ago the United States News made a survey of decorations announced by the army and navy from Jan. 1, 1942, thru the end of February, 1945. It found that of the 7,200,000 enlisted men in the army, 22,147, or one out of every 323, had received medals, but that out of 800,000 officers, 18,212, or one out of every 44, had received one. The score: 7½ to 1.

The navy figures were even more disparate. Of 3,440,557 enlisted men, 3,177, or one out of every 1,083, had been decorated. Of 350,348 officers, 6,948, or one out of every 51, had been. Score: 21 to 1.

The survey was recalled the other day in reading a letter from an army sergeant [veteran of Africa, Sicily, southern France, and now Germany] to his wife. He has two brothers. One, J., is a private in the 1st army. The other, K., is an officer in the navy. He had just learned that K. had received an important award:

"You're quite right in saying you know I am proud of him, but I'd be just as proud of him if he had no decorations and were just a plain sailor with no rating at all. I'm as proud of J. as I am of K., for instance. I wouldn't lessen K.'s glamor for a second, but it is only fair to tell you [altho I suppose you are quite aware of it] that decorations naturally gravitate toward the captain of a ship or the commander of a body of men in the army, etc. This is elementary, and I am sure you know it. I mention all this because there are several millions like J., who do a dirty, thankless job and have nothing to show for it when they come out unless it is a Purple Heart pinned on an empty sleeve. I could be talking about myself, of course, but I am not. The first reason is that I am not doing a dirty, thankless job, and the second is that I know if I had every opportunity to acquire all the decorations extant, and got none, it wouldn't make any difference to you. I know you wouldn't care if I don't even come home wearing a campaign ribbon."

Bad Taste Dept.

A tired realist who lives in Hollywood, an area he properly lists as Double Dubuque, Cal., passes on a stirring headline that appeared in a Los Angeles paper a few weeks ago while thousands of men died on the various roads to Berlin. The headline, which appeared over a long article, shrieked: "Warner Brothers Race Red Army for Berlin." The article went something like this:

"Several months ago Josef Stalin, marshal of all the Russias, declared his armies would be in Berlin before spring was done.

"What effect did this momentous announcement have on Col. Jack Warner, commander of all Warner Brothers enterprises?

"Col. Warner scratched his busy noggin, ruminated, banged on the desk, and vowed: 'We must get there first. But,' he speculated, 'when Warner Brothers gets there first, what will we be doing there? Ah, I have it! They'll need a hotel, won't they? We'll build a hotel—"Hotel Berlin."'

"Then and there, several months ago, was launched the notable film project which this week beat the Red armies to the tape, for today 'Hotel Berlin' is ready for the Los Angeles screens. . . ." Etc., etc., ad nauseam.

The Warner ads, the day before the opening, simpered: "Ach, those timely Warner Brothers!"

SETUP FOR THE NEXT DICTATOR

Mattoon, Ill., April 25—It seems to me that even your great paper has overlooked one vital fact in connection with the world conference that opens today in San Francisco.

Many people hope this conference will avoid another great war. If they can organize a plan so perfect that it will cause peace in the next 100 years, with each and every nation having a square deal for itself—that will be fine.

But this plan worked out on the west coast may prevent wars in a very different way. Men like Hitler go to war only to win their purpose. If some easier plan is offered them they would avoid war, I am sure.

But who has sounded the alarm that this plan being worked out now will not prove to be a "world already organized" for some Hitler of the future to gain control of? What will prevent some clever leader from winning approval of one nation after another [by fair means or foul means] until he gains control of the world union? If that result is made possible, then this new league of nations may prevent war— but at the most dreadful cost to civilization everywher.

W. C. SWENGEL

THE PURPOSE OF LEND-LEASE

Lexington, Ky., April 25—Your series of articles by Ralph M. Horton, formerly with lend-lease, are most enlightening and bear out the contention that I have always made; that lend-lease could never really accomplish any good purpose, but would only deplete seriously the natural resources of the United States.

Especially do I agree with Mr. Horton when he says, "I have wondered if such planning was not deliberate." Of course it is. Haven't we often heard from the New Deal of "planned shortages"? By giving our natural resources and products away to foreign nations we are depleting ourselves and this will create an abnormal demand on industry after the war. The New Deal evidently "planned" it this way in an endeavor to prolong war time booms in industry by shortchanging the American public and thus giving themselves time to think up some new form of boondoggling before the war boom bursts.

$70 A DAY

Toulon, Ill., April 23—A few days ago I read in your paper about our state legislators voting to increase their own salaries from $5,000 to $7,500. I wonder if the taxpayers know that these legislators' pay amounts to about $70 a day for the time they put in, at the salary they already receive. EMMA OLSON

MATTERS OF CONSCIENCE

Cicero, Ill., March 25—Now that Mr. Chandler can "conscientiously" resign his war job to accept post-war opportunity, can't some arrangement be made for the people who are frozen to their jobs whereby they may conscientiously resign also to accept post-war opportunities? J. L. REINLIE

JOHN MANGAN IS MAD

Chicago, April 26—Those magnificent blood suckers, the members of our state legislature, are at it again. The general public, not awake to their outstanding ability, have absentmindedly overlooked payment of additional compensation they are entitled to. The hungry buzzards, not wishing any further delay, took it upon themselves to blackjack thru the legislature a bill which will step up their salaries quite briskly.

I wonder if those glorified parasites realize that for every additional dollar in taxes they vote they are placing a comparable burden on the back of the returning veteran who wishes to own his own home.

We want work for the veterans when they return. The surest and quickest way to accomplish that is by immediately lowering the cost of our state government, which has reached a staggering total. The quickest way to prevent private building from reopening, which normally furnishes employment to hundreds of thousands of men, is to continue to raise taxes.

"AMERICANS ALL"

Chicago, April 24—I want to express my appreciation for the editorial which appeared in THE TRIBUNE of April 17, "Americans All." It is one of the finest editorials you have published in a long time and typifies the kind of thing that ought to be preached and practiced in our country at all times.

May I also express appreciation for the articles you have published with reference to the performance of the 784th tank battalion, by Mr. Gowran, one of your war correspondents. One story I remember seeing on the front page. The Negro soldiers have gotten all too little attention in this war for many of their fine performances, but Mr. Gowran's dispatches and the way you have featured them have given a "lift" to all of your readers on the south side and I hope to many others in other parts of the city.

BIRTHDAY PICTURE

GERMANY, April 17—Some time ago I was one of the many soldiers, Chicagoans here in Germany, to have a sketch made by your Mr. Gary Sheahan.

At that time he told me that my wife would receive a copy. Today I received a letter from my dear wife, dated April 11, telling me that she received a very nice picture from THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, and she sure was happy to receive it.

What made it doubly welcome—it arrived just in time for her birthday.

LEASE RENEWAL

Chicago, April 25—We signed a one year lease for our apartment in 1941 and again in 1942. Since then our landlord has not asked us to sign one. Please tell us whether we are still bound by the 1942 lease or whether we are on a month to month basis. M. A.

Where a tenant under a lease for a definite term holds over beyond the term and the landlord accepts additional rent, these circumstances, in the absence of other circumstances showing a contrary intent on the part of the landlord, result in a renewal by implication so that neither party can terminate the tenancy nor increase the rent during such renewal.

CAPITAL TENSE, EXPECTANT MID OFFICIAL SILENCE

Hours Drag By Without News of Surrender

BY WALTER TROHAN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., April 29—Hours dragged by slowly today as official Washington waited on the alert for news of victory in Europe.

Word of the execution of Benito Mussolini was received with little reaction as all eyes and ears were turned for bigger news following last night's premature announcement of Germany's surrender.

There was no unusual activity in government offices which would indicate that an official proclamation was impending, but nonetheless the air was charged with expectancy.

Truman at White House

President Truman came to the White House shortly before noon after attending services at Foundry Methodist church. He left 25 minutes later.

His arrival caused a flurry in the pressroom where newspapermen were holding a watch against V-E day, but White House attaches said that there was nothing new on peace possibility.

The President, who spiked premature V-E day celebrations last night did not return during the afternoon. He dined at Blair house, where he and his family are making their home while the White House is being readied for their occupancy.

Schwellenbach Is Guest

Lewis J. Schwellenbach, federal district judge and former Democratic senator from Washington, attended church with Mr. Truman. The judge has been mentioned as a possible successor to Labor Secretary Perkins.

The state, war, and navy departments were closed except for those on regular Sunday watches. During the afternoon small groups collected in front of the White House on the chance that undue activity might be a harbinger of peace.

The capital greeted the false surrender report with considerable reserve, which was taken here as an indication there will be no wild celebration of victory in Europe and that Americans will not feel the war is won until the Japs run up the white flag.

War or Peace?—Delegates Eager to Settle the Issues

BY WILLARD EDWARDS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

San Francisco, Cal., April 29—The "false armistice" report which created great excitement yesterday among delegates to the world security conference was followed by sober discussion today of the need for speeding up the work of the parley in view of the possible imminence of a Nazi surrender.

Despite President Truman's announcement from the White House that the Associated Press dispatch from this city was unfounded, delegates were convinced that the story was premature by only a few days or hours. They expressed a general desire to accelerate their schedule in order to meet British Foreign Minister Anthony Eden's suggestion that final agreement be reached by June 1 at the latest.

"If peace is upon us," declared Rep. Eaton [R., N. J.], a member of the United States delegation, "we must streamline our work to complete the peace organization for the future. I believe we shall now dispense with the superfluous and confine ourselves to the essentials."

Envoys Eager to Return

Peace in Europe, it was noted will demand the services at home of many of the delegates from that area. Eden and V. M. Molotov, the soviet foreign commissar, will be anxious to return and the latter is reported to have tentatively planned to go back to Moscow in two weeks in any event.

The unhappiest man in San Francisco today was Sen. Tom Connally [D., Tex.], chairman of the senate foreign affairs committee and the member of the American delegation who has been named as the source of the Associated Press' premature false surrender announcement. He went into a huddle with his friends and was reported to be considering the issuance of a statement exonerating himself of blame for the incident by insisting that he had only asserted that Germany's surrender was expected "momentarily."

Other members of the American delegation were outspoken in their criticism of Connally. They expressed belief he had been rash in his prediction in order to get his name prominently displayed in the public prints. He achieved that objective, it was remarked, but not in an entirely favorable light.

Meanwhile, delegates from other nations, profiting by the example of what happened to Connally, were notably shy in discussing with newspapermen rumors concerning the end of the war in Europe.

Pandemonium at Opera House

The main topic of conversation today, however, undoubtedly was the sensation caused by the Nazi surrender story. When a South American delegate waved a newspaper which carried the blazing headline "Nazis Quit" there was mild pandemonium in the municipal opera house where a plenary session was in progress. Proceedings were interrupted for three minutes while the emissaries staged a demonstration.

In the Palace hotel a mammoth champagne and cocktail party was being staged for the press by the city of San Francisco's conference committee when news of the AP flash arrived. Hundreds of press representatives had deserted the opera house and veterans memorial building to seek relaxation at this affair. A few minutes after the report of the German surrender had arrived, the place was empty of all but a few gatecrashers who proceeded to have a wonderful time.

$5,600 Government Job Open for Army Veteran

An army veteran, honorably discharged and well qualified, is being sought by the government for the position of assistant state veterans' employment representative in southern Illinois, Joseph A. Connor, regional director of the United States civil service commission, said yesterday. The position pays $5,600 a year.

Area Is Falling Behind in Salvaging Tin Cans

Figures for tin can salvage in the Chicago area for the first four months of this year are expected to show a slight gain, compared with the same period in 1944, Mrs. Walter J. Kelly, volunteer chairman of salvage for the office of civilian defense and the war production board, said yesterday. However, collections will fall below the quota, Mrs. Kelly added. "We should be salvaging more than 500 tons of tin each month, and the present rate is approximately 300 tons," she said.

CHICAGO YANK RESCUED FROM GERMAN PRISON

Koenig had been interned since Jan. 3 and previously was reported missing in action since that date. He now is in a hospital in France. He has been in the army a year and a half and went overseas last November. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Koenig, live at 3851 Thomas st. The sergeant has two small children.

Staff Sgt. Charles Snyder, 24, who was taken prisoner after his plane was shot down at Amiens, France, while he was on his 100th bombing mission a year ago, yesterday notified his wife, Margaret, 8128 Indiana av., that he had been released from a German prisoner of war camp and soon would return to Chicago.

This Colossus makes PAUL BUNYAN A PIKER

REMEMBER the tall tale of Paul Bunyon? Legend is that, single-handed, he cut all the timber from Maine to Minnesota.

But listen to a greater tale—and this one no legend. Hear the true story of a Colossus who last year cut 6,000,000 cords of pulpwood . . . the Colossus of the Cross Roads . . . the American farmer.

In 1944, primarily as a sideline, this giant logged from his own woodlands more than 35% of all the American pulpwood consumed by our papermaking industry. Thus the farmer not only improved his timber holdings but helped save our war-caused paper shortage from becoming a national catastrophe. And, incidentally, his logging added another 80 million dollars to his steadily growing bankroll!

The farmer last year surprised the nation with record harvests in practically all crops. This, in spite of an acute shortage of farm help and aging machinery. The farmers' total income reached 27.9 billions, his savings 13.5 billions . . . making him the richest farmer in history, and a giant postwar prospect that all Industry is eyeing eagerly.

And as Industry looks toward the farmer, it naturally looks toward Country Gentleman. You can be sure that as soon as the paper shortage eases (and farmers themselves are helping to ease it) Country Gentleman will welcome new advertisers to the post-war "harvest."

The biggest farm sales in history lie ahead!

FISHING FLEETS THRIVE AS WIVES SHOP FOR BEEF

Seafood Catches Increase and Prices Soar

Despite war time shortages of crews and equipment, the men who go down to the sea in ships are netting the greatest profits of their careers these days as a meat starved public becomes acquainted with cod-fish, yellowtail, sole, halibut, shrimp, crabs, oysters, and a dozen other products of the deep.

Even eels are being consumed by citizens unable to get steaks, chops, and roasts. And shark meat is a steady seller on the Chicago market, 4,945 pounds of shark fillets being among the 6,774,000 pounds of fish on last month's Chicago dinner tables. Last year's fish consumption in Chicago was 66,660,468 pounds, or nearly 20 pounds per inhabitant.

Fishermen's crews have been depleted by the demands of the merchant fleet and by the lure of high wages in war industries, and the fishing fleets have lost trawlers and draggers to the navy.

Increase in Catch

Despite these handicaps the remaining fishermen managed to boost the national production total from 4 billion pounds in 1943 to 4.4 billion pounds in 1944.

Where the fisherman makes his biggest profit, however, is in the upward spurt of prices. Most areas of the country do not have ceiling prices on fish, with the result that many housewives are paying more for fish than they used to pay for choice steaks.

Many restaurants—and patrons, too—pay trout prices for catfish. Others pay for a certain size shrimp but receive a smaller size on which the ceiling is lower.

Dumping of fish because of lack of demand, which was common in the Chesapeake bay area as late as 1942—no longer is practiced. Grocers and chain stores snap up available supplies. One national chain is reported buying three times as much seafood as it did a year ago.

Highlights of a national survey by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE follow.

Gulf Coast Thrives

NEW ORLEANS, La.—Last year's seafood catch in the gulf coast area was 91,824,848 pounds, compared with 98,481,750 in 1941. It was far short of the demand, Mrs. Lorraine D. Peterson, fishery marketing specialist of the interior department, said.

Patronage in the seafood places of the city's French quarter has increased 150 per cent in some instances during the war. Roy Alciatoire, owner of Antoine's reports a 125 per cent gain.

Prices, too, are up. Antoines pays 60 cents a pound for first quality trout instead of the 17 cents before the war, and 95 cents for pompano instead of the pre-war price of 30 cents.

Before the war, shrimp with heads on sold for as low as $8 a barrel. Today the OPA ceiling is $33 a barrel, and the ceiling is treated with contempt.

Golden Tide in West

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.—Fish is coming in on a golden tide on the Pacific coast. Fresh fish have brought record profits to the thousands connected with the fishing industry—from the catching to the serving.

For example, a crab that once sold for as low as a dime in San Francisco today brings as much as 70 cents in the retail market. In the restaurant the diner who formerly paid 50 cents, may pay from $1.50 to $3 for the same crab.

A filet de sole, normally 45 to 75 cents, with dinner trimmings, now runs $1.50 to $3.

Record Chesapeake Catch

BALTIMORE, Md.—Last year's seafood catch of 49 million pounds was the highest in Chesapeake bay since 1940 when it was 51 million pounds. Oysters taken out in the 1943-44 season totaled 2,273,000 bushels, while in the 1944-45 season they came to 2,275,000 bushels.

Oyster prices leaped to a high of $4.50 a gallon for standard grades, compared to the 1941 price of $2.25 and the depression era level of 75 cents. Roe shad a year ago brought 15 or 16 cents a pound. Now it brings 35 to 40 cents. Crab meat brings $1.20 to $2.25 a pound.

More Trawlers in Use

NEW YORK—With the navy turning back 20 of the 35 beam trawlers taken over from the local fishing fleet after Pearl Harbor, record fish catches are expected here this year. Sixty draggers also have been returned. The trawlers have a capacity of 250,000 pounds each and the draggers 100,000 pounds.

Henry Brundage, city markets commissioner, said 5 million pounds of fish reach the New York market each week. This year's demand is expected to exceed last year's by 50 million pounds.

Boston Catches Reduced

BOSTON, Mass.—Altho the demand for fish thruout the country has increased since the war began, the amount of fish landed in Boston has decreased from 339,225,000 pounds in 1936 to 151,762,000 pounds in 1944.

Last year's catch was 8,787,000 pounds more than that of 1943, but lower than those of several preceding years. Fishermen working out of Boston were accused a few days ago of "restrictive practices" by Rep. Anderson [D., N. M.] who presided at a congressional hearing held here to investigate the food shortage. He assailed a fishermen's union rule that forbids the landing of more than 100,000 pounds of cod in a single catch.

FEAR SHORTAGE OF DENTISTS IN FUTURE YEARS

Awkward blunders by selective service, the army and the navy are creating a critical shortage of dentists for civilian practice, the Journal of the American Dental association charges editorially in the May issue.

"There is still no program for keeping a sufficient number of young men in the dental schools to provide for future needs," the editorial states. "Under the present program, for which selective service must bear its share of the responsibility, there will be a critical shortage of dentists after 1948."

The editorial blames the army's specialized training program, which was "precipitously abandoned by its sponsors," for permitting the discharge of approximately 250 young dentists trained at government expense while "thousands of older dentists, who had left established homes, families and practices to serve their country in time of need," were retained.

SAYS HUNGARY HAS NEED FOR PARLEY STUDY

Hungary's relations with her neighboring states should be settled at the peace conference in San Francisco, Dr. Zoltan Galambos, of Chicago, told the American Hungarian Democratic council at a meeting yesterday in the Midland hotel.

Dr. Galambos pointed the need for unity and harmony among allied nations in working out the peace plan. Even tho, he said, Hungary is a satellite nation and not entitled to participate in the conference, her future welfare is dependent upon its outcome.

George Striker, secretary, discussed problems related to the proposed founding of a democracy in Hungary after the war. He said Hungary's greatest need will be a broadly based Democratic government.

SLUGGER BEATS SISTER OF YOUTH IN COMISE CASE

Flees with Three in Car; Motive a Mystery

The state's attorney's office is expected to enter the investigation today into the mysterious slugging yesterday of Miss Dorothy Fortier, 18, of 4428 Wallace st., as she walked with a girl companion in 45th st. near Union av.

She is the sister of William Fortier, 17, whose accusations recently resulted in the indictment of John Comise, former president of the Cafe Owners' association, on charges of assault to kill and carrying a concealed weapon.

So anxious was her assailant to escape that he clung to the bumper of the automobile in which his three young men companions rode as it was driven away from the scene of the attack.

Sees Four in Restaurant

Miss Fortier was unable to advance a motive for the assault. She told Stock Yards police that she and a girl companion roller skated Saturday night at White City. On their way home they stopped in Al's restaurant near 47th st. and Union av. There she saw four young men whom she had seen in the restaurant the previous night and on other occasions in that neighborhood. They made no effort to speak to her.

When she and her companion left, the four men got into their car, which was parked at an alley near-by. Two blocks away, Miss Fortier said, two of the men got out of the car and followed her a short distance. Then one of them struck her on the head with a heavy object. She screamed and the man struck her again. The second man got into the car as it pulled away and her assailant jumped on the bumper.

Miss Fortier was treated at a hospital for bruises and shock, then was taken to her home. She told police she would be able to identify the men. The automobile was a 1936 model black sedan, she said.

Resigns After Arrest

Comise, who formerly was personal bailiff to Municipal Judge Francis Borrelli, resigned as head of the cafe owners' group after his arrest on the charges brought by William Fortier.

Fortier was so severely beaten with a blackjack and fists that he was taken to County hospital suffering from a brain concussion. Richard Austin, assistant state's attorney who presented the case to the grand jury, said the assault occurred when Comise and Joseph DeGrazia, a deputy Municipal court bailiff, sought to learn from Fortier the whereabouts of Comise's son, John, 17, who had run away from home.

R.O.T.C. CHANGE AT GARY IS HIT BY LEGIONNAIRE

The action of the Gary school board in voting Friday night to remove compulsory R. O. T. C. training in four of its high schools was termed "unfortunate" yesterday by Richard S. Kaplan, 2204 W. 5th av., Gary, an attorney and historian of Gary Memorial post 17 of the American Legion.

"It is my opinion as an individual," he said, "that the Legion is unalterably opposed to this action of the school board. "I have observed that boys who take this training are in better health, their conduct and morals are better, their posture improved, and they develop self-confidence earlier than students without training."

He added that boys with R. O. T. C. training obtain commissioned and non-commissioned appointments in the army more quickly than untrained inductees. The board's action removes the compulsory provision of the training in September, 1946.

FUR COAT, JEWELRY TAKEN

Daniel Delurgia reported to police yesterday the theft from his home at 713 S. Albany av. of jewelry valued at $115, a black Persian lamb coat worth $450, a radio, a $20 gold piece, and a .32 calibre blue steel revolver.

WAR GARDENERS, AGED 3½ TO 85, DIG ON 12 ACRES

Work Dedicated to Pacific Victory

Two hundred fifty war gardens in a 12 acre plot at Marquette rd. and S. California av. were dedicated yesterday to helping win the war in the Pacific. Three hundred families, coöperating in the venture, known as the Marquette Park Community War gardens, were out in the sunshine with hoes and rakes, seeds and seedlings, doing the spade work which, by midsummer, will bring produce to add to the city's food supply.

The gardeners in the Marquette project range in age from 3½ to 85. An old hand at making the soil yield, octogenarian George Studenroth of 6512 S. Maplewood av. gave raking lessons to Bonnie Jo Doody, 3½, of 6618 S. Fairfield av., and Diane Durkin, 5, of 6643 S. Mozart st., who were dressed in brightly hued overalls for their first agrarian adventure.

Many Others at Work

Dozens of other gardeners were busy all over the acreage, marked off by flags, lines, and paths into neat squares. The plot was a cabbage patch 25 years ago, Studenroth recalled, and was reclaimed from a golf driving range three years ago.

Bernard J. Downs of 6531 S. Rockwell st. is chairman of the garden association. Ralph Arnold of 6501 S. Rockwell st. serves as vice chairman, with the assistance of Robert C. Fletcher of 6615 S. Fairfield av. as secretary and treasurer. Mrs. Arnold and Mrs. Fletcher head a women's advisory committee which annually manages a community canning project.

Onions Sprouting Green

The gardens are planted for tomatoes, beets, carrots, onions, kohlrabi, turnips, and cabbage. The onions already are sprouting green, and hopes are high that this year's yield of tomatoes will make it possible for canners to better their 1944 average of 65 quarts per garden plot.

Yesterday's warm weather and bright sunshine encouraged other war gardeners all over the city and suburbs to get out and till the soil.

At 3 o'clock today, 100 south side children will begin planting their war gardens in allotted plots in Jackson park, near the 63d st. bird sanctuary. E. A. Cleeton of 6050 Dorchester av., chairman of the project, will supervise the youngsters.

INHALATOR UNIT KEEPS INFANT ALIVE 2½ HOURS

A fire department inhalator squad under Capt. Frank Davin, yesterday kept a two day old infant alive for two and a half hours by artificial respiration, until the child could be placed in an oxygen tent.

The baby, Francis Schultz, born Friday to Mrs. Stepanie Schultz, 4821 N. Hamlin av., developed difficulty in breathing shortly after noon and the father, Gilbert, a bakery driver, summoned the fire department and Dr. Joseph Mizock, 4301 Archer av.

Dr. Mizock said the child's difficulty resulted from an enlarged thymus gland. He ordered an oxygen tent. Firemen continued administering artificial respiration until the oxygen tent arrived.

3 SUPPER IDEAS to get EXTRA RED POINTS!

SAUSAGES, APPLE RINGS and mashed potatoes for a rainy April night. Keep draining off the fat as you cook the sausages. Makes 'em more digestible; fills up your fat-salvage can. Every drop is needed by our country for hundreds of essentials on the battlefield and home front...

CORNED BEEF HASH can be made with a little meat and lots of potatoes, and still be superb. When you're preparing the corned beef, remember to save those little trimmings of fat. Melt them down; add them to the salvage can.

CREAMED CANNED FISH, when it's popped into a casserole and under the broiler to brown, looks like company's coming. But be sure you pour off the oil it's packed in...even that small amount is worth adding to your salvage can. Remember, it's the small amounts, day by day, that soon add up to a pound and those very welcome 2 extra red points and 4 cents! TAX EXEMPTION TERMED UNJUST BUT NECESSARY

Gov. Green Calls It Vital to Slum Clearance

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Springfield, Ill. April 29—Gov. Green today issued a statement in which he termed tax exemption for public housing "economically and morally unfair" in principle but "unfortunately" necessary if the slum clearance and rebuilding program he and Mayor Kelly are putting thru the legislature is to participate in bountiful money grants expected from Washington.

The showdown will take place tomorrow before the 42 member revenue committee of the house on the measure introduced by Rep. Armstrong [R., Chicago] to eliminate tax exemption from the Kelly-Green bills.

A survey last week indicated the Armstrong amendment would win recommendation. However, it was admitted today by opponents of exemption that the governor's plea for expediency may swing the committee to his view.

Property Basis Cited

"Since all local governments depend largely upon real property to pay for schools, police, fire, public health protection, and other indispensable public services, it is vital for all housing, public and private, to pay its full share," Gov. Green said.

"It is economically and morally unfair and discriminatory to exact taxes from the vast majority of small home and farm owners, with their life's savings invested therein, as well as from the thousands of tenants in privately owned apartments, while granting tax immunity to a relatively small minority of self supporting families, especially in these days when employment is reasonably steady and well paying.

"Rent subsidy in the form of tax exemptions should be confined to those economically unable to meet the ordinary costs of living.

Foreclosure Termed Possible

"Unfortunately, the federal housing authorities, which have provided 90 per cent of the funds to build the local public housing projects, insist that they be exempt from all taxation.

"If we repeal the tax exemption amendments for public housing from our revenue act, the federal government has the right to, and in all probability will, as it has in other jurisdictions, foreclose upon these projects, thereby automatically freeing them from local tax obligations as federally owned, and also halting their service charge payments to local taxing bodies.

"Such repeal would, undoubtedly, deny for Illinois all federal financial housing assistance in the future, while other states would participate to help stimulate employment and activity in the boundless building industry."

McCabe Supports Maneuver

Support for Armstrong's maneuver was given by Rep. McCabe [D., Chicago], who failed in efforts to eliminate exemption at three previous legislative sessions.

"I am still against exemption, as is Assessor John S. Clark, who has been trying for years to get federal housing projects on the tax rolls," said McCabe. "In maintaining that position, the assessor has refused to accept the relatively small service charges, offered in lieu of taxes, except the first payment of $39,000.

Armstrong declared the federal houses produce revenue and should be taxed like any other profitable real estate project.

"We face the absurdity of a man earning $1,800 a year paying taxes while his neighbor, with the same income, pays nothing to support local government because he lives in a tax exempt project," said Armstrong. "How far can this be extended without breaking down the financial structure of government?"

Con Con Action Due

Also on tomorrow's schedule at the statehouse is action by the house on the constitutional convention resolution, and the governor devoted part of his monthly radio talk today to supporting the proposal. Roll call on the resolution was postponed last week, when it appeared it lacked 10 to 15 votes of the two-thirds needed.

Among the reasons for adopting the resolution and thus providing a referendum "is that the voters themselves should be given the opportunity to pass on an issue that affects every Illinois citizen of this generation and generations to come," the governor said.

Apparently in reply to the contention of labor and farm groups that the constitution should not be revised during war time, the governor said ratification could not be sought before 1948 and if it appeared the war would be prolonged beyond that year, he would recommend the convention adjourn until service men could return and vote.

HAIR CARE

Our professional business is, in simple English, the care and treatment of the hair and scalp. First of all let me be very blunt and say very simply but emphatically that we do not and cannot grow hair. And as far as we have been able to determine neither can anyone else. Secondly we wish to make it quite plain that our only function is to provide men and women with a simple, sensible and effective method of treating the hair and scalp so as to keep it healthy, alive and attractive.

The some three thousand men and women who visit our offices each week are people who we sincerely believed could be helped. These clients know how we work and how effective our work is or they would not continue to come to us for treatment.

The best evidence of our integrity is to visit one of our offices to experience for yourself how we work. There is no charge or obligation for a private examination and consultation. If you decide then to take treatment, the decision is entirely yours. We employ no salesmen. Our treatments are at your convenience and the modest fee we charge is payable only when you take a treatment.

The next best evidence of our integrity is to discuss the Warner method of hair and scalp control with any man or woman who has been a client of ours.

HOUSE PROBERS MAY DEMAND OPA LOSE FOOD RULE

Shortages, Black Market Blamed on Bureau

Washington, D. C., April 29 (AP)—Sharp suggestions for an immediate overhauling of the government's food controls are expected this week from a house food investigating committee.

Rep. Andresen [Minn.], ranking Republican member of the committee, told a reporter that faulty government regulations are "forcing 75 million Americans into the black market."

While he made no attempt to speak for the committee, congressional sources said the group's first report—due Tuesday—will send critical shafts at the office of price administration, war food administration, and other government agencies blamed by witnesses for the food crisis and black markets.

May Ask Central Control

The committee may recommend that the entire food program be placed in one central authority, stripping OPA, WFA, the office of economic stabilization, and other agencies of their share in food control.

If the committee's recommendations are ignored, Andresen told a reporter, "congress should amend the price control law."

He said the distribution system for meat and poultry is "near collapse."

The report is expected to:

1. Rap enforcement agencies, including the OPA, for failure to invoke criminal penalties against black marketeers.
2. Criticize food controls all the way from producer to consumer.
3. Express dissatisfaction and disappointment in the 10 point revision of the food program, announced by the government after the house committee called all food agencies into a White House conference.

Trail Starts at Chicago

The report will dwell at length on black market operations which the committee trailed from Chicago to New England and New York in a series of roving investigations. It will blame faulty distribution for the growing meat black market.

"Because of lack of coördination [in government agencies] meat dealers are forced to operate either in the red or the black—in the red if they operate within the regulations, or go into the black market to make expenses," Andresen said.

"It's meat now. The next heavy black market operation will be in eggs and sugar," he added.

Slaughter Curbed

Meanwhile the OPA today restricted nonfederally inspected slaughterers to the slaughter of half the hogs and 75 per cent of the cattle and calves they butchered in the same month last year. The quotas, effective April 30, are expected to remain unchanged for the next two months.

Purpose of the quotas is to leave more animals for federally inspected meat packing plants, which are those shipping meat across state lines.

WARDENS IN OCD TO BE MOBILIZED FOR LOAN DRIVE

Mobilization of thousands of office of civilian defense bond wardens for the opening of the 7th war loan drive May 14 will begin today thruout Chicago under direction of Frank C. Rathje, chairman of the OCD house-to-house canvass. The total quota for individuals, including E bonds, for Chicago and Cook county is $327,474,000.

A campaign to mobilize the wardens thru newspapers and radios and personal solicitation of OCD officials in 109 communities in Chicago has been started.

"The Chicago goal in the 7th war loan is so great that we will require a tremendous army of wardens to do the job," Rathje said. "There are 16,784 blocks in Chicago and a minimum requirement will be one warden per block."

LOCKER RAIDERS HELP ARRANGE SALES OF MEAT

OPA Sees Owners of 20 Plants Today

As the office of price administration prepared yesterday to meet today with operators of 20 other frozen food locker plants in this area, OPA agents continued to question locker renters at the Dutch Dairy Frozen Locker company, 3316 Devon av., Lincolnwood.

From 10 a. m. until 1 p. m., the agents, directed by Edward Jordan, collected several thousand ration points and "helped" arrange sales by meat owners who couldn't produce enough points to cover their holdings. Sales were made to friends, relatives, and other individuals who could produce points, the OPA men said.

Hundreds Go to Store

Rudolph Malz, co-owner with his soldier brother, Eric, of the locker plant, said hundreds of meat hungry citizens descended on the store, hoping to purchase meat, and interfered with his normal dairy products and light grocery business so much that a sign announcing that no meat was for sale was placed outside the store. Malz explained that he sells no meat, but customers were attracted by OPA statements to the press that holders of excess meat would be forced to sell it.

About 10 agents took part in the questioning yesterday. Of the first 40 locker owners to report, 10 were able to pay points for 500 pounds of meat in their lockers. The others, who, Jordan said, owned 5,000 pounds of meat, were told that arrangements for its sale would have to be made. Homer Clay, chief OPA enforcement attorney, said he "appreciated the coöperation of the locker holders."

Persuasion to Be Tried

Clay said the meeting tentatively scheduled for today with other plant operators would center in an effort to persuade them to induce their customers not to store meat obtained without surrender of points.

Clay emphasized that he did not expect violations in the 20 locker plants to be as widespread as in the Dutch Dairy plant, where OPA men estimated that more than 85 per cent of the meat held was illegally bought.

OPA admitted that minute searches of the other locker plants are improbable.

SPARROWS KEEP UP VIGIL IN TREE NEAR LOST NEST

Two sparrows which were dispossessed of their nest on a second floor window ledge at 1646 N. Kildare av. by two robins, then gave up their attempt to fashion a "duplex" nest next to it, took up a vigil yesterday in a nearby tree.

Mrs. Thyra B. Moe, who lives at that address and has watched the two bird couples quarrel over the nest, predicted the sparrows would wait until the robins have finished with the nest before starting their own brood.

With two eggs hatching yesterday, there were three baby robins in the nest and only one egg remained. One baby was born Saturday. Mrs. Moe has received numerous letters, expressing different opinions on the birds' plight. One writer, who signed her letter "Yours with sympathy," suggested that the sparrows take the case up with the office of price administration.

BRISTOL, England, April 29 (AP)—Home Secretary Herbert Morrison urged Britons today to throw overboard "the amiable, useless, part-time, old school tie, aristocratic or M. P. directors" of the nation's industries in the next general elections.

A Laborite in Prime Minister Churchill's coalition government, Morrison outlined to a Labor party gathering the organization's tentative platform for the first national elections in Britain in 10 years. The program calls for socialization of the Bank of England, coal mines, utilities and inland transportation. Morrison maintained it would leave "full play for individual initiative, originality, and creative skill," adding:

"Men will look back in the future and marvel at the strength and resources of a country which could carry for so long the burden of this privileged, uncreative group of guinea pigs."

WIFE KILLS HUSBAND WITH BUTCHER KNIFE WHILE HE IS ASLEEP

Mrs. Frances Indralunas, 48, of 3348 W. 38th st., admitted yesterday to Asst. State's Atty. Edmund Grant that she killed her husband, Joseph, 44, early yesterday by cutting his throat with a butcher knife as he slept in a downstairs bedroom at their home.

Joseph Indralunas

Mrs. Indralunas, who speaks only Lithuanian, made her confession thru an interpreter as she was about to be subjected to a lie detector test at police headquarters.

Grant said she told him she and her husband quarreled early yesterday when he returned from playing cards in a bakery next door, because he accused her of intimacy with men in the neighborhood. She said she got out of bed, obtained the knife in the kitchen, and killed her husband as he slept. She said she first threw the knife in the furnace, but after the handle was burned she retrieved it and threw it down a drain. The knife later was recovered.

She then went upstairs and went to bed in another bedroom, she said. Her son, Alphonse, 17, was absent at a dance. Mrs. Indralunas pretended to discover her husband's body at 6 a. m. yesterday and called police.

Indralunas was employed at the Crane company as an acetylene torch operator.

3 Engagements Make News on North Shore

BY JUDITH CASS

SEVERAL pieces of romantic news told over the week-end will be of interest today to north shore residents, including the engagement of Miss Mary Bull to Ensign Wilson Askew Jaicks Jr. of the naval reserve air forces, that of Miss Elizabeth De Lescaille to Lt. Eugene Judson Curtis Jr. of the naval reserve, and that of Miss Catherine Tideman to Ensign Thomas M. James of the naval reserve.

From New York Col. and Mrs. Harry L. Calvin, Winnetka residents now stationed there, send word that Mrs. Calvin's youngest daughter, Miss Bull, and Ensign Jaicks, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Jaicks of Lake Forest, will be married late in May in New York. Miss Bull and her fiancé were here on a visit last month when he had leave from his post in Wildwood, N. J.

Miss Bull was graduated from the North Shore Country Day school and from Smith college. She is a sister of Mrs. Ellen Bull O'Brien of Glenview; Mrs. Joseph W. Fall Jr., now living in Warren, Ariz., near Lt. Fall's army air forces post; and Richard Bull, a navy V-12 student at Columbia university. Their father was the late Richard Sutton Bull.

Before enlisting in the navy air forces Ensign Jaicks attended the Hotchkiss school and Yale university. He too is one of four children. Sgt. Agar Jaicks is stationed with the marines on Okinawa and David Jaicks with the naval R. O. T. C. in Austin, Tex. Their sister, Nancy, attends the North Shore Country Day school.

Mrs. Jules J. De Lescaille of Winnetka today is announcing the engagement of her daughter to Lt. Curtis, son of Mr. Curtis of Clinton, Ia. Lt. Curtis, who has been overseas for nearly two years, came to Winnetka for the week-end.

Miss De Lescaille is a graduate of the North Shore Country Day school and attended Sarah Lawrence college. She was introduced to society two seasons ago and has a younger sister, Julie. Lt. Curtis is a graduate of Phillips academy at Andover, Mass., and of Yale university. Wedding plans will depend upon his orders.

Miss Tideman's parents, the Harold F. Tidemans, gave a small tea at home in Kenilworth yesterday to announce their daughter's engagement to Ensign James, son of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice James of San Diego, Cal., formerly of Evanston, and grandson of James A. James, dean emeritus of the graduate school of Northwestern university, and of Mrs. James. Miss Tideman was graduated from New Trier High school and is a junior at Connecticut college. She has a sister, Mrs. John Sprenger of San Antonio, Tex., whose husband is a lieutenant in the army air forces. Ensign James, who is here on a ten day leave, is a graduate of Northwestern. He has been stationed in Coronado, Cal., and expects overseas duty shortly.

Other Engagement News

At a luncheon Saturday in the Hearthstone in Hubbard Woods, Mr. and Mrs. John M. Prendergast of Evanston announced the engagement of their daughter, Nancy Gay, to Lt. Robert Andrew MacChesney Jr. of the army air forces, son of Mr. and Mrs. MacChesney, also of Evanston. Miss Prendergast recently returned from a month's trip to California to see her fiancé, as the guest of his parents and aunt, Mrs. Martin Kent Northam. Lt. MacChesney now is serving in the Pacific as co-pilot of a Liberator bomber, and the wedding will take place on his return.

Miss Prendergast is a junior at Northwestern university, at which her fiancé formerly was a student. He received his wings at the Pecos army air field in Texas in July, 1944.

At a cocktail party on Saturday in their home in Winnetka, Mr. and Mrs. Keith Thorp announced the engagement of their daughter, Eunice, to Lt. Weston C. Pullen Jr. of the naval reserve, son of Mr. and Mrs. Pullen of Lyme, Conn. Lt. Pullen's parents will come west for the wedding, which will take place May 12 in the Church of the Holy Comforter in Kenilworth.

Miss Thorp received her degree from Northwestern university, and Lt. Pullen was graduated from Princeton university, where he was a member of the Quadrangle club. He was here until yesterday on leave after 22 months in the South Pacific, where he was commander of a squadron of torpedo boats. After the wedding he will take his bride to Newport, R. I., when he reports for duty there.

Thru the Looking Glass

The short, short sleeves featured in new dresses for summer offer a wealth of cool comfort, but it will take a pretty pair of arms to wear them to advantage. Certainly, any defects will be revealed, and thin, scrawny arms, fat, bulgy ones, or the flabby muscled variety won't pass inspection with flying colors. The brief sleeved numbers are going to be tempting buys when the temperature starts climbing, and if you're aware that your arms aren't the things of beauty they might be start an exercise program right now to help them attain nice proportions.

The best exercises for this purpose are the simple variety you probably practiced in gym class at school. Stand erect, feet slightly apart, hands hanging loosely at the sides. Clench the fists lightly and bring them up to the shoulders. From there thrust the arms straight out in front and then swing them up high over the head, releasing the fists on the upward swing. Follow the same pattern to bring the arms back to the sides and repeat about 10 times. Do the exercise rhythmically, feeling a vigorous pull on the muscles all the while. It's elementary, we know, but it works—that is, if it's performed regularly upon arising and before retiring.

Another good exercise is to raise the arms shoulder high, elbows bent and fingers crossing at the base of the throat. From this position fling the arms out and back as far as possible and bring them back quickly to the original position. Swing them in and out 10 or 15 times, starting with less than this until you've become accustomed to it.

Doting Moms Blamed for Psychoneurotic Cases in War Service

New York, April 29 [Special]—America's traditional "sweet, doting, self-sacrificing mom" is blamed by a psychiatrist as being responsible for many of the psychoneurotics in the uniformed services.

For her own emotional satisfaction, many a mother forestalls emotional maturity in her sons, said Dr. E. A. Streckner, consultant to the army and navy surgeons general, in a lecture at the New York university school of medicine. "The traditional 'mom' is sweet, doting, self-sacrificing," he said, but there is also "the stern, capable, self-contained, dominating type." Both, he said, find in their children "ego satisfactions for life's thwartings and frustrations, neither appreciating nor understanding the havoc they will leave in their wakes."

While these women fit snugly into the social order, they remain victims of their own "immaturity—a product of their own childhoods," the psychiatrist asserted.

Besides "an alarmingly large number" of young men in the training areas of the army, in navy boot camps, and at induction centers who are not able to serve because of psychoneurotic symptoms, Dr. Streckner said that almost 350,000 young men attempted to evade enrollment into military service, not hesitating to resort to any device, however shameful.

Dr. Streckner added, however, it is obvious that there were more psychologically "good" than "selfish, psychologically bad" mothers.

Spring Coats Available in Many Models

BY REA SEEGER.

Spring and summer coats are still important to shoppers. Pastel colors, all-whites, and sleek black beauties are preferred, and there are plenty of all. Short coats are sales record breakers, altho the longer seven-eighths length models are available. Knee length affairs are sensationally popular, for these solve the problem of a correct all-purpose coat for any average wardrobe.

Three newly unpacked coats of this short streamline are exciting finds, timed for the early summer wardrobe. Two new models of thick ribbed rayon silk mixture, a handsome, effective material called "ottoman," make the smartest dress-parade creations imaginable. One hangs straight and loose, and has loose, wide sleeves trimmed with transparent crystal buttons. This is the jacket-coat with a soft turnover collar, cut in one with the front sections. The other model of the same ottoman has a tie belt that securely holds double folds at the back to provide extra flare or back fullness. Both are lined with heavy black crepe.

White flannel makes similar coats of flattering simplicity. These all whites are also lined with white. Fuzzy wool in white is used in a striking longer coat for occasional chilly nights of later spring. The swankiest short coat is a most individual model of black wool, lined with pale beige crepe. It ends just below the waist line, has no collar, but flaunts the dramatic contrast of honey beige lynx fur in the wide band cuffs of the long loose sleeves. This gem of surprising moderate cost will top a short or long dress with enviable distinction.

Mother Cabrini's Canonization to Follow End of War

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS

Canonization ceremonies for Mother Frances Xavier Cabrini of Chicago, the first United States citizen to be made a saint, will be held in Rome as soon as the war in Europe is over. This information was cabled from Rome by Associated Press in an account of an audience address made yesterday by Pope Pius XII. before 200 students and nuns of the Mother Cabrini Sacred Heart institute.

When the Rt. Rev. Msgr. A. V. Simoni, Col., United States army, retired, vice postulator of Mother Cabrini's cause, was told at Columbus hospital of the message, he expressed joy over the approaching ceremonial which will be celebrated by the pope in St. Peter's cathedral in Rome. He added that more normal travel conditions would have to be restored prior to the event to permit Archbishop Stritch to be in Rome to participate in the canonization. Others, including many members of the religious community founded by Mother Cabrini, plan to attend.

For several months the belief has been expressed that the red hat of a cardinal, prince of the church, will be bestowed on Archbishop Stritch by Pope Pius when he is able to journey to Rome.

Music and Magic, Not Necessarily Simultaneous, Fill Busy Day at the Opera House

Music and magic had their respective innings at the Opera house yesterday, and, considering the length of Sigmund Romberg's afternoon concert, not the least of Harlan Tarbell's mysteries was how they got the stage set in time for his evening show. Mr. Romberg is no man to short change an audience on quantity, and tho his program apparently is printed just so he can have the fun of changing it, it positively is not cut in the process.

Having hit on a box office formula, this favorite among operetta composers clings to it as to a rock of ages paved with gold. He seats his orchestra on the bias, and would conduct in profile if he didn't rotate. He teeters on his podium as precariously as a circus elephant on its box, and his maneuvering to music is a festive affair of lively baton, waggling hips, and knees that sag in a diver's dip, as if to plunge headlong into melody. He has a fine time, and his audience is enchanted.

Apparently his orchestra is a bit on the bewitched side, too. Those men can play a medley from "The Student Prince" so that it melts in your ear, and they can make "Oklahoma!" sound humdrum. They can do Lehar full justice, and they certainly don't do Sousa any harm, but Victor Herbert must have gnashed his teeth at the pink bows of fancy orchestration that spoiled the sweet simplicity of "Kiss Me Again."

When it came to soloists, Mr. Romberg had changed only the names. He still knows a voice when he sees one. Lorna Byron, a pert redhead in full evening regalia, made up in "The Fireman's Bride" from "Up in Central Park" for her errors in "Carmen," but Virginia Schools has a voice I would like to hear without a microphone. Her military band version of "La Traviata" didn't sell me, but "Alice Blue Gown" was heroine material. There was still another soloist, but she came late and I had gone. A Romberg concert is a little like a bland diet. After a while you want to get your teeth in something tough, like a Bach fugue.

I suppose a lot of strange things have happened to magicians, and no doubt some of them have plied their nefarious trade in the shadow of the pyramids. But Harlan Tarbell is indubitably the first to perform his Egyptian mumbo jumbo in the splendors of "Aida" on the Civic Opera house stage. Considering that apt raid on the warehouse, I was a bit disappointed that Mr. Tarbell's Chinese tricks didn't come off in "Turandot" and his Indian wiles in "Lakmé." No matter, they came off.

At least, they did down front, where you could keep an eagle eye on the man and still not tell quite what was going on. What happened in the last row of the balcony, I couldn't even guess. But if you could see it, it was a remarkable show that roamed the world of magic, coloring the sands of the desert, conjuring a mesmerized globe of light, spinning ropes from the circular to the horizontal and vice versa, and ending with what Mr. Tarbell calls eyeless vision, an extraordinary exhibition of sight with sealed eyes. I suppose the other things are tricks for the uncannily skilled, tho I admit I can't figure them out. But this eyeless vision—whatever it is, it's amazing.

Democracy Should Harmonize Cultures, Rabbi Tells Group

The test of a democracy is the capacity it shows for absorbing and harmonizing cultural and religious backgrounds, Rabbi Solomon Goldman of Temple Anshe Emet told the second annual meeting of the Council of Conservative Synagogs of Chicago in the Stevens hotel yesterday.

"There is a tendency among all people to think in terms of one uniformity or another," he said. "It is strange and disappointing that mankind has not learned thru the ages that uniformity among human beings is a mirage. Unity man has sometimes achieved; uniformity, never."

Chicago's ten principal Conservative synagogs were represented at the afternoon and evening sessions.

Mary L. Susen Is Married to Pvt. J. J. Huber

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Susen of Winnetka announce the marriage on April 23 of their daughter, Mary Laurette, to Pvt. Joseph J. Huber of the army, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph J. Huber of Jamaica, N. Y. The wedding took place in Colorado Springs, Colo. The bride is a graduate of St. Mary academy, Notre Dame, Ind., and attended Northwestern university. She now is a senior at Barnard college in New York. Pvt. Huber was graduated from the University of Notre Dame in 1941. He is stationed at Camp McCook, Nebraska. Mr. and Mrs. Susen, John Susen, and Miss Patricia Dillon of Kenilworth went west for the wedding.

Some time next month Mr. and Mrs. Edward R. Johnston of Highland Park hope to go to Miami, Fla., to see their son, Lt. Alan R. Johnston, and his bride of several weeks ago. Lt. Johnston and the former Eleanor Cope Smith, daughter of Lt. and Mrs. Robert Mead Smith of Haverford, Pa., were married on April 7 in Miami Beach, Fla. Since returning from 18 months of Pacific duty, Lt. Johnston has been stationed in Miami first as a student in an advanced naval training school and now as an instructor. The former Miss Smith was graduated from Bryn Mawr college. Lt. Johnston is an alumnus of Andover, Princeton university, and the University of Michigan law school.

The marriage of Miss Ruth Marie Pritchard, daughter of Mrs. Florentine J. Pritchard of South Shore dr. and Harry T. Pritchard of Indianapolis, Ind., and Lt. (j. g.) Raymond J. Adkins of the naval reserve took place on March 24 in the chapel at Camp Perry in Williamsburg, Va., where he is stationed. Lt. Adkins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Adkins of Butler, N. J., is a graduate of New Jersey State college and New York university. His bride was graduated from Georgian Court college in Lakewood, N. J. They are living at Camp Perry.

When Ensign John B. Sickel of the navy air forces became ill just a few days before his marriage on April 18 to Miss Mary Jane Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Parker Smith of Oak Park, he and his fiancée changed the place of their wedding from St. Giles' rectory to a bedside ceremony in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fale Hurd in Oak Park. Ensign Sickel, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Tyler Sickel of Excelsior Springs, Mo., attended the University of Missouri and recently received his navy wings at Corpus Christi, Tex. Mrs. Sickel is a graduate of Stephens college.

Sally Seeking Items to Aid 2 in Hospital

[Sally Joy Brown department activities are sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.]

BY SALLY JOY BROWN

Mr. H., a patient in an institution southwest of Chicago, has been fighting tuberculosis for some time and hopes to win his battle. Altho he is permitted little exertion, he would like to pass his time profitably. He has written to us regarding his desire to learn a trade which eventually would enable him to support his wife and five children. If readers who have courses or any reading matter on watch and clock repairing, as well as tools of the trade, are willing to donate them, they can aid this man in his effort to resume a normal life. His name and address will be given upon request.

We hope children who have an abundance of toys can be persuaded to part with a few for a boy, 6 years old, who is in a hospital for a series of operations. His mother also is hospitalized and therefore is unable to visit him. To keep him contented during his separation from his brothers and sisters, his grandmother has promised him playthings, but she cannot keep that promise without reader coöperation. Any toys suitable for passive play, such as simple construction sets, drawing books, crayons, and cutouts will be appreciated. South side offers can be called for with least expense and inconvenience.

THE QUESTION

What is the most expensive habit you have acquired?

WHERE ASKED

THE ANSWERS

Mrs. Joseph Stieber, housewife, 3420 N. Damen av.—It seems I have an insatiable yen for making hats. I buy flowers, forms and nets and anything else that I could put on a hat. My favorite pastime is copying expensive ones that I have seen worn by celebrities or in exclusive shops. I have at least 35 hats.

Mrs. S. Arthur Segal, housewife, 1962 E. 73d pl.—Some day I hope to have a large house of my own. But at the present time we live in a small apartment. Thus, I have only a living room to decorate and I spend all my money buying knickknacks, lamps, statuettes and plants for this one room.

Mrs. F. C. Amsden, housewife, 4514½ N. Paulina st.—I have some of the sweetest nieces and nephews. They get such a kick out of little gifts that I can't resist giving them toys, etc. It has gotten to be an expensive habit because I've done it so often, but I do enjoy it so much.

Mrs. George J. Knapp, housewife, 1461 Carmen av.—All that glitters is not gold but it gets my attention anyway. First I look in the windows of novelty jewelry shops. Then I think, "I'll just go in and sort of browse around." The next thing I know I'm buying a pin or a pair of earrings. It happens too often.

Mrs. Halmark Jones, housewife, 217 Goethe st.—In my home I have about 17 lamps. Each time I see a little lamp that I like, I buy it. I really don't have room for any more but I've gotten so in the habit of looking at lamps that I can't help buying them—and believe me, lamps can be a very expensive habit.

Mrs. Elonia Halas, housewife, 3321 W. 59th pl.—It's my opinion that a woman is more attractive when she has on perfume. Whether she is or not is any one's right to decide—anyway, I just love it! I'm one of those people who isn't satisfied with a standard brand and scent. I buy a bottle of each new kind I see.

'Midsummer Nightmare'

By Christopher Hale

(Copyright, 1945, By Mrs. Frances Stephens)

SYNOPSIS: Olivia Warburton suddenly reverts to a childhood habit of walking in her sleep. She and her secretary, Winnie Leslie, occupy an enchanting little cottage, cared for by Tillie, on the Jennesma estate. The Jennesma furniture factory now makes gliders and is in charge of Dirk Adams, to whom Winnie is engaged. Sybrand Jennesma plans to manufacture his brother Gerrit's latest invention, a motor for a new type of car, and hopes to interest Mory an Riley, chief owner of a car body company. Sen. North is investigating the Jennesmas for Riley. Jason Kimball handles publicity. Winnie leaves an envelope containing money at Hilda Jennesma Paradine's cottage. Hilda claims some of the money is missing. Next morning Hilda is found murdered, a knife in the back of her neck. Olivia is summoned. Sen. North, in love with her, proposes, offering the protection of his position, but she refuses. Lt. French of the state police questions Olivia. Tillie has informed him that Olivia went downstairs during the night and took a knife from the kitchen table—the knife. North knew of this accusation when he proposed.

INSTALMENT VII.

MONEY FOUND

"Fingerprints," said the hard faced, older trooper. He put a dark green case on the table and opened it. "Okay now, who's first?" After a pause, Kim walked over and put out his hand.

Miss Warburton wondered if the senator could not easily evade this ordeal, if he chose. But apparently he didn't.

Suddenly she thought there may be fingerprints on the knife. Suppose they really are mine, after all. Well, at least I'll know. But it made her a little sick as the trooper seized her hand and swiftly inked each finger tip.

"There!" cried Winnie. "That's one for our side. That's not a thing a person would do in her sleep. That's a wicked, smart, wide awake trick!"

Miss Warburton said sharply, "Good heavens, Winnie, what have I been thinking of? We must call your father at once and have him get you out of this."

"O, no you don't. I'm not going."

Winnie said in a haughty tremor, "O, don't be afraid I'll compromise you." She drew markedly away.

Kim said briskly, "Dirk'll be out soon. Jennesma had me call him. You can save it for him."

"I think you are, bar none, the most revolting person I ever saw in all my life." Her tears were drying up in the heat.

Yes, she was Winifred Leslie, daughter of F. W. Leslie of Philadelphia, secretary to Miss Olivia Warburton, graduate of Miss Maria Matilde Ellis' Finishing school in Maryland. As she talked of these normal matters, she began to breathe more evenly.

He led her, skilfully, to discuss the Jennesmas. Mr. Sybrand was very pleasant, courteous and considerate at all times. His brother, Gerrit, she seldom saw. He hardly ever spoke to any one if he could help it.

"What were your relations with Mrs. Paradine, Miss Leslie?"

"O, Somebody told you?, I mean about the money."

"Did her husband seem interested in you?"

"I guess not. She wasn't very nice about his asking me to play tennis and heaven knows I didn't want to. I felt sorry for him."

The lieutenant then let her tell him about the missing money and Mrs. Paradine's accusations. He had heard it from others.

"It most certainly was. He sealed it when he handed it to me and I did not open it."

She was puzzled. "Cash? Why, I don't know. Thirty dollars maybe. I've no idea. It's in my purse in that drawer. That's my desk. It's locked. Here's the key."

"You're positive you did not have more? Please think."

"I see." He was much disturbed. At last he broke the painful silence. "Then, can you tell me how it happens that $265 has just been found in the leather stocking case in your bedroom at the cottage?"

"It . . . it has?" she repeated, dazed. "But, how could it? I suppose you are sure?"

For answer he produced a rose leather case from the drawer of the desk and opened it. Under a pair of nylons was a small, green fold of bills held in place by a rubber band. He laid it on the desk, took off the band and let it unfold of itself like a nest of green snakes. Two one-hundreds, a fifty, a ten and a five. She watched, speechless.

"But am I supposed to have . . . have killed Mrs. Paradine for this? For two hundred and sixty-five dollars?"

"I'm not ready to accuse any one of killing her, yet," the lieutenant said, a little dryly. "I'm just trying to get a few facts together."

"Well here's one fact you can have. I know nothing whatever about that money, I can assure you."

"I hope that can be proved, for your sake. And now, have you been able to recall whether or not you were awake last night?"

Winnie stiffened. She avoided his stern dark blue eyes. "I'm a very light sleeper—sometimes. If any one had gotten up and gone downstairs and outdoors, I'd have heard it."

"Did Miss Warburton get up in the night at all?"

She hesitated.

"Miss Leslie, this sort of thing isn't going to help Miss Warburton. She did get up. She has admitted it."

Winnie burst into flames. "O! How can you suspect her for an instant? She's the most honorable, kind, truthful person I've ever met. I can't bear to have her accused of that horrible woman's death. I should think you could look at her and see she's no more capable of"

A trooper had stepped into the room during the last of this speech which had become a shout. The trooper took her arm.

"Come on, Miss Leslie."

Cornflakes used to be considered breakfast food only, but in the last few years many other palatable ways of serving this popular cereal have been devised. The cornflake crumb pie crust is a favorite. Crushed cornflakes often go into the coating for cheese cake, and they're becoming popular as a topping for almost any kind of casserole dish.

Cornflakes give an interesting texture to a quick orange bread which uses less sugar than most breads of its type.

Orange Cornflake Bread
[9x5x3 inch loaf]

- 2 cups sifted flour
- 3 teaspoons baking powder
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ½ cup sugar
- 1 egg
- ½ cup milk
- 3 tablespoons melted shortening
- ¼ cup orange juice
- 2 tablespoons grated orange rind
- 1 cup cornflakes

Sift dry ingredients together. Combine beaten egg with milk and shortening. Add to dry ingredients and stir until blended. Add orange juice, rind, and cereal flakes. Pour into greased loaf pan and bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, for one hour. Turn out on a rack to cool. The loaf is better flavored and easier to cut if it ripens a day.

Cornflakes add interest to the cheese topping on baked tomato halves.

Baked Tomatoes with Cheese
[Eight portions]

- 4 large tomatoes
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- 1 cup cornflakes
- ¼ teaspoon paprika
- 2 teaspoons melted margarine
- ½ cup grated American cheese

Wash and stem tomatoes; cut in halves crosswise. Place cut side up in baking pan and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Bake at 400 degrees about 10 minutes. Crush cornflakes to fine crumbs, mix with paprika and margarine. Top each tomato half with grated cheese, sprinkle with crumbs, and return to slow oven, 325 degrees, about 3 minutes, or until cheese has melted.

Crushed cornflakes make an excellent coating for fried fish, meat, or chicken, or for any kind of croquette or cutlet. Left-over baked beans take to cornflakes in bean patties which taste so good they don't even faintly resemble something left from another meal.

Bean Patties
[Makes six]

- 2 cups cooked dried beans
- 3 cups cornflakes
- 3 tablespoons finely chopped onion
- 1 egg
- 1 tablespoon catsup
- ¾ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- 3 tablespoons fat

Partly mash beans. Roll cornflakes to fine crumbs and mix with beans, onion, egg, catsup, salt, and pepper. Shape into patties and fry in hot fat until browned, turning once. Serve with white sauce seasoned with catsup.

TURN IN WASTE FATS!

WAC Setting for Movie of Girlish Glee

"KEEP YOUR POWDER DRY"

By Mae Tinée

Another name for this movie might be "The Boarding School Girls in the Women's Army Corps" after the fashion of those interminable "girls" series we used to read as kids.

Lana Turner is cast as the good-hearted but giddy play-girl who joins the service in order to make those in charge of her enormous inheritance believe she has changed her ways and can be intrusted with her fortune. Laraine Day is the meanie who thinks she knows it all because her daddy is a colonel, and Susan Peters is the good sweet girl who acts as peace maker on all occasions. Rivalry and jealousy and comedy all enter into the plot. The three principals are most attractive in uniform, and handle their roles well. The audience seemed very happy when Lana finally hauled off and administered a well deserved slap to the catty miss who had been riding her. The army does a lot for all three gals, and when last seen they're marching happily up the gangplank headed for foreign service.

Some of the lines are pretty funny, and it's all mildly entertaining. The main army activities depicted seem to consist of marching and saying "Yes, Ma'am" to stony-faced superior officers, and I have a feeling that regular WACs may not be too enthusiastic about this interpretation of their branch of service. It's true that the movie is offered only as light fare—but a little example of some of the real accomplishments of the WAC would undoubtedly be appreciated.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., April 29—V. M. Molotov, Russian commissar for foreign affairs, is certainly the prima donna of this allied nations' conference show. He's fanatically punctual, autocratic, charming, all at the same time. He has thrown two slick curves since his arrival. One was at the airport, where he announced he would be photographed only by Russian cameramen. Mike McDermott, in charge of arrangements, put it up to an American colonel, who briefly explained our press customs and suggested Molotov fall in line. He did. He can jump onto the other foot as nimbly as Fred Astaire. Molotov's second nifty came when he called his press conference on 20 minutes' notice just as the session was about to open. Only a few newsmen were on hand—many, already gathered for the session, lost out. . . . Molotov, playing a neat game of cops and robbers, is variously credited with living in a private house, in the St. Francis, and on a boat. At the hotel, where he is officially listed, lobby and sidewalks are jammed all day long and into early morning hours by crowds who always love a mystery. . . . A versatile fellow, Molotov manages to look like Theodore Roosevelt when on the rostrum. He uses his hands as deftly as any alumnus of the Moscow art theater.

San Francisco Story

When the service elevator at the chic Fairmont hotel couldn't handle the traffic, a laundryman with neat little bundles and a basket was put in the passenger lift. He was noticeably on pins and needles until a smartly gowned matron inhaled deeply and sighed, "Fresh laundry, it smells better than anything Chanel ever concocted."

Some Visitors from Hollywood

Ran into Charles Boyer here. He tells me he came up to get in touch with his old friends and to hear a little French spoken, something he's been mighty lonesome for. He went to the conference without his hair piece and no one knew him. . . . Strange sight was Kay Kyser and his wife, beautiful ex-model Georgia Carroll, wandering around at one session. . . . Bob Hope has been here several days, but few people know about that. Bob hasn't shown up at a single session. Nobody has found him chatting in hotel lobbies. He is doing hospital shows in the bay region. There's one Hollywood actor who is strictly for our soldier boys. . . . When Maggie Ettinger whizzed by in the St. Francis lobby the other day wearing a snazzy blue hat, a man near me said, "That's Hedda Hopper." It was more than I could stand. "'Tain't so," I snapped, "I'm Hedda Hopper."

Type Hunting for the Cameras

Looks as if the allied nations' peace conference will make a Hollywood story after all. Peskay and Popkin, those alliterative producers of "Ten Little Indians," have a cameraman up here filming the ladies of various nations who have come here with their delegations. Seems they're going to use the record to do authentic casting for their next picture. . . . And "G. I. Joe" will do a bit of added casting when Lester Cowan gets around to it. The important character in the story is Axis Sally, a character who is the Nazi equivalent of Tokyo Rose. Perhaps I should say was—we're liquidating so many Nazi equivalents these days. My friend, the late Ernie Pyle, had described Axis Sally in detail, when the studio was getting material for him. But one of the G. I.s who heard her often at the front will finally decide.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MAC KAY

The Human Equation

The age-old question, asked proverbially when the handsomest man of the crowd marries the plainest girl, "What does he see in her?" applies more often than not to jobs.

"How did she get that job?" . . . "Why did he choose her for the position?" are but variations of the same theme, for, generally speaking, men do the choosing and it is "what he sees in her" that determines the choice.

To the outsider, the qualities that give preference to one girl over another are not always easy to detect. The outsider forgets that an office, or any place of business, is a veritable blackboard of human equations.

The shy, diffident employer may want the quick, assertive, self-confident secretary. The explosive, excitable go-getter may prefer the quiet, restraining person. [One Chicago manufacturer admitted recently that his secretary had saved him untold sums by holding him back from too impulsive actions.] The promoter with big plans may lean toward the meticulous, careful, painstaking assistant who watches small things.

When we see a girl with an outstanding job, we overlook sometimes the important factor of human relations, failing to understand that somewhere, in her mental and emotional make-up, she supplies the qualities the employer seeks. She must not merely fill the job. She must supplement the boss' nature and furnish a plus sign to the employer-employe equation.

Insure Baby's Health Before He Is Born

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

[Copyright: 1945: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Of all the "weeks" that are observed in this country I can't think of one that is more important than Baby week. Whether we think of America's babies in terms of their physical well-being or their psychological, the fact stands out that in neither respect are they all coming into their birthright, which is: Health, love, and a home in which dwells at least a normal measure of harmony, and one in which intelligence as well as affection controls the way in which it is run.

If you are about to have a baby or are just beginning to think about having one, you are, I hope, going to want to give that baby the best possible start in life. As soon as he is born, you plan to do this and that for him. You want him to be just as healthy and happy as a little baby boy or girl can be.

But if you are figuring things that way, you are very late in beginning. Even the instant he is born is not time enough. Your concern for him should start months before, as soon as you find out you are going to have a baby.

When that wonderful and exciting knowledge dawns upon you, you should at once put yourself in the hands of a doctor or pre-natal [or maternity] clinic. To some young women such advice may seem superfluous to the point of being almost ridiculous. But the fact is that many thousands of women do not do so, with the result that many mothers and many babies lose their lives unnecessarily, physical defects are not discovered or develop with pregnancy, which affect the health of mother or child, or both.

So the first step toward securing good health for your baby is to begin months before he is born and have regular physical examinations by a doctor.

ANSWERS TO SATURDAY'S QUIZ

Q. 1—As South you hold:
♠K 7 4 ♥10 8 5 2 ♦K J ♣10 8 7 4
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South
1 no trump	2 clubs	?

What do you bid?

A.—Double. You may count on taking a spade, a diamond, and a club which combined with the four tricks which partner's opening no trump assures should result in a two trick penalty. This should be most acceptable, particularly in view of the fact that you have no reason to anticipate a game. Had East passed you would not have been justified in raising to two no trump. The holding of four trumps even tho they are not sizeable should be regarded as a trick for defensive purpose.

Q. 2—As South you hold:
♠6 ♥Q 10 7 3 ♦K J 7 4 2 ♣J 3 2
The bidding has proceeded:

East	South	West	North
1 spade	Pass	Pass	2 clubs
2 spades	Pass	Pass	Double
Pass	?

A.—Pass. Partner has made a penalty double. If it was his desire to have you bid he would have doubled one spade for a takeout. No doubt he was just trying to push East up one trick to where he would have him in his power. Dummy will be a blank hand and it begins to look as the East shouldn't have mentioned it.

Q. 3—As South you hold:
♠J 3 ♥A 5 4 ♦Q 10 9 5 ♣K 10 5 2
The bidding has proceeded:

What do you bid?

A.—Double. You can count on winning four tricks, partner the expected three on which an opener can be relied. Resist the temptation to bid two no trump. If partner has a minimum you will have no game and if he has more than his bid the penalty will be well worth your while.

North	East	South
1 spade	Double	?

What do you bid?

A.—Four spades. You may or may not be able to make it, but one thing is certain, you have virtually no defense against the enemy. Your best bet is to make it as difficult as possible for them to get together. Do not adopt halfway measures in situations such as this.

Q. 5—As South you hold:
♠K 6 4 ♥K Q J 8 5 ♦C 6 ♣J 7 4
The bidding has proceeded:

West	North	East	South
1 club	1 diamond	Pass	1 heart
Pass	1 no trump	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Two no trump. Do not rebid the hearts since your hand is well suited for no trump. Partner evidently has a good hand since he made two voluntary bids. The only doubt arises from his failure to double. That is probably because he had no support for hearts and did not wish to hear about them unless you could bid freely.

Q. 6—As South you hold:
♠A 9 6 5 ♥A 6 2 ♦6 4 ♣A 8 5 3
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 club	Pass	1 spade	Pass
2 clubs	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Three clubs. This is a slight underbid, but is made deliberately for the purpose of allowing partner to bid three no trump if he chooses. Your diamond holding suggests that the hand had better be played from the other side of the table.

Q. 7—As South you hold:
♠A J 7 5 3 ♥A J 8 5 ♦A 2 ♣Q 4
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 spade	Pass	2 spades	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Three hearts. You have just enough to try once more and should allow for the possibility that partner has four hearts and only three spades, which should make hearts a more attractive contract.

Q. 8—As South you hold:
♠5 ♥A 10 7 2 ♦J 10 6 ♣A J 9 6 3
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 diamond	1 heart	2 clubs	2 spades
3 diamonds	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Three hearts. This bid serves a dual purpose. If partner has spades stopped and elects to bid three no trump you will not be displeased. If partner elects to go out slamming you have the necessary ingredients, with first round control in hearts and clubs and second round control in spades. Partner's free rebid of three diamonds shows a good hand.

Sloping down to the ruins of old Moore's mill,
And the kids fish again at the old Red bridge.

Cooper's vineyard is all aflame
With its riot of blossoms, the wild and the tame,
And those boyhood trails you used to follow
Still lead to the mysteries of old Heeb's hollow.

They're all dressed up, but a hint of woe—
Nary a one seems to have a beau.

Yes, fellows, spring has come once more
To the old home towns you knew of yore,
But guess what's missing, guess what we lack—
That's right! And it will be till you all come back!

ST. LOUIS STOPS SOUTH SIDERS, 3-2 AND 10-4

Champions Finally Hit Their Stride

BY IRVING VAUGHAN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

St. Louis, Mo., April 29—The James Dykes' White Sox today closed out the act that featured them as the undefeated mystery men of the major leagues. They abandoned the role, after five straight victories, by special request of the champion Browns who put over a ninth inning run for a 3 to 2 success in the front half of a doubleheader. Then to make it doubly grievous the title holders leaned toward the rough side and blasted the Chicagoans, 10 to 4. But the White Sox still own first place.

The first game was mainly a matter between Thornton Lee's southpawing skill and the frailties of those supposed to be his helping hands. The Sox gave Sid Jakucki a few jolts at the outset to establish a 2 to 0 lead for themselves and Lee protected this by doing a two hit job for six innings. But the usually reliable Wally Moses dropped a fly ball in the seventh, a run resulting. Vern Stephens knocked his second homer of the season in the eighth for a tie and Frank Mancuso broke it up with a triple at the start of the ninth. A fly ball by Pinch Batter Gene Moore scored him.

Browns Score 5 in 4th

The fact that the Browns did a rushing business at the run counter in the second game was principally a matter of concern for Ed Lopat. He displayed only a vague idea as to the exact location of the plate and the Browns displayed a marked fondness for anything he threw within reach. Under the circumstances he remained only until two had been retired in the fourth inning, which was long enough for the champions to pile up six runs. Five of these were accumulated in the fourth, the same inning in which the Sox had taken a 3 to 1 lead by routing Al Hollingsworth.

When it became evident that Lopat was not in a southpawing mood and that Jack Kramer, who relieved Hollingsworth, intended to give up next to nothing, Dykes took a couple of deep grabs among his reserve pitchers. John Johnson cleaned up the fourth satisfactorily for Lopat but was nicked slightly in the fifth and almost got some more of the same in the sixth, so was removed. The 40 year old Clay Touchstone made his debut in the seventh, yielding three runs, and the 39 year old Earl Caldwell did the eighth in flawless fashion.

Sox Get Early Lead

The Sox got down to serious work early in the first game, a couple hits off Jakucki fixing up Lee with a one run lead. John Dickshot started this by drawing a pass with two out and traveling the remainder of the distance on singles furnished by Bill Nagel and Tony Cuccinello. Dickshot also was instrumental in getting a scoring episode under way in the third. He walked again, this time with none out, stole second, went to third on Nagel's long fly and home on Schalk's infield single.

With one out in the seventh Myron Hayworth hoisted a fly to short right and LeRoy Schalk was available to make the catch but Moses waved him away. The ball popped out of the Moses grip. Thee one armed Pete Gray runs pretty fast so he was substituted for Hayworth and scooted all the way to the plate when Don Gutteridge's drive got away from Oris Hockett for a double. The next hit off Lee was the aforementioned Stephens' homer which landed on the right field roof and then, a bit later, came the Mancuso triple that settled the argument.

Lopat's Aim Is Bad

Lopat's bad aim made it easy for the Browns to assume a one run lead in the opening inning of the second game. Gutteridge walked, Mike Kreevich singled, and Stephens walked, filling the bases. Gutteridge crossed the plate while Schalk was tossing out Boris Martin. It also was wildness, in this instance by Hollingsworth, that enabled the Sox to come up with three runs in the fourth. Dickshot and Cuccinello singled and Schalk walked with one out. Cass Michaels also drew a pass, Dickshot scoring and Hollingsworth going to the locker room. Tresh singled off Rescuer Kramer to account for the two other runs.

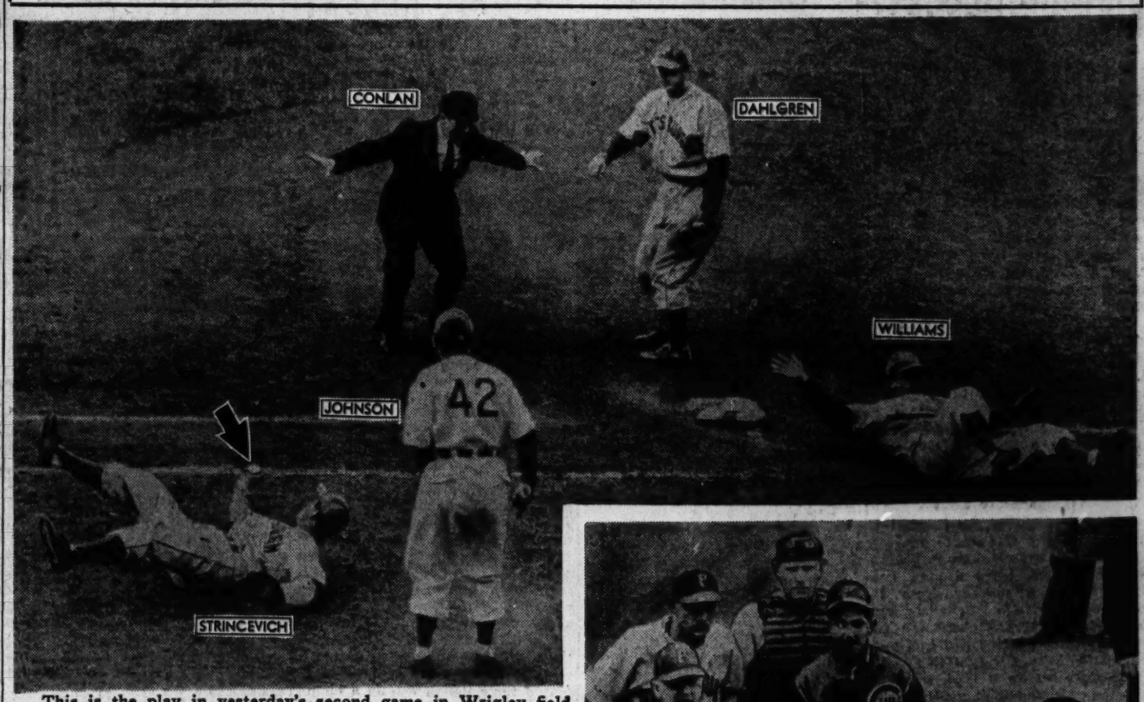
JUST A MOMENTARY JOYFUL INTERLUDE FOR THE CUBS



This is the play in yesterday's second game in Wrigley field which embarrassed the Pirates briefly while they were on their way to a double victory over the Cubs. Dewey Williams sprawls after reaching first base by eluding Pitcher Nick Strincevich, who fell trying to touch the Cub catcher after taking his roller. Jocko Conlan is the umpire, Babe Dahlgren the first baseman, and Roy Johnson the Cub coach. [TRIBUNE Photo]

COOPER, LANIER PITCH CARDS TO TWO TRIUMPHS

Cincinnati, O., April 29 (AP)—Morton Cooper made his first start of the season today and got credit for winning as the St. Louis Cardinals beat the Cincinnati Reds, 8 to 3, in the second game of a double header after Max Lanier defeated Cincinnati in the opener, 2 to 1. Cooper yielded only one hit up the seventh inning when he was lifted as the Reds got to him for three straight singles.

Bucky Walters, still trying for his first victory, was the loser in the second game. In the eight innings he pitched, he gave up seven hits and four runs. The Cards pounded Hc.l Lisenbee, his successor, in the ninth for three runs.

Frank McCormick, Cincinnati first baseman, who is better known for his hitting than fleetness afoot, stole three bases, including home, in the second game.

The first game was brilliantly pitched by both Lanier and Frank Dasso, Cincinnati rookie who won the Pacific Coast league's strikeout title last season.

Red Sox Leave Cellar; Whip A's, 2-0; 6-3

Philadelphia, Pa., April 29 (AP)—The Boston Red Sox won both ends of a double header today from the Philadelphia Athletics, capturing a 13 inning second game, 6 to 3, and taking the opener, 2 to 0.

Rookie Dave Ferriss, recently discharged from the army air forces, pitched his first major league game in the opener before 23,828 Shibe park fans. He blanked the Athletics 2 to 0, scattering five hits and getting three in as many trips to the plate.

Buck Newsom was charged with the defeat, his second against one victory.

Jesse Flores had the second game sewed up, 3 to 1, with two out in the ninth when Bob Johnson hit a home run with one aboard to tie the score.

A double, two singles, and a long fly by Johnson added three to the Boston score in the 13th and sent Flores down to his first defeat of the year. Pinky Woods was the winning pitcher.

The double victory gave the Red Sox the series, three game to one, and their third straight victory after losing their first eight starts.

Tigers Obtain Cullenbine in Indian Deal

Cleveland, O., April 29 (AP)—Outfielder Roy Cullenbine was traded to the Detroit Tigers for infielders Donald Ross and Lambert [Dutch] Meyer, Roger Peckinpaugh, vice president of the Cleveland Indians, announced today.

The deal was completed between games of today's double header Peckinpaugh added, after both Ross and Cullenbine played the first game. Manager Lou Boudreau listed the 30-year-old Cullenbine in the second game starting lineup but was informed of the trade and used Ed Carnett instead.

Cullenbine was one of the players under contract to Detroit released by the late Judge Kenesaw Landis in 1939. Brooklyn reportedly gave Roy a $25,000 bonus for his contract but traded him to the St. Louis Browns in May 1940. In 1942 he played with Washington and New York and in December came to Cleveland.

Ross, 30, has been with the Tigers since 1942 as both infielder and outfielder. Last year he hit .210 in 66 games.

Meyer, 29, honorably discharged from the army last week after 21 months in service, was purchased by Detroit from Nashville of the Southern association in 1940 as a replacement for Charley Gehringer.

FROSH PITCHES HITLESS GAME FOR HOLY CROSS

Worcester, Mass., April 29 (AP)—Jask Tivnan, 18 year old freshman southpaw who never played high school baseball, pitched a no run, no hit game today as Holy Cross college opened its 69th baseball season by defeating the Charlestown, R. I., naval air base, 7 to 0. This ushered in Jack Barry's 25th season as Holy Cross coach. Tivnan, a Worcester youngster, faced only 29 batters, fanned seven, and did not issue a pass. Four reach first base, all on errors.

HORNETS LOSE TO ST. LOUIS IN SOCCER, 3-1

St. Louis, Mo., April 29 [Special]—The Schumacher Undertakers, St. Louis Municipal and Missouri State Junior soccer champions, added the Western Junior title to their fast growing collection today, defeating the Chicago Hornets, Illinois Junior titleholders, 3 to 1.

The St. Louis club took a 2 to 0 lead in the first half, and increased this to 3 to 0, after five minutes of play in the second period. Gino Pariani, 17 year old star and inside left, who was drafted from the Raftery, senior champions for the game, opened the scoring at the 13 minute mark. Five minutes later, Herman Wecke, center forward, took a perfect cross from Half Back Pete Thompson and added the second tally.

36,637 Crowd Jams Wrigley Field

BY EDWARD BURNS

The Cubs made 13 hits for 19 bases against seven singles by the Pittsburgh Pirates yesterday in the second game of Wrigley field's first 1945 double header—a valiant but vain effort to stay in first place and appease 36,637 paying admirers who sat thru 40 degree temperatures to see them perform. The net of a sad, sad day was a 5 to 4 trimming piled on top of a 6 to 2 spanking with which the Pirates had ended the Cubs' six game winning streak in the first contest of the afternoon.

Had they made the most of their superior slugging, the Cubs would have remained at the top of the National league, despite their messy failure in the first game, for the Giants lost their single game. However, the Cubs sank to second place.

Thus the Cubs, in one afternoon, lost as many games as they had dropped in their first nine—and they made four errors in the first game and two in the second, after making only two bobbles in their first seven games and five in their first nine competitions. They will have to accustom themselves to large crowds, perhaps.

Roe Stingy in Opener

While the aforesaid difference between 13 hits for 19 bases, as against seven hits for seven bases should have given them the edge in the second game, there was little to say for the Cub attack in the first game, in which they made only five singles off Preacher Elwin Roe, did not get a man to second until the seventh inning, and then on an error. They ducked a shutout in the eighth when Tommy O'Brien dropped Phil Cavarretta's easy fly on what should have been the third out, enabling two runners to straggle home.

Roe went all the way in the first game and Nick Strincevich was the winner of the second, tho he had to be helped out by Xavier Rescigno in the seventh when a single by Cavarretta and doubles by Bill Nicholson and Eddie Sauer, all after two were out, gave the Cubs two runs and had the tying run on second. The Cubs had runners on third and first against Rescigno in the eighth, but couldn't click.

Chipman, Comellas Lose

Bob Chipman, who held the Pirates to three hits to fashion a 3 to 0 victory in Pittsburgh a week earlier, was the losing pitcher in the opener. He was succeeded by Mack Stewart, Ray Prim, and Hy Vandenberg. Chipman, Prim, and Vandenberg struck out 11, but it wasn't much of a ball game from the standpoint of most of those 36,637, what with those four errors, other misadventures, and the puny attack on Roe.

Jorge Comellas made his debut as a Cub starter in the second game but went away after the bases had been loaded with none out in the sixth, with the score tied at 2 to 2. Before Vandenberg could get the side out the Pirates had accrued three runs to effect their game total of five. Stewart tried to pitch the ninth but was replaced by Prim, with none out and runners on third and first. Prim got the side out without a run, but Cavarretta, Nicholson, and Sauer went out in order in the ninth, the only inning after the first in which the Cubs did not hit safely.

Misplays Plague Chipman

The first inning of the first game made it certain that Chipman was not going to pitch an encore of his earlier 3 to 0 victory. Pete Coscarart, first up in the afternoon, was thrown out but Johnny Barrett lined a single to left center. O'Brien bounced to Chipman and a double play apparently was in the making, Chipman threw to Roy Hughes, who failed to touch second to force Barrett, but relayed the ball to Cavarretta in time to get O'Brien, thus saving himself from being charged with an error. Bob Elliott then singled to left, scoring Barrett.

YANKS, SENATORS SPLIT

New York, April 29 (AP)—Roger Wolff pitched Washington to an even break today as he limited the New York Yankees to four hits to give the Senators a 2 to 1 victory in the second game of a double header before 35,308 fans. The Yankees walloped the Senators in the opener, 13 to 4.

George Myatt's force out of George Case in the opening round of the second game, his steal, Donald's wild pitch and a wild throw by Oscar Grimes produced the Senators' first run. A triple by Myatt and Joe Kuhel's single accounted for the winning run in the sixth.

Atley Donald hit his first major league homer in the third for the Yankees' lone run.

VIKINGS DEFEAT SLOVAKS, 4-2, IN OPEN CUP PLAY

In a fourth-round National Open soccer cup match played yesterday in Winnemac park stadium, the Vikings defeated the Slovaks, 4 to 2, in a 30-minute extra period to advance to the semi-finals of the National Western Open title round.

Another overtime game was decided in Weber stadium, where the Hansas beat the Guisti-Italians, 2 to 1, in a second-round contest to determine qualifiers for the National Amateur cup finals.

These were the two leading attractions on a soccer schedule of 15 games played in the Chicago area yesterday.

Vikings Score First

In the Vikings-Slovaks encounter, the first score was made by the former when Nels Brostrom, Viking center forward, after a long run drove home a marker from 15 yards despite Nello Menoni's effort to block the kick. During the remainder of the period Bill List and Paul Myellenberg sought to add to their team's 1 to 0 lead, but the Slovaks defended their goal stoutly, and at the half the score still stood 1 to 0.

Within 20 minutes from the start of the second period the Slovaks, chiefly thru the efforts of Pete Matevich and Steve Wisienski, tied the score and then proceeded to take the lead at 2 to 1 when Matovich booted the best goal of the game, with only four minutes of play left. However, the Vikings put on a powerful offensive in the closing two minutes and tied the score at 2-all when List and Myellenberg scored from five yards.

McDermott Breaks Tie

In the half-hour extra period Jimmy McDermott, ably assisted by List, tallied for the Vikings, and thereafter the decision was no longer in doubt. List scored another goal in the last minute of play, for the 4 to 2 victory. The Vikings' next opponents will be St. Louis, Mo.

The Hansa-Guisti-Italian battle was decided in the closing minutes of the overtime session when Oscar Giesecke booted the winning goal.

BASEBALL PLAY RESUMED TODAY IN CITY LEAGUE

Action on the prep baseball front in the City league will be renewed today after a week of spring vacation, with four contests scheduled in the west and south sections.

In the west section Foreman will be seeking its third straight victory when it meets Kelvyn Park in Hanson park. The Kelvyn Park nine has won one game and played a 6 to 6 tie with Austin. The Austin game will be replayed at the end of the season if it will affect the standings.

Calumet will make a bid for its fourth straight triumph when it meets Bowen in Bessemer park and should have little trouble in winning. Bowen, with Hirsch, shares the south section cellar and has not won a contest in three starts.

WELBY VAN HORN RETAINS TITLES IN NORTH-SOUTH

Pinehurst, N. C., April 29 (AP)—Tennis history repeated itself in the north and south professional tournament here today, as singles and doubles champions retained the titles they won last year.

Welby Van Horn, Atlanta, defeated Richard Skeen, Palm Beach, Fla., in the singles finals to retain the title he won a year ago, and then teamed up with Frank Rericha of Greenwich, Conn., to defeat Skeen and Ed Copeland, Rollins college tennis catch, in the doubles event.

In the singles Skeen showed early strength before the first set went to Van Horn, 8-6. He then went on to win the next two handily, 6-0, 6-3.

Brilliant play was exhibited in the doubles finals when the Van Horn-Rericha combination won in straight sets, 6-4, 8-6, 6-4.

BROWNS DEFEAT WHITE SOX IN 2 GAMES, 3-2, 10-4

double by Mark Christman and a walk to Mancuso. A bunt by Hollingsworth forced Christman at third and Moses took Gutteridge's fly for the second out. Then Milt Byrnes and Kreevich singled, Stephens doubled, Martin walked, and George McQuinn singled. Johnson was rushed in for the overdue third out on Christman who started the whole thing.

Browns Take 7-3 Lead

The Browns made it 7 to 2 in the fifth, a run scoring as the result of Johnson being assessed for a double by Mancuso and a single by Kramer. The next time they were heard from was again: Touchstone in the seventh. Christman singled and Mancuso walked. A triple by Gutteridge sent them home and Gutteridge scored later on Cuccinello's fumble of Stephens' roller.

The only other activity was what the Sox did in the eighth with two of their six hits off Kramer. They scored their fourth run on a double by Cuccinello and single by Schalk.

PHILLIES DEFEAT BRAVES, 5 TO 3; THEN LOSE, 1 TO 0

Javery Shuts Out Foe in Second Game

Boston, Mass., April 29 (AP)—With the only run of the game being forced across the plate when Dick Barrett issued a base on balls with the bases filled, the Braves defeated the Philadelphia Phils, 1 to 0, today in the second game of a double-header. The Phils won the first game 5 to 3.

The victory in the second game was Javery's first of the season. He also scored the only run after singling to open the sixth. He was sacrificed along by Dick Culler. Then, after Tommy Holmes popped out, Barrett suddenly became wild and walked three men in a row, forcing in Javery.

In the first game, during which the Phils took advantage of their opportunities, flutterball Jim Tobin issued only two passes but both were disastrous.

DODGERS WHIP GIANTS

Brooklyn, N. Y., April 29 (AP)—Dixie Walker's home run with two on in the eighth inning enabled the Brooklyn Dodgers to come from behind and defeat the New York Giants, 4 to 3, before 25,036 fans today.

The wallop gave the Dodgers the series, two games to one. Dixie connected off Andy [Swede] Hansen after Goodie Rosen singled and Augie Galan drew a pass. Ace Adams then replaced Hansen and prevented further scoring.

Hal Gregg gained his second victory of the season yielding only four hits and striking out seven batters. The Giants scored their first two runs in the third on singles by Johnny Rucker and Mel Ott, a walk to George Hausmann, and Steve Filipowicz's fly. In the fourth the Dodgers scored a run on Eddie Stanky's single, an error by Filipowicz which enabled Stanky to reach third, and a single by Rosen.

BOSTON'S ONE MAN GANG OUT AT PLATE

Butch Nieman, who's done just about everything for the Boston Braves so far this season in the hitting and scoring line, couldn't score on this play in yesterday's first game in Boston. He is tagged out by Phillies catcher, Johnny Peacock, who took throw from First Baseman Jimmy Wasdell. The play, in the seventh inning, nipped a Boston rally and the Phils went on to win, 5 to 3. Boston took the second game, 1 to 0.

36,637 Watch Pirates Beat Cubs Twice

The third double play foozle by the Cubs had dire results in the Pirate fourth. Nicholson made a spectacular play to catch Babe Dahlgren's foul. Frank Gustine walked and Al Lopez bounced a double play ball to Chipman, but Bob threw high to Hughes and both Gustine and Lopez were safe. Roe was called out on strikes but Coscarart walked, loading the bases. Barrett doubled to left, Gustine and Lopez scoring. O'Brien singled to left, sending Coscarart and Barrett across the plate.

Stewart Escapes Jam

Chipman went away in the fifth. Dahlgren walked with one down and scored on Gustine's double to left center, Gustine taking third when Hughes threw the relay past the plate. Stewart replaced Chipman and gave an intentional pass to Lopez. Roe beat out a bunt, loading the bases, but Coscarart forced Gustine at the plate and Johnson threw out Barrett.

Here's the way the Cubs broke into the scoring column with two unearned runs in the eighth. Mickey Livingston opened with a single to left. Andy Pafko batted for Prim and was called out on strikes whereupon Johnny Ostrowski batted for Hack and forced Livingston. After Hughes knocked a single to right, O'Brien dropped Cavarretta's high fly, Ostrowski and Hughes scoring and Cavarretta reaching second.

In the second game the Pirates scored in the first and second innings. In the first, after Coscarart had been called out on strikes, Barrett walked and went to third on O'Brien's single to right. He scored while Elliott was forcing O'Brien. Colman then forced Elliott. With one out in the second, Gustine walked and went to third while Bill Salkeld's grounder was rolling past Don Johnson. Strincevich singled to center, scoring Gustine for a 2 to 0 lead.

The exciting Chicago second inning opened with Nicholson's double. Sauer beat out a hit to Gustine and when Gustine threw into the Pirate dugout, Nick scored and Sauer reached second. Gustine made a good stop of Peanuts Lowrey's single over second, holding Sauer on third. Sauer scored and Lowrey stopped at second while Coscarart was throwing out Johnson. Dewey Williams rolled to Strincevich, who tried to tag him as he ran to first. Williams evaded the tag and half of the Pirate personnel rushed in to argue that Williams had run out of the path to first. In the debate Capt. Lopez, then Manager Frankie Frisch, were chased from the arena. Then Comellas was called out on strikes and Stan Hack rolled to Dahlgren.

O'Brien opened the sixth with an infield single and Elliott walked. Colman bunted and beat it out for a single, loading the bases. Vandenberg then replaced Comellas. Jim Russell batted for Dahlgren and singled to center for two runs. Colman scored on Gustine's fly to Nicholson. Russell stole second and went on to third when Williams threw the ball into center field after Salkeld was given an intentional pass. Strincevich grounded into a double play.

Badger Nine Whips Truax Field, 15 to 1

Madison, Wis., April 29 [Special].—The University of Wisconsin baseball team defeated Truax Field at the post diamond this afternoon, 15 to 1, to sweep the four game series with the Raiders. The Badgers pounded two Raider pitchers for 17 hits and were assisted by 10 misplays of the soldiers.

Each team scored a single run in the first inning but the Badgers went on a rampage starting with the fifth and scored in every inning the rest of the way.

In the fifth inning, after two were out, Phil Nelson, John Robinson and Bob Sutton singled in order for one run and Jerry Thompson's double sent over a pair.

Thompson, with two singles besides his timely double, paced the Badgers while Robinson, besides scattering 10 hits by the Raiders, hit three singles. Burt Boyer got four singles for the losers.

CUBS TO DRILL TODAY; AWAIT REDS' ARRIVAL

The Cubs, a bit chagrined at having let down yesterday's big turnout of 36,637 fans, will assemble in Wrigley field this morning and will perform in practice before approximately 36,637 vacated seats. They will practice again tomorrow, then on Wednesday and Thursday will face the Reds in single games. The Reds aren't too cheerful, either. They were whipped twice yesterday themselves.

Paul Derringer will go after his fourth straight of the season in the first game with the Reds. Hank Wyse, who put the Cubs in first place Saturday with a one hitter, will pitch the second game against the Reds.

Claude Passeau, who pitched a five hit shut-out and knocked a homer in the one game the Cubs have played the Reds, will miss his turn. He doesn't want to strain his ailing arm until the weather gets hot. Eddie Hanyzewski will carry his pitching arm in a sling for four or five days. The docs now think he's suffering from arthritis.

The Cubs will not have a chance to flop before another capacity home crowd until May 27, when they will play a double header in Wrigley field with the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Marion injured his right ankle yesterday in an unsuccessful attempt to steal home in the ninth inning. X-rays disclosed no broken bones.

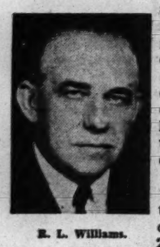
BIG DEBT SLASH IS REPORTED BY NORTH WESTERN

First Report Since Reorganization

Chicago and North Western railway's annual report—the first issued since its nine year reorganization was completed last June 1—yesterday showed total debt trimmed by half and substantially reduced capitalization.



R. L. Williams.

R. L. Williams, president, said, total debt was cut from $366,209,606 on May 31, 1944, to $171,840,971 at Dec. 31. Total capitalization was reduced 202 million dollars to $344,923,873 on Dec. 31.

Cut Fixed Charges, Interest

Annual fixed charges of $16,140,592 on May 31 were reduced to $2,843,669 a year on Dec. 31, and contingent interest to $4,034,370. The company further reduced its annual interest charges by $808,000 since Jan. 1 by the payment on April 20 of the remaining balance of collateral trust notes, amounting to $6,224,000, and by refinancing all first mortgage debt, Williams said.

Additions and improvements last year included installation of modern automatic locomotive coaling plants at seven locations, strengthening of bridges and tracks in Iowa, Michigan, and South Dakota, and purchase of equipment to further mechanize the roadway and track departments. Thirty-three diesel-electric switching locomotives and two diesel-electric locomotives for combination road and yard service were received in 1944.

Net Income Lower.

Equipment on order at the year-end included five diesel-electric passenger locomotives, two diesel-electric freight locomotives, and 21 diesel-electric switching locomotives.

Net income in 1944 was $16,108,061 compared with $22,966,000 in 1943. Altho freight tonnage declined 2.3 per cent below 1943 levels, freight revenue was $113,304,000, against $112,406,000 in 1943. Passenger revenue increased $3,847,223 to $37,291,000.

EXPECT KELSEY, PACKARD RETURN TO WORK TODAY

Detroit, Mich., April 29 (AP)—About 21,500 workers in plants of the Kelsey-Hayes Wheel company and Packard Motor Car company will return to work tomorrow.

The 5,500 striking employes of three Kelsey-Hayes factories, shut down twice by strikes within less than three weeks, voted at a meeting today of local 174, CIO United Automobile Workers, to resume work.

Resumption of production also was expected by 16,000 Packard workers, made idle for five days by a strike of 110 inspectors in a dispute involving engine inspection, following a directive last Friday by the regional war labor board ordering a time study. Management announced the plant would reopen with the first shift tomorrow.

Expect Large Store Sales in Post-War Era

Department store sales of about 5½ billion dollars annually, not more than 10 per cent below last year's peak levels, were predicted in the early post-war years by Exchange magazine yesterday in terming prospects favorable for stores.

Despite increasingly serious merchandise shortages, and many operating difficulties, department stores had an unprecedentedly prosperous year in 1944.

The substantial deferred demand for consumer durable goods, an important outlet for such soft goods as clothing to returned fighters, an expected building boom bringing a demand for home furnishings, and a large amount of individual savings were listed as promising factors.

Industry Gain Expected

Supporting these demands were indications that industrial production may be above the pre-war level when peace time economy returns, the magazine said. In normal times slightly more than 5 per cent of the disposable income of individuals was spent in department stores, whose sales accounted for almost 9 per cent of all retail sales.

The profit outlook was not considered as favorable, however. Present expense ratios are abnormally low because the pressing demand for merchandise has lessened the need for markdowns and special sales.

War time conditions also have reduced service costs entailed in deliveries and returns, and sales have been handled by a smaller sales force than normally.

Complicated by Textile Plan

Predictions of 1945 sales volume were unwise, because an ending of the war could bring into play such contradictory elements as a decline in consumer purchasing power and an increase in available merchandise, the magazine asserted.

Complicating the 1945 outlook further is the government compaign to increase the supply of low priced clothing and textiles, a program which could limit the supply of higher profit margin merchandise.

ARNOLD CHARGES U. S. INDUSTRIES DESTROY WEALTH

New York, April 29 (AP)—Judge Thurman W. Arnold, former assistant attorney general, says the business policies of established industry "are devoted to destroying real wealth instead of producing it."

In a pamphlet entitled "Cartels or Free Enterprise?" to be published tomorrow by the Public Affairs Committee, Inc., the associate justice of the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia declares:

"Established industry is afraid of overproduction, surpluses, and excess plant capacity. These restrictive practices, if uncurbed, spread over all production.

"They compel government to pour out subsidies, unemployment relief, and money for public works to maintain a minimum of production at the artificial prices that an unsubsidized market cannot support."

COAL MACHINERY STOCK

Several investment companies recently purchased substantial amounts of Joy Manufacturing company stock. Please send information regarding its business.—E. F.

Joy Manufacturing is a large producer of mechanical loaders, shuttle cars, drilling, cutting, and other equipment for use in underground coal mines. It also makes secondary haulage equipment, including chain and slope belt conveyers.

If pending plans are completed, the company will acquire a 70 per cent interest in Sullivan Machinery company, which makes air compressors, rock drills, prospecting drills, and coal cutters, scrapers, haulers, and hoists. As a preliminary step, Joy Manufacturing in March arranged for the sale of 70,000 to 100,000 shares of its unissued stock to certain investment companies at $24.50 a share.

At its 1945 peak of 29, the stock was highest since listing on the New York Stock exchange in 1941. It sold as low as 7⅛ in 1942. Earnings per share since incorporation of the present company in 1939, based on 284,100 shares of $1 par value issued prior to this year, were: 1944, $2.10; 1943, $1.95 after renegotiation refund; 1942, $2.20; 1941, $2.65; 1940, $2.82; 1939, $2.14. Except in 1939 the earnings are for fiscal years ended Sept. 30. The predecessor company's profits in the immediate pre-war years were smaller.

Dividends are paid at the quarterly rate of 20 cents. Including one extra dividend of 20 cents, the 1944 payments totaled $1. Current assets on Sept. 30 last were $7,434,000; current liabilities, $3,111,000. A long term bank loan amounted to $405,000.

FRENCH AFRICA OPENED TO U. S. PRIVATE TRADE

Washington, D. C., April 29 (AP)—Nearly every pre-war trade item American exporters sent to French Africa is now free to go back into private trade to those regions, the state department said today.

The state department, acting jointly with the French supply council, the department of commerce and the foreign economic administration disclosed that a list of more than a hundred trade items or classes of items—ranging from needles to agricultural machinery—had been agreed upon as being eligible to return to commercial channels under agreed supply programs, if and when those items in short supply become available.

6,400 Small Planes Put on Sale by U. S.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., April 29—The Reconstruction Finance corporation announced today that it is placing on sale at 55 sale and storage depots 2,700 twin engined Cessna cabin monoplanes, 3,700 Vultee single engined planes and a wide variety of other aircraft that have been declared surplus.

The Cessnas, purchased by the government at an average price of $26,000, will be sold at a top price of $8,500. The RFC said their large cabin and ability to get in and out of small airports make them an ideal plane for business transportation, light cargo charter, advanced pilot training, or personal use. They use 73 octane gasoline and cruise at about 140 miles an hour.

List Midwest Sales Points

The Vultee Valiants are equipped with complete dual and blind flying instruments and were used by the army and navy for instrument training. They are two place planes and will be sold at $3,600 to $4,000 each. The Cessnas and Vultees may be purchased in the midwest at Lansing, Ill.; Des Moines, Ia.; Minneapolis, Minn., and Lansing, Mich.

The other aircraft offered by the RFC include light and medium bombers, transitional trainers, reconnaissance and photographic planes, and some four engined, Liberators and Flying Fortresses.

Must Get CAA Approval

They are not eligible for civil aeronautics administration certificates at present, but may be purchased for experimental or special purposes provided the purchaser accepts the responsibility of undertaking to have them approved for such use by the CAA.

The RFC said that between April 6, when it started selling surplus army and navy training planes on a fixed price basis, and April 24, it disposed of 832 planes for more than $900,000.

EXPECTS WAR LOW IN OUTPUT OF HOME GOODS

In the second quarter of 1945 output of home furnishings will probably reach a war time low, John C. Goodall, general manager of the Merchandise Mart, said yesterday. He based his prediction on a survey of manufacturer representatives in the Mart.

It was generally agreed that the materials supply is large enough to keep available man power busy, but that total production will fail by an ever widening margin to come close to demand, he said, and the man power shortage, it is fairly certain, will be alleviated before that in materials.

Upholstered furniture makers reported almost all reserve stocks of fabrics have been used and that mills have exhausted yarn reserves. Many manufacturers are relying on fabrics sent to them by their customers, he said. Increased government orders for cotton duck and blankets have cut further into the textile supplies available for floor covering producers.

WMC EXPECTS TO RETAIN JOB RULE AFTER V-E

'Spotty' Labor Need Is Forecast

Washington, D. C., April 29 (AP)—The war man power commission expects armament cutbacks to leave not more than a dozen United States cities with serious labor shortages in the first three months after V-E day.

New labor shortages are foreseen in the second and third quarters after German collapse, however, as reconversion hits full stride and peace time industry absorbs workers laid off by war plants.

Responsible WMC officials, divulging the agency's V-E day plan today, forecast a "spotty" man power situation in which state WMC officers will decide which controls must be kept.

Women to Be Exempted

In the tight areas, these war time measures will be retained:

The job referral system and certificates of availability. Women will be exempted in all cities.

Forty-eight hour week in shortage areas to make earnings in the tight man power areas more attractive than in cities of plentiful labor, where the 40 hour week will return.

The rating of industries according to essentiality to channel workers into lumber, textiles, rubber, and other fields expected to continue critical long after the war narrows to a single front.

Ceiling Plan on Way Out

The forced release program—by which WMC has sought to divert workers into war plants by putting low labor ceilings on less essential businesses—is already on its way out. In the famed New Bedford case and others, WMC found little support for this drastic measure, and apparently considers it not worth pursuing in view of congress' refusal to back it up with man power legislation.

WMC will shuffle its man power ratings of cities and add one significant grouping: Cities having "acute unemployment." In these areas WMC will be hunting jobs for workers instead of workers for jobs.

Coleman Lamp Proposes Name Change, Stock Split

Reclassification of present no par common stock of Coleman Lamp and Stove company into one-fifth share of $50 par cumulative preferred stock and four shares of $5 par common stock was approved by directors and will be submitted to stockholders at a special meeting June 12, the company announced yesterday. The directors also proposed changing the name to the Coleman company, Inc.

PEOPLE AND EVENTS

Dr. John I. Yellott.

Dr. John I. Yellott, director of the Institute of Gas Technology of the Illinois Institute of Technology, yesterday was appointed to direct the million dollar program of the locomotive development committee of Bituminous Coal Research, Inc., to increase the efficiency of railway locomotives.

Gilbert Gardner, former member of the editorial staff of Broadcasting magazine in Washington, D. C., was appointed manager of the publicity and information department of the Illinois State Chamber of Commerce, said Carl Schweinfurth, president.

John D. Small has been appointed chief of staff of the war production board by Chairman J. A. Krug, who simultaneously announced the resignation of Samuel W. Anderson, program vice chairman of the requirements committee, and the appointment of Lincoln Gordon, formerly Anderson's deputy, to succeed him in both capacities. Small previously was executive officer to Krug.

Lucien W. Moore, now on a special mission in France for the war department, has been appointed general manager of sales and branch houses of Crane company. He succeeds J. A. Dwyer, recently elected vice president in charge of sales and branch houses. F. J. Wilkey, Chicago district manager, was appointed manager of the valve and fitting department to succeed Moore.

William H. Fobes Jr. of St. Paul was named acting district traffic manager of Northwest Airlines in Chicago, R. O. Bullwinkel, assistant to the president in charge of traffic, announced. Fobes succeeds James J. Fauteux, who will head the traffic division of the entire Northwest Airlines system.

Five sales of used machine tools and an offering of new surplus machine tools are scheduled in May, the Reconstruction Finance corporation said Saturday. Two sales, at Springfield, Ill., May 7, and Indianapolis, Ind., May 12, are being advertised nationally. The others, in the east, will be relatively small.

J. Stanton Robbins, managing director of International House, New Orleans, La., will discuss foreign trade before the Junior Traffic Club of Chicago Thursday night in the La Salle hotel.

W. F. Norris, for the last three years vice president of Commerce Union Bank of Nashville, Tenn., was named manager of the sales department of Cruttenden & Co., securities dealer.

PRIVATE TRUCK USERS PRAISED FOR MILEAGE CUT

Private business concerns using motor trucks to make deliveries yesterday were credited by the office of defense transportation with having carried larger tonnage than ever before and at the same time having reduced mileage traveled to two-thirds of the 1941 total.

Approximately 2,393,000 trucks and tractors, exclusive of farm vehicles and tank trucks, were operated by private carriers in 1944, ODT said. In 1941 they ran 34 billion miles and last year 22½ billion, "with inability to render satisfactory service in surprisingly few cases."
